JERRY JONES

OWNER, PRESIDENT AND GENERAL MANAGER

COWBOYS

In one of the most dramatic eras of ownership in professional sports, Jerry Jones's stewardship of the Dallas Cowboys has brought unprecedented results and success to one of the world's most visible sports entities. Aside from being one of only four current owners to guide their franchises to at least three Super Bowl titles, Jones is also one of the most active figures in the area of service to the leadership of the NFL. His influence is visible on a daily basis with his participation on a wide range of committees that shape the current landscape of the NFL and determine the league's direction for the future.

Highlighted by Super Bowl victories following the 1992, 1993 and 1995 seasons, Jones became the first owner in NFL history to guide his team to three league championships in his first seven years of ownership. In 1995, Dallas also became the first team in NFL history to win three Super Bowls in four seasons while tying the NFL record for most Super Bowl victories by an organization with five.

By 1999, the first decade of Jones's ownership closed with eight playoff appearances, six division titles, four conference championship game appearances and three world crowns. Dallas closed the millennium as the NFL's "Team of the Decade" for the 1990s.

Since he took over as general manager in 1989, the Cowboys have drafted 17 different players who have gone on to appear in a combined total of 67 Pro Bowls. Dallas has also signed four veteran free agent players who have made 14 Pro Bowl appearances while representing the Dallas Cowboys. Since 1989, the Cowboys have made 104 trades, the most celebrated of which was the 1989 deal that sent Herschel Walker to the Minnesota Vikings and provided the personnel foundation for three league titles.

In selecting the on-the-field leadership for the Cowboys, Jones hired a pair of coaches who won three Super Bowls in Dallas: Jimmy Johnson (1992-1993) and Barry Switzer (1995). Chan Gailey followed with a division title and playoff appearances in 1998 and 1999. In 2003, Jones successfully recruited two-time Super Bowl winner Bill Parcells to Dallas, and Parcells has directed the team to two winning seasons and a return to the playoffs in 2003.

In the last 28 years, 26 different owners have entered the National Football League. Of that group, only Jerry Jones and Robert Kraft of New England have guided their franchises to more than two Super Bowl championships. Moreover, Jones joins Art Rooney, Jack Kent Cooke, Al Davis, Eddie DeBartolo and Kraft as the only men to have won at least three Super Bowls as NFL owners.

On the league front, he actively contributes his vision and enthusiasm to enhancing the NFL's status as the world's premier professional sports league by serving on a wide range of league committees. Jones currently serves on the Management Council Executive Committee, the Broadcast Committee, the Business Ventures Committee, the Special Committee on League Economics, the Los Angeles Stadium Working Group and the search committee charged with overseeing the process of finding a successor for Commissioner Paul Tagliabue. He also has served two prior terms as a member of the NFL's Competition Committee. His contributions and innovations in the areas of marketing, corporate sponsorships, television, stadium management, stadium development, and community service have made a visible imprint on the ever evolving face of professional sports in America.

As a co-captain of the 1964 National Championship Arkansas Razorbacks, Jones is one of a very small number of NFL owners who actually earned a significant level of success as a football player. He is the only man in the history of the National Football League to play for a collegiate national championship football team and own a Super Bowl winner. A man of varied interests who will not rest on yesterday's achievements, he is a dedicated businessman and family man - sharing a vivid enthusiasm for both.

Although Jones and his family are very involved in numerous civic and charitable causes, the Joneses have left an indelible local and national impression on the philanthropic landscape with their love and dedication to The Salvation Army.

For the past nine seasons, the Jones family has dedicated the Cowboys Thanksgiving Day halftime show as a national showcase to kick off The Salvation Army's annual Red Kettle Drive. Through the donation of national television airtime, the event has created a new holiday tradition, while helping to increase donations to The Salvation Army's annual fund raising efforts by hundreds of millions of dollars. Major George Hood of The Salvation Army states that "by presenting the National Kettle Kickoff on Thanksgiving Day, the Dallas Cowboys have helped the Army raise over $900 million in the past nine years." Reba McEntire, Randy Travis, Clint Black, Jessica Simpson, Billy Gilman, Creed, LeAnn Rimes, Toby Keith, Destiny's Child and Sheryl Crow have provided the entertainment for the last nine holiday extravaganzas.

The Salvation Army points to the annual Cowboys kickoff event as one of the most effective, creative and important innovations that has been developed in the long and storied history of the organization.

The Joneses received the Evangeline Booth Award in 1999, one of the Army's highest national community service awards and have been selected for membership into the prestigious Salvation Army William Booth Society. Gene and Jerry were also named to the Army's National Advisory Board in April of 1998 shortly after being named the organization's Partners of the Year in 1997.

For 10 years, Gene and Jerry Jones served as hosts and underwrote the costs for the Super Lunch, a fundraising event for The Salvation Army Irving Corps Community Center. In 1998, the Gene and Jerry Jones Family Center for Children opened in conjunction with The Army.

Beginning this fall as part of the Jones Family and the Dallas Cowboys commitment to Arlington, Texas, the future home of the club's new stadium, Gene and Jerry Jones Family Charities will donate $16.5 million to youth sports in Arlington over the next 33 years.

In 2001, the Joneses were awarded the Chairman's Award by The Boys and Girls Clubs of America. In June of 2002, Gene and Jerry Jones were recognized as the recipients of the Children's Champion Award for Philanthropy that was presented by the Dallas for Children organization. In 2003, the Family Gateway organization of Dallas presented Gene and Jerry with the Annette G. Strauss Humanitarian Award. In April of 2005, Gene and Jerry were recipients of the Hope Award, the highest community service recognition awarded by the Lone Star Chapter of the National Multiple Sclerosis Society.

The Jones family is very involved with several other community-related organizations, including Children's Medical Center of Dallas, Happy Hill Farm Academy/Home, the National Board for The Boys and Girls Clubs of America, the Kent Waldrep Paralysis Foundation, The Rise School of Dallas and The Family Place.

Jerry (10/13/42) and Gene live in Dallas. They have three children, Stephen, Charlotte and Jerry, Jr., and seven grandchildren.

Stephen (6/21/64) is a graduate of the University of Arkansas and serves as the Cowboys Chief Operating Officer/Executive Vice President/Director of Player Personnel. Charlotte (7/26/66) is a Stanford graduate and serves as the Cowboys Vice President/Director of Charities and Special Events. Jerry Jr. (9/27/69), a graduate of Georgetown University who earned his law degree from Southern Methodist University, is the Cowboys Chief Sales and Marketing Officer/Vice President.

Chronology Since 1989:

The game is witnessed by 138.4 million television viewers, making Super Bowl XXX the most watched event in television history. The victory enables Dallas to earn its fifth Super Bowl title – joining the San Francisco 49ers as the second NFL franchise to win five Super Bowls. The Cowboys have appeared in an NFL record eight Super Bowls. Dallas also became the first NFL franchise to win Super Bowls with three different head coaches.

December 15, 1996 – The Cowboys clinch a fifth straight division title with a 12-6 win over the New England Patriots at Texas Stadium. The championship enables the Cowboys to become the first team in NFL history to win five straight NFC Eastern Division crowns.

January 5, 1997 – Dallas closes the post-season with a divisional playoff loss at Carolina. The loss marks the first time since the 1991 season that the Cowboys were unable to reach the NFL title game.

December, 1997 – The Cowboys close the 1997 season with a 6-10 record, marking the team's first non-playoff season since 1990.

July 15, 1998 – The Cowboys open training camp at Midwestern State University in Wichita Falls, Texas. Attendance figures for the four-week camp exceed 100,000.

November 8, 1998 – With 163 yards on 29 carries in a 16-6 win over the New York Giants, Emmitt Smith becomes the Dallas Cowboys all-time leading rusher. Smith's performance against New York pushes him past Tony Dorsett (12,036) and into the Cowboys top spot.

December 20, 1998 – After a one-year absence from postseason play, the Cowboys clinch their sixth NFC Eastern Division title in the last seven years with a 13-9 win over Philadelphia at Texas Stadium. The 1998 division crown is the 19th division championship (15th NFC East title) in the club's 39-year history.

December 27, 1998 – After scoring a first-half touchdown on a one-yard run against the Redskins at Texas Stadium, Emmitt Smith becomes the NFL's all-time leader in rushing touchdowns, moving ahead of Marcus Allen (123). Smith would later add a 26-yard touchdown run in the second quarter to bring his league record total to 125 by season's end. The Cowboys closed the year with a 23-7 victory over Washington and a 10-6 record, enabling Dallas to become the first team in the history of the NFC East to post an 8-0 record in division play.

December 24, 1999 – The Dallas Cowboys NFL-record of consecutive games in front of sold out stadiums came to an end in a Christmas Eve game against the New Orleans Saints in the Louisiana Superdome. The streak, which included home and away games, came to a halt after 160 games. It began on Dec. 23, 1990 at Philadelphia's Veterans Stadium and included 79 straight sell-outs at Texas Stadium (including playoffs) and 81 straight sell-outs on the road (including playoffs).

January 2, 2000 – The Cowboys close the century as the NFL's most successful team in the decade of the 1990s. From 1990 to 1999, Dallas qualified for the playoffs eight times, won six division titles, made four trips to the conference championship game and won three Super Bowls. The 1999 season ends with an 8-8 regular season record and a wild card playoff loss at Minnesota on Jan. 9, 2000.

January 26, 2000 – Jerry Jones names Cowboys defensive coordinator Dave Campo as the fifth head coach in franchise history. Campo spent the previous 11 seasons as an assistant coach in Dallas and was the defensive coordinator for the 1995 team that won Super Bowl XXX.

August 27, 2001 – Dallas defeats Oakland in a preseason American Bowl game in Mexico City that marks the Cowboys ninth international game. With stops in England (2), Japan (2), Mexico (4) and Canada (1), the Cowboys have played more international games than any other team in the NFL.

October 27, 2002 – In a 17-14 loss to the Seattle Seahawks at Texas Stadium, Emmitt Smith moved past Walter Payton to become the all-time NFL rushing leader. Smith finished the 2002 season, and his Dallas Cowboys career, with 17,162 yards, 436 more than Payton's previous career mark of 16,726.

January 2, 2003 – Jerry Jones names Bill Parcells as the sixth head coach in Dallas Cowboys franchise history. Parcells, a two-time Super Bowl winner with the New York Giants, replaces Dave Campo.

December 21, 2003 – The Cowboys topped the N.Y. Giants to record their 10th win of the season, securing a wild card berth in the playoffs. It was the club's 27th postseason appearance, extending their NFL record. It was also the 24th season in franchise history that the club had posted at least 10 wins, also a league record.

November 2, 2004 – With 55% of the vote, the citizens of Arlington, Texas overwhelming support a stadium referendum at the polls. The public-private partnership between the City of Arlington and the Dallas Cowboys will fund a retractable roof stadium with capacity for up to 90,000 people in the heart of Arlington's entertainment district. With over $400 million committed by the team and stadium users, it will be the largest private investment in a stadium in NFL history, and the stadium will give North Texas the ability to bring major events like the Super Bowl and the NCAA Final Four to the region.

September 19, 2005 – Troy Aikman, Michael Irvin and Emmitt Smith, the cornerstone players of the three-time Super Bowl Champion Cowboys teams of the 1990's became the 15th, 16th and 17th members of the club's Ring of Honor. The trio finished their Cowboys career holding almost every major passing, receiving and rushing record while helping the organization become the NFL's Team of the Decade for the '90s. Enshrinement ceremonies were scheduled for Aug. 5, 2006 in Canton, Ohio.

★ STEPHEN JONES ★

CHIEF OPERATING OFFICER/
DIRECTOR OF PLAYER PERSONNEL

COWBOYS

With 17 years of NFL experience under his belt, Stephen Jones has established himself as one of the brightest young executives in professional sports. Recognized as Owner Jerry Jones's right-hand man, Jones is currently the Cowboys Chief Operating Officer and Executive Vice President, as well as President of Texas Stadium.

Jones is spearheading the club's new stadium efforts, overseeing the in-house development team while working directly with local government, community and business leaders. He was directly responsible for the club's successful referendum campaign in the fall of 2004 that saw the City of Arlington agree to join forces with the Cowboys in building a new state-of-the-art stadium for the 2009 season.

On a day-to-day basis, he oversees the operations of both the Dallas Cowboys and Texas Stadium. His work involves managing the organization's 300 employees, including the coordination of the Cowboys entire player personnel department and major player contract work.

Jones played an integral role in the team's rise from a 1-15 record in 1989 to being the NFL's "Team of the Decade" with three Super Bowl titles in the 1990s. As he enters his 18th NFL season, Jones is a driving force behind the Cowboys resurgence as one of the elite level teams in the NFL. His recent work has seen the club restock its roster with some of the game's top young talent.

Jones was the key negotiator in the work that brought All-Pro wide receiver Terrell Owens to the Cowboys in March of 2006. He also took the lead in negotiating the contracts for free agents linebacker Akin Ayodele, offensive linemen Jason Fabini and Kyle Kosier and kicker Mike Vanderjagt, each expected to play a major role in the club's success in 2006.

Over a one-week span in the spring of 2005, Jones was instrumental in the distribution of $30 million in signing bonus money to quarterback Drew Bledsoe, defensive tackle Jason Ferguson, cornerback Anthony Henry and guard Marco Rivera. The signing of Ferguson, Henry and Rivera all took place in one day, March 3, the biggest signing day in club history.

The re-working of the Cowboys roster began in earnest in February, 2003 when, over a two-week span, Jones helped orchestrate the signing of Flozell Adams to a long-term contract, the acquisition via trade and signing of Terry Glenn from Green Bay and the unrestricted free agent signing of linebacker Al Singleton. Adams has since earned back-to-back Pro Bowl berths following the 2003 and 2004 seasons.

The last four draft classes are proving to be the foundation for the future of the Cowboys with nine current starters and eight All-Rookie Team members coming out of those drafts, including linebacker DeMarcus Ware, defensive end Marcus Spears and tackle Rob Petitti in 2005.

In the ever-evolving strategy that dictates a team's competitiveness in the current collective bargaining agreement, Jones's performance in managing the Cowboys salary cap has played a prominent role in the team's ability to compete at the NFL's highest level.

Jones's involvement in shaping the Dallas roster under the salary cap was critical in allowing the Cowboys to maintain one of the NFL's most talented core group of players throughout the decade of the 1990s. His creativity and care taking of the Cowboys cap played a key role in the team's six division titles and four conference championship game appearances.

During a historic two-year period of time, Jones was involved in signing five Cowboys stars who were considered the best players in the game at their respective positions. Between September of 1993 and September of 1995, Jones helped orchestrate contract agreements with running back Emmitt Smith, quarterback Troy Aikman, fullback Daryl Johnston, wide receiver Michael Irvin and cornerback Deion Sanders.

Jones has enjoyed a life-long association with the game of football. A four-year letterman as a linebacker and special teams standout at the University of Arkansas, Jones was a starter for the Razorbacks in the Orange Bowl Classic Game that followed the 1986 season. Prior to attending the University of Arkansas, Jones was an all-state quarterback and a three-year starter at Catholic High School in Little Rock, Ark.

He graduated from Arkansas in 1988 with a degree in chemical engineering, and immediately went to work in the oil and gas business for JMC Exploration as an engineer.

On Feb. 25, 1989, Jerry Jones purchased the Dallas Cowboys and installed Stephen into a key front office position as one-of-three vice presidents with the club.

Jones is actively involved with the Young Presidents' Organization and serves on the board of directors for the Southwestern Bell/SMU Athletic Forum, Cotton Bowl Athletic Association, Episcopal School of Dallas and Circle Ten Council of the Boy Scouts of America. Jones is also a member of the Dallas Citizens Council.

Jones (6/21/64) was born and reared in Little Rock. He is married to the former Karen Hickman of El Dorado, Ark., and the couple has three daughters and a son: Jessica (8/24/92), Jordan (10/8/93), Caroline (4/4/97) and John Stephen (4/19/99).

BILL PARCELLS

HEAD COACH

Years in NFL: 19th Year
Years with Cowboys: 4th Year

COWBOYS

On January 2, 2003, Bill Parcells took over the head coaching reigns of the Dallas Cowboys, marking the union of one of the NFL's most visible and successful franchises with one of the most prominent coaches in the history of the league.

In his first 12 months on the job, Parcells became the first head coach in NFL history to direct four different teams to the playoffs when he guided the 2003 Dallas Cowboys to a 10-6 record and a wild card playoff berth. It was his ninth trip to the postseason as an NFL head coach. After three seasons on the job in Dallas, Parcells's Cowboys clubs have posted a combined regular season record of 25-23, and his 18-year career record now stands at 174-130-1.

In 2005, Parcells moved into the ninth spot on the NFL's list of the all-time winningest head coaches, surpassing Pro Football Hall of Famers Bud Grant (168) and Paul Brown (170). With 174 wins in 18 seasons (9.7 per-year), Parcells is currently the second winningest active coach in the NFL trailing only San Diego's Marty Schottenheimer, who has posted 191 victories in 20 years (9.6 per-season).

A two-time Super Bowl winner with the New York Giants (1986 and 1990), Parcells is one of only five coaches (Dan Reeves, Don Shula, Dick Vermeil and Mike Holmgren) in NFL history to have led two separate teams to the Super Bowl. He joined that elite coaching group after taking the New England Patriots to the NFL title game following the team's AFC Championship in 1996.

One of just four active NFL head coaches to have won at least two Super Bowls (Joe Gibbs, Bill Belichick and Mike Shanahan), Parcells owns a postseason record of 11-7. He has guided 12 of his teams to winning seasons, and nine of his clubs have won at least 10 regular season games. Parcells-led teams have finished in either first or second place in their division in 10 of his 18 seasons.

All three of the previous NFL franchises that have been coached by Parcells can attest to his ability to develop a winner and maintain success. His results with the New York Giants, the New England Patriots and the New York Jets were dramatic and provided a winning foundation for the years that followed his departure.

Parcells's success has taken place in both the pre- and post free agency days of the NFL. His Giants teams were constructed in the days before the NFL's current salary cap and free agency systems were in place. His success with the Patriots occurred as the league was making the transition to free agency and the salary cap. His turnaround of the Jets took place four years into the system that is the structure for the NFL's current collective bargaining agreement.

In 1983 Parcells assumed the head coaching reins of a Giants team that had just one winning season in its previous 10 years. Parcells took over a 4-5 team from the strike-shortened 1982 season and, following a 3-12-1 campaign in 1983, enjoyed a remarkable run of 9, 10, 14, 10, 12 and 13-win seasons between 1984 and 1990. In 1984 and 1985, the Giants reached the postseason as a wild card team. Each time the eventual Super Bowl champions eliminated the vastly improved Giants from the playoffs. In 1986, however, the Giants went 14-2 and defeated the Denver

Broncos in Super Bowl XXI. After a two-year absence, the Giants returned to the playoffs in 1989 as NFC Eastern Division champions. In 1990 the team captured its second world championship with a dramatic 20-19 victory over the Buffalo Bills in Super Bowl XXV. During his time with the Giants, the club won two Super Bowls, three division titles and had only one losing season. For his accomplishments, Parcells was recognized with NFL Coach of the Year honors in 1986 and 1989.

Citing health concerns, Parcells spent two years (1991-92) as a football analyst for NBC Sports, serving in roles ranging from studio host to color commentator. He returned to coaching in 1993, taking over the struggling New England Patriots who posted a 2-14 record in 1992 and were on a four-year losing skid. Within two years, Parcells coached the team to a 10-6 mark and its first playoff game in eight years. Then, in his fourth year, the Patriots went 11-5, good for first in the AFC East and a playoff bye, setting up two home playoff wins that put them into Super Bowl XXXI against Green Bay.

After taking over the Jets in February of 1997, Parcells guided the team to a 29-19 regular season record in his three seasons. The 29 victories accounted for the fifth most wins in the NFL over that period of time. Additionally, the team won the AFC East title in 1998 and advanced to the AFC Championship Game against the eventual Super Bowl champion Denver Broncos.

As the head coach and chief football operations officer of the Jets, he took full advantage of the "new" NFL by making several crucial personnel moves: signing restricted free agent running back and perennial 1,000-yard rusher Curtis

Martin away from New England; swaying one of the top young centers in the NFL, Kevin Mawae, to join his efforts; and by signing veteran quarterback and 1998 team MVP Vinny Testaverde shortly after he had been released by Baltimore.

Under Parcells, the Jets went from 1-15 in 1996 to 9-7 in 1997 to 12-4 and the AFC Championship Game in 1998 - an improvement of 20 victories. It marked the first time in NFL history that a team had won one game and within two years was playing for a conference championship. The only other team that won one game in a season and then was able to make the playoffs in a two-year period was Vince Lombardi's Green Bay Packers, who were 1-10-1 in 1958 and rose to 7-5 in 1959 and to the NFL West title at 8-4 in 1960.

Under Parcells in 1997, the Jets came within one game of the playoffs at 9-7 and within one game of equaling their victory total for the previous three seasons (6-10 in 1994, 3-13 in '95 and 1-15 in '96). The improvement of eight games tied for the second best all-time turnaround, just behind the 1929 New York Giants and the 1963 Oakland Raiders, both of whom improved by nine wins over their preceding year. The turnaround of a plus-eight was also accomplished by Ted Marchibroda, who guided the 1992 Indianapolis squad to 9-7 after a 1-15 season in 1991.

After a collegiate playing career that included stops at Colgate and Wichita State University, he began his coaching career in 1964 as a defensive assistant at Hastings College (in Nebraska). He returned to Wichita State in 1965 as a defensive line coach before moving east to coach at Army. After four years at West Point (1966-69), Parcells left for stints at Florida State, Vanderbilt,

SECONDARY

Temple

NFL: 7th Year ★ Cowboys: 2nd Year

COWBOYS

Todd Bowles was a newcomer to the Cowboys coaching staff in 2005, but he had plenty of previous NFL experience, spending 13 seasons as a player or coach. Bowles was able to translate the knowledge he gained in eight seasons patrolling the secondary into tangible results on the sidelines as a coach as the Cowboys defense improved drastically from their 2004 rankings.

Under his guidance, the club finished the year ranked 11th in the league in pass defense (192.7 passing yards-per-game allowed) and 10th in the league in total defense, allowing 300.9 yards-per-game. A vast improvement from the defense's overall finish in 2004, 21st in pass defense (220.1 passing yards-per-game allowed) and 16th in total defense (330.4 yards-per-game). The defense snatched 15 interceptions on the season, two more than in 2004, and allowed just 18 passing touchdowns, down from the 31 allowed in 2004.

With the Browns in 2004, Bowles oversaw the secondary and helped the group finish with the fifth best pass defense in the league (181.3 passing yards-per-game allowed). Overall, the 2004 defense closed out the year ranked 15th in the NFL, matching their finish from the 2003 season. From 2001-03, Bowles served as the Browns defensive nickel package coach. Cleveland's 13 passing touchdowns allowed in 2003 tied for the fewest allowed in franchise history during a 16-game season (1988 and 1994), and the Browns 2003 defense ranked 15th in the NFL, the club's best overall defensive ranking since 1994. The 2001 Browns led the league and set a team record with 33 interceptions – with the secondary accounting for 28 of the thefts, including 10 by then rookie Anthony Henry, now the Cowboys starting right cornerback.

Prior to joining the Browns, Bowles served as the New York Jets defensive backs coach in 2000, helping the Jets pass defense improve from a 24th ranking in 1999 to sixth in 2000. They also tied for sixth in the league with 21 interceptions.

Bowles served as the defensive coordinator/defensive backs coach for Grambling State University from 1998-99. He made his coaching debut in 1997 as the defensive coordinator/secondary coach at Morehouse College. Before entering the coaching ranks, Bowles worked in the Green Bay Packers personnel department as a college scout from 1995-96.

Bowles spent eight years as a defensive back in the NFL with the Washington Redskins (1986-90, 1992-93) and San Francisco 49ers (1991). He played on the Redskins Super Bowl XXII championship team. Bowles saw action in 117 games, starting 65 consecutive games at safety at one point during his career, and totaled 570 tackles, 15 interceptions and four fumble recoveries.

Bowles and his wife, Jill, have a daughter, Sydni (4/20/93) and sons, Todd Jr. (11/22/02) and Troy (3/29/05).

NFL: 1st Year ★ Cowboys: 1st Year

COWBOYS

An eight-year veteran of linebacker play in the NFL, Vincent Brown joined the Cowboys coaching staff in 2006 as the club's inside linebackers coach. A middle linebacker in the New England Patriots 3-4 defensive scheme throughout his NFL career, Brown's playing experience will be a tremendous asset to the Cowboys young linebacking corps.

The Dallas unit will be led by returning starter Bradie James, who had a standout season in the club's first year operating in the 3-4 defense when he led the team with a career-high 109 tackles in 2005. Free agent addition Akin Ayodele will man the other inside spot, giving Brown a young but experienced duo on the inside.

In coming to Dallas, Brown is reunited with head coach Bill Parcells who was Brown's head coach the final three seasons of his NFL playing career in New England. Originally drafted by the Patriots in the second round (44th overall) of the 1988 NFL Draft. Brown spent his entire NFL career in New England (1988-95).

From 2002-05 Brown was an assistant football coach at Meadowcreek High School in Norcross, Ga. In the fall of 2005 he also served as the school's assistant athletic director. During the Cowboys 2005 training camp in Oxnard, Calif., Brown worked with the inside linebackers as part of the Jerry Jones Minority Coaching Fellowship Program.

Prior to entering the coaching ranks, Brown was in private business working with Mass Mutual in Atlanta, Ga.

After a stellar career as a linebacker at Mississippi Valley State University, Brown joined the Patriots in 1988 and went on to start 103 of his 123 career games. He finished his NFL career with 811 tackles, 16.5 sacks and 10 interceptions. For five consecutive seasons (1991-95) he led the team in tackles, including a career-high 158 in 1993, and in both 1992 and 1993 he was named the club's player of the year. During his career he recorded 10-or-more tackles in a game 30 times.

A four-year starter for the Delta Devils, Brown was a three-time All-Southwestern Athletic Conference selection and was a Division 1AA Kodak All-American choice as a senior in 1987. He established a school record for career tackles with 570 stops and a single-season mark with 173 stops as a junior. In 2002 Brown's outstanding collegiate career was recognized when he was inducted into the SWAC Hall of Fame.

Brown is a native of Atlanta, Ga., where he attended Walter F. George High School. He earned a bachelor's degree in criminal justice from MVSU in 1988.

He and wife Chandra have three children, sons Vincent Jr. (9/15/90) and Jorain (6/30/00) and a daughter, Raven (4/5/93).

★ BRUCE DEHAVEN ★

SPECIAL TEAMS

Southwestern College (Kan.)

NFL: 20th Year ★ Cowboys: 4th Year

COWBOYS

Bruce DeHaven joined the Cowboys coaching staff in 2003, bringing 16 years of NFL experience and a reputation as one of the league's top special teams coaches to Dallas. In three seasons with the Cowboys, DeHaven's units have shown play making ability and steady improvement.

Rookie Tyson Thompson led the way for the 2005 special teams units – establishing club records for kickoff returns (57) and kickoff return yardage (1,399). As a team Dallas finished eighth in the NFL in kickoff return average (23.8 yds/return) and on the coverage side was sixth in the league in opponents' average starting field position. In 2004, the Cowboys kickoff coverage unit finished first in the NFL by limiting opponents to an average of 17.5 yards-per-return. In the last 10 games of the season – covering a span of 42 kickoffs – the Dallas unit did not allow a kickoff return of more than 26 yards. On the return side, rookie punt returner Lance Frazier ended the year fifth in the NFC (first among NFC rookies) in punt return average (9.5).

There were a number of outstanding individual performances in 2003. DeHaven's first season in Dallas, with lineman Flozell Adams setting a team record by blocking three extra point attempts, kicker Billy Cundiff tying the NFL record for field goals in a game with seven three-pointers in Dallas's overtime win at the N.Y. Giants (9/15), and Randal Williams returning an on-side kick attempt 38 yards for a touchdown to open the Philadelphia game (10/2).

Under DeHaven's guidance, the special teams in Buffalo (1987-99) and San Francisco (2000-02) thrived and were considered some of the most consistent units in the NFL. During DeHaven's three years with San Francisco, the 49ers special teams shined. In 2002, return man Jimmy Williams led the NFL with a 16.8-yard punt return average. This performance came on the heels of a 2001 season that saw Vinny Sutherland break the team record for most kick return yards by a rookie with 1,140.

Prior to joining the 49ers, DeHaven spent 13 seasons with the Buffalo Bills. During his tenure in Buffalo, the club made four consecutive Super Bowl appearances, won six AFC East championships and appeared in 20 playoff games. In those 13 years, DeHaven helped develop two of the greatest special teams players in NFL history: Mike Pike and Steve Tasker. Under DeHaven's tutelage, Tasker was invited to seven Pro Bowls as the AFC's Special Teams Player and was voted the 1993 Pro Bowl MVP. In 1998, kicker Steve Christie set the Bills single-season club-records for points (140) and field goals (33) and became the franchise's all-time leading scorer. In 1996, The Dallas Morning News, in a ranking of the 19 most important statistical categories, named the Bills special teams unit the best in the NFL. His 1991 punt coverage unit led the NFL in fewest punt return yards allowed with 53, the lowest total since the NFL changed the rules allowing only the ends to release on punt coverage when the ball is snapped. DeHaven also guided the Bills kickoff coverage unit to the top NFL ranking four consecutive years (1987-90).

Prior to joining the Bills staff in 1987, DeHaven spent three seasons in different coaching capacities in the USFL. He was the running backs and special teams coach with the Orlando Renegades (1985), special teams coach and offensive line coach for the Pittsburgh Maulers (1984) and special teams and assistant offensive line coach with the New Jersey Generals (1983).

DeHaven began his collegiate coaching career at Kansas (1979-81), working with the defensive backs and offensive line, as well as heading up recruiting. He served as offensive line coach and recruiting coordinator at New Mexico State in 1982 before breaking into the pro ranks.

Before joining the college ranks, DeHaven spent nine years as a high school coach. As an assistant at Wichita, Kan., Southeast High School during part of that time, he helped lead the school to three consecutive Kansas state football championships.

DeHaven was born in Trousdale, Kan. (9/6/48). He played eight-man football at Belpre-Trousdale, Kan., High School. A graduate of Southwestern College in Kansas with a degree in history and political science, DeHaven was a basketball standout, leading the team in scoring two consecutive years. He also participated in track and field. He and his wife, Kathy, have a son Tobin Scott (3/17/97) and daughter AnnieMaude (3/23/99).

Bruce DeHaven – Born September 6, 1948, Trousdale, Kan. Attended Southwestern College (Kan.) but did not play football. College coach: Kansas 1979-81, New Mexico State 1982. Pro coach: New Jersey Generals (USFL) 1983, Pittsburgh Maulers (USFL) 1984, Orlando Renegades (USFL) 1985, Buffalo Bills 1987-99, San Francisco 49ers 2000-02, Dallas Cowboys 2003-05.

TODD HALEY

PASSING GAME COORDINATOR/WIDE RECEIVERS

University of North Florida

NFL: 10th Year ★ Cowboys: 3rd Year

COWBOYS

A coaching veteran of nine NFL seasons, Todd Haley joined the Cowboys as wide receivers coach in 2004 after three years in the same capacity with the Chicago Bears.

In 2005, Dallas finished the year as one of only two teams (St. Louis) in the league with a pair of receivers who each had over 500 receptions and 7,500 receiving yards in veterans Keyshawn Johnson and Terry Glenn. Glenn tied for the league lead in yards-per-catch with an average of 18.3 yards and recorded the first 1,000-yard receiving season for the Cowboys since 1999 with his 1,136 yards and eight touchdowns. Johnson led the team in receptions with 71 and was second in touchdowns with six. Patrick Crayton, the third receiver, looked to pick up where he left off in 2004, but a mid-season ankle injury forced him to miss five games, and he never really returned to 100 percent, finishing the year with 22 catches for 341 yards and two scores. Dallas was the only NFL team in 2005 to produce three players who each had at least 62 receptions as tight end Jason Witten (66 receptions) joined Glenn (62) and Johnson (71).

In his first year in Dallas (2004), Haley acquired a seasoned pair of receivers – Johnson and Glenn – that had combined for 1,134 receptions, 14,176 receiving yards and 77 touchdown receptions. A mid-season injury to Glenn though forced Haley to re-shuffle the Cowboys receiving deck and accelerate the development of a group of newcomers. Johnson finished the 2004 season with 70 catches for a team-high 981 yards and tied for the team lead in touchdown catches with six. Prior to his season ending foot injury, Glenn was averaging 16.7 yards-per-catch on 24 receptions (400 yards) with a pair of scores.

A pair of rookies – Crayton and Terrance Copper – were the biggest recipients of Haley's teaching as both surfaced as productive late season additions. Crayton finished with 12 receptions for 162 yards, including the game-winning, last-minute 39-yard scoring strike against Washington in December.

Despite working with three different starting quarterbacks with the Bears in 2003, three of Haley's charges topped the 40-catch mark for the season, with Marty Booker leading the club with 52 receptions and 715 receiving yards. Dez White was second on the team with 49 receptions for 583 yards and David Terrell recorded a career-high 43 catches for 361 yards.

In 2002, Haley oversaw the continued growth of Booker as he made huge strides following an outstanding 2001 season. Booker capped his 2002 campaign by becoming the first Bears Pro Bowl selection at wide receiver since 1971 and only the fourth receiver in franchise history to earn the recognition. Booker became just the second Bears receiver to record back-to-back 1,000-yard seasons with a career-best 1,189 yards and a team-leading six touchdowns while just missing his second consecutive season of 100-or-more catches (97). His two-year total of 197 receptions in 2001-02 was tops in the NFC. White also took advantage of Haley's mentorship, recording his first 100-yard receiving game and establishing career bests with 51 receptions for 656 yards and four touchdowns.

In Haley's first season with the Bears, Booker became the first receiver in team history to catch 100 passes in a season and the eighth receiver in Bears history to surpass 1,000 receiving yards in a season with 1,071. He also posted a career-best and team-high eight touchdown catches.

Haley joined the Bears after spending six seasons with the New York Jets (1995-2000). In 1999-2000, he mentored the Jets wide receivers. In his first season with the group, Haley helped guide Keyshawn Johnson to his second consecutive Pro Bowl appearance. Johnson finished the season with 89 receptions, 1,170 receiving yards and eight touchdowns, each figure stands as the second best single-season mark of Johnson's career and the second most catches in a season in club history. Prior to taking over wide receiver duties, Haley worked as an assistant to offensive coordinator Charlie Weis (1997-98) and helped the Jets to two 1,000-yard receivers in 1998 and Johnson's first Pro Bowl. Haley began his career with the Jets as an assistant in the scouting department in 1995, where he scouted regionally for the team and assisted in player evaluations.

Haley attended the University of Florida and the University of Miami before earning a bachelor's degree in communications from the University of North Florida in 1991.

The son of Dick Haley, the former Director of Player Personnel for the Pittsburgh Steelers (1971-90) and New York Jets (1991-2002), Haley was born on Feb. 28, 1967 in Atlanta, Ga. A former ballboy for the Super Bowl Championship Pittsburgh Steelers teams of the 1970s, Haley was a multi-sport standout at Upper St. Clair High School in Pittsburgh.

Haley and his wife, Chrissy, have four daughters: Taylor (11/13/96), Peyton (7/24/00), Kady (1/3/05) and Ella (3/14/06).

Todd Haley – Born February 28, 1967, Atlanta, Ga. Attended Florida and Miami, Fla. Pro coach: New York Jets 1997-2000, Chicago Bears 2001-03, Dallas Cowboys 2004-05.

NFL: 10th Year ★ Cowboys: 10th Year

COWBOYS

Joe Juraszek (pronounced jer-AH-sick) joined the Cowboys staff as the strength and conditioning coach in February, 1997 and implemented a hands-on approach that stresses strength development, cardiovascular conditioning, flexibility and speed work. His ability to tailor workout programs to individual player needs based on the player's input and workout history has earned him the respect and admiration of the players and the coaching staff.

The rapport Juraszek has developed with the players is evident in the number of participants in his offseason conditioning program each spring. The impact of this intensive program can be seen on the field with the successes of seasoned veterans and in the continued development and contributions from younger players like Terence Newman, Jason Witten, DeMarcus Ware and Marcus Spears. Along with overseeing the strength and conditioning program for the team, Juraszek works with the Cowboys medical staff implementing rehabilitation programs for injured players. His work within these rehab programs has allowed players to return to the field quickly and, usually, stronger. His success can be seen directly in the 2005 performance of running back Julius Jones and wide receiver Patrick Crayton, who overcame serious injuries during the season and returned to make a major contributions. During the 2006 offseason he worked closely with Flozell Adams, Al Singleton and Kevin Burnett, to have them healthy and ready to go for September.

Juraszek came to Dallas after serving as the University of Oklahoma's strength coach from 1993-96. He joined the Sooners after serving as the strength coach at Texas Tech University from 1987-92. He was a graduate assistant and then a full-time assistant strength coach for Oklahoma from 1981-86.

He attended the University of New Mexico from 1976-81, where he played linebacker and defensive end for the Lobos while earning bachelor's degrees in Physical Education/Health and Economics. He added a master's degree while serving as a graduate assistant strength coach at Oklahoma.

In 2001, Juraszek was a panel member for the "Get & Stay Fit" Family First Town Meeting hosted by WFAA-TV, Dallas's ABC affiliate. He joined Dr. Kenneth Cooper, founder and president of the Cooper Fitness Center and Clinic in Dallas, and Dr. Joel Steinberg, Medical Director of Children's Medical Center of Dallas, in providing advice on exercise training, preventative health tips and the latest facts on dieting.

A native of Chicago, Ill. (6/8/58), Juraszek and his wife, Camille, have a daughter, Nikki Jo (7/25/90), and a son, J.D. (9/9/92).

NFL: 1st Year ★ Cowboys: 1st Year

COWBOYS

Tight ends coach Freddie Kitchens is a newcomer to the Dallas offensive coaching staff in 2006, but he arrives with seven years of collegiate coaching experience under his belt following a very successful stint as a quarterback at Alabama. In 10 years as a player and coach at the college level, Kitchens has been a part of teams that captured three conference titles and played in seven bowl games.

Kitchens came to Dallas after a two-year stint at Mississippi State University where he coached running backs (2005) and tight ends (2004). Last season, he guided Jerious Norwood, a 2006 third-round NFL Draft choice of the Atlanta Falcons, to a 1,180-yard season, becoming just the second runner to post back-to-back 1,000-yard rushing seasons in school history. Norwood finished his Bulldogs career with a school-record 3,222 career rushing yards. In his first season on the staff, Kitchens helped implement the West Coast offense that gained tight end Eric Butler Freshman All-SEC recognition while setting a Mississippi State single-season record with four touchdown receptions from his tight end position.

From 2001 to 2003, he served as the running backs coach at the University of North Texas. Kitchens contributed to Mean Green clubs that won three straight Sun Belt Conference titles. In 2003, Patrick Cobbs gained 1,570 yards rushing and scored 17 touchdowns, earning the Sun Belt Conference Offensive Player of the Year award.

During the previous two seasons, Kitchens developed Kevin Galbreath into the first back in school history to rush for back-to-back 1,000-yard seasons. The 2,372 yards gained on the ground in 2002 were the most at North Texas since 1959.

Kitchens joined the North Texas staff after one season as a graduate assistant at Louisiana State University where he served on Nick Saban's first Tiger staff in 2000 managing the offensive scout team and helping with special teams. That group went 9-4, including a 28-14 win over Georgia Tech in the Peach Bowl. After a one-year stint playing professionally in Italy in the spring of 1999, he began his coaching career as an assistant at Glenville State College in West Virginia that fall, coaching both running backs and tight ends.

A three-year starter at quarterback for the University of Alabama from 1995-97, Kitchens finished an accomplished playing career with 4,668 yards and 30 touchdown passes for the Crimson Tide. He ranked third in Alabama history in career attempts, fourth in career passing yards and fifth in career completions upon his departure. Alabama went 22-13 during those three seasons and went to the 1993 Gator Bowl, 1994 Citrus Bowl and the 1996 Outback Bowl.

A native of Gadsden, Ala., Kitchens earned high school All-America honors and was named "Mr. Football" in the state of Alabama his senior season. He and his wife, Ginger, have two daughters Bennett (10/14/03) and Camden (1/4/05).

Freddie Kitchens – Born November 29, 1974, Gadsden, Ala. Quarterback Alabama 1994-97. College coach: Glenville State College 1999, Louisiana State 2000, University of North Texas 2001-03, Mississippi State 2004-05. Pro coach: Joined Dallas Cowboys in 2006.

★ DAVID LEE ★OFFENSIVE QUALITY CONTROL

Vanderbilt

NFL: 4th Year ★ Cowboys: 4th Year

COWBOYS

David Lee enters into his fourth season with the Cowboys as an offensive assistant, overseeing the team's quality control efforts and working closely with the quarterbacks. He has helped guide the fortunes of three different starting quarterbacks in each of his three previous seasons: Quincy Carter, Vinny Testaverde and Drew Bledsoe. Each player threw for over 3,000 yards, including Bledsoe's 3,639 last season – the second best total in club history.

In 2005, Lee worked with quarterback Drew Bledsoe, who completed 300-of-499 passes for 3,639 yards and 23 touchdowns – the most since Troy Aikman threw 23 in 1992. Bledsoe finished the season with a passer rating of 83.7 which was the third best of his 13-year career. He continued to work with young back-up quarterbacks Tony Romo, who won the number two spot after a training camp battle with Drew Henson.

In 2004, Vinny Testaverde stepped into the starting signal caller role and finished the year with the third most passing yards (3,532) in club history. Lee's continual work with the mechanics of Tony Romo and Drew Henson had both prepared to serve as the team's second quarterback throughout the season.

His work with Quincy Carter in 2003 helped the Cowboys offense finish 15th overall in the NFL – a huge improvement from the 31st spot the club held in 2002 – while making their first playoff appearance since the 1999 season.

Lee came to Dallas with 28 years of coaching experience at the collegiate level, including five as a head coach (1989-93 at Texas El Paso) and eight as an offensive coordinator. During his career, nine of his former quarterbacks were drafted or signed as free agents in the NFL following their collegiate careers.

Prior to arriving in Dallas, Lee served as the quarterbacks coach at the University of Arkansas for two seasons, helping the Razorbacks to the 2002 Southeastern Conference Western Division title. In 2002, his work with Matt Jones saw the Arkansas quarterback throw for 1,413 yards and 16 touchdowns, the then fourth highest season total in Arkansas history. Jones – a 2005 first round draft choice of the Jacksonville Jaguars – also finished his career at Arkansas atop the SEC's all-time rushing list for quarterbacks.

Before moving to Arkansas, Lee served seven seasons at Rice University. In his tenure at Rice as offensive coordinator and quarterbacks coach, the Owls racked up six of the school's top rushing totals. Rice ranked in the top 10 nationally in rushing three times during his stay. He also helped lead the Owls to a share of the Southwest Conference title in 1994 and their first win over Texas since 1965.

Lee was the head coach at Texas El Paso from 1989-93. He moved to UTEP after his first stint at the University of Arkansas, where he served as quarterbacks coach. Lee was part of Razorback teams that sported a 45-15-1 record and earned five straight bowl appearances. Included in that run was the 1986 season in which Arkansas quarterbacks threw just two interceptions (a SWC record) while helping the Hogs to a 10-2 record and an Orange Bowl appearance. Promoted to offensive coordinator in 1988, Lee helped engineer the Hogs first Southwest Conference title in nine years with an offensive unit that featured a pair of All-SWC sophomores, quarterback Quinn Grovey and full-back Barry Foster.

Lee began his coaching career at Tennessee-Martin (1975-76), where he tutored quarterbacks and receivers. After spending one season at Vanderbilt (1977) as quarterbacks coach, Lee moved to Ole Miss (1978-82) where he was in charge of the Rebels quarterbacks. In 1983, Lee was the offensive coordinator and quarterbacks coach at New Mexico.

A three-year letterman at Vanderbilt, Lee served as team captain and was named the team's most valuable player in 1974 after quarterbacking the Commodores to a 7-3-2 record, including a 24-10 upset over fifth-ranked Florida. It was Vanderbilt's first win over the Gators in 15 years. Lee went on to lead the SEC in passing and guide his team to a 6-6 tie against Texas Tech in the Peach Bowl. Lee earned a bachelor's degree in history from Vanderbilt in 1975.

Born on July 2, 1953, in Cape Girardeau, Mo., Lee spent the first 12 years of his childhood in Dexter, Mo. He attended Woodham High School in Pensacola, Fla., where he graduated in 1971. Lee and his wife, Lynne, have four children – daughters Dana (4/3/79) and Shannon (9/16/84), and sons Brian (3/23/77) and Jordan (2/5/86).

ANTHONY LYNN

RUNNING BACKS

Texas Tech

NFL: 7th Year ★ Cowboys: 2nd Year

COWBOYS

Entering his second season as the Cowboys running backs coach is Anthony Lynn, who continues to guide the fortunes of the Cowboys stable of young running backs. Lynn brought five years of NFL coaching experience and seven years of NFL playing experience to Dallas when he joined the club in 2005.

In his first season in Dallas, Lynn oversaw the continued emergence of Julius Jones, who rushed for 993 yards – including a single-game career-high 194 yards at Carolina in December – in his second professional season despite missing three games with a high ankle sprain. In his place, rookie Marion Barber emerged as a solid ground threat with 538 yards – good for fifth in the NFL among rookies in 2005 – and a team-high tying five touchdowns.

Lynn came to Dallas after two seasons (2003-04) as the Jacksonville Jaguars running backs coach. Under his guidance, Fred Taylor recorded two of the top four single-season rushing performances in Jaguars history. After rushing for a team record 1,572 yards in 2003, Taylor accumulated 1,224 yards in 2004. He also caught 84 passes during that two-year span. In 2003, Lynn's three backs each averaged more than four yards-per-carry.

Prior to joining the Jaguars, Lynn spent three seasons (2000-02) with the Denver Broncos as an offensive assistant and assistant special teams coach. The Broncos kickoff coverage units were some of the best in the AFC during Lynn's time with the team – finishing first in the conference in opponents' average drive start in 2000 (26.1), third in 2001 (26.8) and third in 2002 (27.8).

Lynn joined the Denver coaching staff in August of 2000 after his playing career was cut short because of repeated occurrences of neck stingers. Prior to his move to the coaching ranks, he spent three seasons (1997-99) with the Broncos as an H-back/special teams standout and helped Denver claim back-to-back Super Bowl championships following the 1997 and 1998 seasons. He spent the 1995-96 seasons with the San Francisco 49ers. He went to his first NFL training camp in 1992 with the N.Y. Giants, but was released prior to the start of the season. He made the 1993 Broncos roster and saw action in 13 games, mostly on special teams. He suffered a broken leg prior to the 1994 season and spent the year on the Broncos injured reserve list. During his seven-year playing career, Lynn appeared in 83 games and rushed for 177 yards on 28 carries and caught three passes for 35 yards.

Lynn was a standout running back for Texas Tech University, accumulating 1,911 yards and 17 touchdowns on 481 carries during his collegiate career. As a junior, he earned All-Southwest Conference honors after rushing for 884 yards and eight scores on 224 carries. He was then slowed as a senior by a knee injury.

Born Dec. 21, 1968 in McKinney, Texas, Lynn played his prep football at nearby Celina, Texas, High School. Lynn and his wife, Cynda, have two children - D'Anton (10/24/89) and Danielle (12/31/93).

Anthony Lynn - Born December 21, 1968, McKinney, Texas. Running back Texas Tech 1988-91. Pro: running back Denver Broncos (1993-94, 1997-99), San Francisco 49ers (1995-96). Pro coach: Denver Broncos 2000-02, Jacksonville Jaguars 2003-04, Dallas Cowboys 2005.

COWBOYS

Mike MacIntyre enters his fourth year as an NFL coach and will be in charge of the Cowboys safeties in 2006. He spent the three previous seasons assisting with the Dallas secondary, a unit that improved from 21st in the NFL in pass defense in 2004 to 10th in 2005.

The leader in the secondary, strong safety Roy Williams earned his third straight Pro Bowl after finishing second on the team in tackles (82) and interceptions (three) and tying for the team lead with three forced fumbles. Cornerback Terence Newman led the team in passes defended with a career-high, single-season total of 15. His three interceptions tied for second on the team with newcomer cornerback Anthony Henry. Another new face, cornerback Aaron Glenn, led the team with four interceptions and started six games in place of the injured Henry. MacIntyre also worked in first-time starter Keith Davis at free safety, and he went on to finish fourth on the team with 68 tackles.

Despite the preseason loss of veteran safety Darren Woodson in 2004 and a succession of injuries at the right cornerback position, third-year safety Williams earned his second straight Pro Bowl selection while leading a starting unit that averaged just 2.25 years of NFL experience by season's end. Williams was the team's second leading tackler with 106 stops while Newman led the Cowboys in interceptions (four) for the second straight year. Rookie corner Lance Frazier started the season's final eight games and intercepted two passes. Frazier was one of five different Dallas players to start at the cornerback position opposite Newman in 2004.

In his rookie NFL coaching season of 2003, MacIntyre assisted Mike Zimmer in directing another young group of players to the top of the league's pass defense rankings, an accomplishment achieved only two previous times in franchise history. Dallas's 2003 secondary helped the team surrender only 164.4 passing yards-per-game, the franchise's second lowest average since 1978. In the process, Williams earned his first Pro Bowl selection and All-Pro honors after finishing fourth on the team with 86 tackles. Woodson finished the year third on the squad with 99 tackles, while Newman, who became just the third rookie in club history to open the season as a starting cornerback, led the team in interceptions (four) while finishing second in passes defended (14).

Prior to joining the Cowboys, MacIntyre spent four seasons (1999-2002) at the University of Mississippi as the Rebels wide receivers coach (1999-2000) and secondary coach (2001-02). He was also the Rebels recruiting coordinator. During his first season working with the secondary, Ole Miss ranked first in the SEC and fifth in the nation in pass defense, giving up just 161.3 yards-per-game.

MacIntyre coached two of the top receivers - Cory Peterson and Grant Heard - in Ole Miss history during his first two seasons with the Rebels. In the 1999 campaign, Peterson caught 46 passes to finish his career second on Mississippi's all-time receptions list. The following year, Heard not only passed Peterson, but also became the school's all-time receptions leader, finishing his collegiate career with 142 receptions for 2,029 yards (second best mark in school history) and a school record 16 touchdowns.

MacIntyre joined the Rebels staff after two seasons coaching defensive backs at Temple University (1997-98). Prior to that, he was at the University of Tennessee-Martin, where he served as co-defensive coordinator from 1993-95 and defensive coordinator in 1996. MacIntyre added recruiting coordinator duties in 1994 and became the assistant head coach in 1995. While with UT-Martin, MacIntyre served as a guest defensive backs coach with the Memphis Mad Dogs (1995) and with the Winnipeg Blue Bombers (1996) of the Canadian Football League.

MacIntyre began his coaching career as a graduate assistant at Georgia (1990-91), working with the Bulldogs secondary. He then spent one year as the defensive coordinator at Davidson College (1992). During his time at Davidson, MacIntyre also served as a guest summer coach with the Deggendorf Blackhawks in Deggendorf, Germany in the summers of 1992 and 1993.

A 1989 graduate of Georgia Tech with a bachelor's degree in business management, MacIntyre played two seasons (1986-88) at free safety and punt returner for the Yellow Jackets. Prior to attending Georgia Tech, MacIntyre played for two years at Vanderbilt (1984-85).

MacIntyre earned his master's degree in education with an emphasis on sports management from the University of Georgia in 1991.

MacIntyre grew up around the game of football as his father, George, served as the defensive coordinator at Ole Miss in 1978, before taking over as Vanderbilt's head coach from 1979-85.

Born March 14, 1965, in Miami, Fla., MacIntyre starred at Brentwood Academy in Nashville, Tenn. He and his wife, Trisha, have three children, daughter Jennifer (2/23/92) and sons Jay Michael (4/9/95) and Jonston (11/22/98).

COWBOYS

A 17-year NFL coaching veteran, Chris Palmer begins his first season in Dallas where he is reunited with head coach Bill Parcells and quarterback Drew Bledsoe. Palmer was an assistant coach at New England for Parcells's four-year run with the Patriots. In their final season in New England (1996), Palmer coached the quarterbacks and helped Bledsoe guide New England to the AFC title and a berth in Super Bowl XXXI.

Palmer comes to Dallas after serving as the Houston Texans offensive coordinator since the team's inception in 2001. In Houston, he was charged with the task of tutoring quarterback David Carr, the Texans first-ever draft selection prior to the club's inaugural season of 2002. By year three of Carr's development (2004) with the expansion club, the quarterback produced his finest season, by compiling career-high figures for attempts (466), completions (285), percentage (61.2%), yards (3,531), touchdowns (16) and quarterback rating (83.5). During that same season, Texans wide receiver Andre Johnson became the club's first 1,000-yard receiver (1,142 yards on 79 catches), while running back Domanick Davis collected club records for rushing yards (1,188) and rushing touchdowns (13) in a single season.

Prior to his stint with the Texans, Palmer spent two seasons as head coach of the expansion Cleveland Browns, leading Cleveland to a 2-14 mark in its inaugural season and an injury-ravaged club to a 3-13 record in 2000.

Palmer spent the 1997 and 1998 seasons as the offensive coordinator on Tom Coughlin's staff in Jacksonville. There he helped guide the Jaguars to a pair of top 10 NFL rankings in total offense and consecutive playoff appearances, including the 1998 AFC Central Division Championship. In 1997, the Jags ranked seventh in the NFL in total offense with an average of 339.0 yards-per-game while also ranking fourth in the NFL in passing (231.5). The 1998 team set a Jacksonville club record for rushing yards (2,102) while ranking 10th in the NFL in total offense (325.9) and fifth in rushing (131.4).

In his two seasons in Jacksonville, Palmer played a pivotal role in the rise to prominence of Jaguars quarterback Mark Brunell. In 1997, Brunell led the AFC with a 91.2 passer rating and made his first trip to the Pro Bowl. Palmer's influence on Jacksonville's other young signal-callers was also evident as five Jaguars quarterbacks (Brunell, Rob Johnson, Steve Matthews, Jamie Martin and Jonathan Quinn) won at least one game for Jacksonville under Palmer's guidance between 1997 and 1998. Brunell earned two of his three Pro Bowl selections while working with Palmer (1987-88), and wide receiver Jimmy Smith made the trip to Hawaii after catching 78 passes for 1,182 yards and a career-high eight touchdowns in 1998.

In his first three seasons under Parcells in New England (1993-95), Palmer coached wide receivers. In 1994, the team compiled a 10-6 record and made its first playoff appearance in seven years. Four different Patriot players had at least 58 receptions, and Bledsoe threw for a club record 4,555 yards. In 1996, Palmer moved over to the quarterback position, and Bledsoe responded by leading the NFL in passing attempts (623) and completions (323) and finishing third in passing yards (4,086) and touchdowns (27). The Patriots defeated Jacksonville in the 1996 AFC Championship Game to advance to the Super Bowl for the first time in 11 years, and Bledsoe made his second Pro Bowl appearance.

While working with Palmer in New England, Bledsoe accomplished his career-best single-season marks for passing yardage (4,555 in 1994) and completions (373 in 1996) while turning in his second best career season for touchdown passes with 27 in 1996.

Palmer's first NFL coaching experience came with the Houston Oilers, where he was the wide receivers coach from 1990-92 under Jack Pardee. During Palmer's three-year stay in Houston, the Run 'N Shoot Oilers boasted the top-ranked passing offense in the NFL. Four Oilers wide receivers - Curtis Duncan, Ernest Givins (twice), Drew Hill and Haywood Jeffires (twice) - made the Pro Bowl during Palmer's three seasons in Houston.

Palmer was the head coach at Boston University from 1988-89. He was also the head coach at the University of New Haven in 1986 and 1987, where the Chargers posted consecutive 8-2 records and set more than 50 school records. Current Cowboys offensive line coach and running game coordinator Tony Sparano worked as an assistant to Palmer at both New Haven (1986-87) and Boston (1988-89).

Palmer's first professional coaching experience came in 1983 when he was the offensive line coach for the Montreal Concordes in the Canadian Football League. In 1984, he coached receivers for the USFL's New Jersey Generals, and the following season he was promoted to quarterbacks coach and offensive coordinator. That year, Palmer's offense featured quarterbacks Doug Flutie and Brian Sipe and running back Herschel Walker, who set a professional football single-season rushing record with 2,411 yards.

Palmer launched his coaching career as an assistant at the University of Connecticut in 1972, coaching the defensive line and wide receivers. In 1975, he moved to Lehigh as the wide receivers coach. The following season he was named the offensive coordinator at Colgate, where he coached for seven years (1976-82). In 1977, the Red Raiders led the nation in offense, averaging 486 yards-per-game.

Palmer played quarterback for Southern Connecticut State from 1968-71 and was selected to the New Haven Gridiron Club following his senior season. He earned both his bachelor's and master's degrees at SCSU, where he was recently inducted into the school's athletic hall of fame. He is also a member of the hall of fame at the University of New Haven and Immaculate High School.

A native of Brewster, N.Y., Palmer (9/23/49) and his wife, Donna, have two children, Mark and Kristin, and one granddaughter, Annette Grace.

COWBOYS

Following a highly successful collegiate head coaching career, Paul Pasqualoni joined the NFL and the Dallas Cowboys staff in 2005. After guiding the Dallas tight ends in his first pro season, Pasqualoni has made the switch to the defensive side of the ball where he will handle the linebackers for Bill Parcells in 2006.

In guiding the Cowboys tight ends in 2005, Pasqualoni played a key role in the continued development of Jason Witten as one of the NFL's premier players at the position.

As a third-year pro, Witten earned his second consecutive trip to the Pro Bowl after catching 66 passes for 757 yards and six touchdowns. He ranked second on the team in receptions and was third among NFC tight ends in catches (sixth in the NFL). Witten was fourth among NFC tight ends (seventh in the NFL) in receiving yardage and his 66 receptions enabled him to become just the second Dallas tight end to record back-to-back 60-catch seasons, joining Doug Cosbie

Pasqualoni came to Dallas with 29 years of collegiate coaching experience, including 19 as a head coach. Most recently, he served a 14-year stint as the head coach at Syracuse University (1991-2004), where he compiled a 107-59-1 record (.644) and landed bowl invitations following nine of his 14 seasons, posting victories in six of those postseason appearances. The Orangemen captured three straight Big East Conference titles from 1996 to 1998 and were conference co-champions in 2004. Seven of his clubs finished the season ranked in the Top 25. Pasqualoni's most successful Syracuse seasons came in 1991 - when his squad went 10-2, including a win over Ohio State in the Hall of Fame Bowl, and finished the season 11th in the final AP poll - and 1992 - when the Orangemen closed the regular season with a 9-2 record, then defeated Colorado in the Fiesta Bowl to finish sixth in the final AP poll.

Under Pasqualoni's tutelage, the Orangemen developed a solid contingent of players, including 17 selections in the first three rounds of the NFL Draft. The program sent future Pro Bowl players such as Olindo Mare, Marvin Harrison, Donovan McNabb, Dwight Freeney and Keith Bulluck to the pros. Overall, Syracuse produced at least two NFL draft selections in 11 of Pasqualoni's 14 years as head coach.

Prior to taking over as head coach at Syracuse in 1991, Pasqualoni was the school's linebackers coach from 1987 to 1990, thus helping the Orangemen to a winning record in 16 of the 18 years and 13 bowl games during the time he was associated with the university.

He was the head coach/athletic director at Western Connecticut State from 1982-86, compiling a 34-17 record. His 1985 squad went 10-2, won the New England Football Conference championship and earned a spot in the NCAA Division III playoffs. In 2001 Pasqualoni's accomplishments at Western Connecticut were recognized with his enshrinement into the school's Hall of Fame as part of its inaugural class.

Pasqualoni began his coaching career at his alma mater, Cheshire, Conn., High School (1972-75). His first collegiate job was as an assistant at Southern Connecticut in 1976. In 1980, Pasqualoni was elevated to defensive coordinator. After serving two seasons in that capacity, he left for Western Connecticut.

Pasqualoni was a 1972 graduate of Penn State, where he lettered as a linebacker after walking on to the football team and earned a bachelor's degree in health and physical education. He later went on to earn a master's of science degree in physical education and human performance at Southern Connecticut State.

Born on Aug. 16, 1949, Pasqualoni lettered in football and basketball at Cheshire High School in Connecticut and also earned a letter in football at Bordentown Military Institute. He and his wife, Jill, have two sons, Dante (1/17/99) and Tito (3/3/00), and a daughter, Cami (3/31/02).

COWBOYS

Kacy Rodgers moved from the college coaching ranks to professional football in 2003, and he spent his first two years in the league tutoring the Cowboys defensive tackles in the 4-3 scheme. In 2005, Rodgers took on the additional responsibilities of coaching the entire defensive line as the club made the switch to the 3-4.

In molding a group that was an even mix of veterans and youngsters, Rodgers' defensive line contributed to a team sack total of 37, the Cowboys highest number since 1997. Veterans Greg Ellis (eight sacks) and La'Roi Glover (three) were joined by rookie end Chris Canty (2.5) in pacing the team's sack leaders. Canty was the leading tackler on the defensive line (43 stops), and he was followed by veteran nose man Jason Ferguson (42) and fellow rookie end Marcus Spears (35). The Dallas front helped the Cowboys achieve an overall defensive ranking of 10th in the NFL. Glover earned his sixth Pro Bowl selection in 2005, and younger players such as Canty, Spears, defensive tackle Thomas Johnson and end Jay Ratliff brightened the Cowboys defensive line prospects for the future.

While tutoring the Cowboys defensive tackles in 2003 and 2004, Rodgers worked with one of the NFL's best in Glover, who earned his fourth and fifth Pro Bowl trips. In 2004 Glover had the team's second-highest sack total (seven) – a figure that was his best since coming to Dallas – while finishing second on the team in pressures. Leonardo Carson lined up at the other starting tackle position and turned in career-high numbers for tackles (55) and tackles for loss (five).

In 2003, Rodgers' work with the defensive tackles helped the Cowboys defense post statistics that had not been achieved in many years as the club surrendered only 1,425 rushing yards on the season, the lowest total by a Cowboys defense since 1992. The Cowboys defensive tackles helped the club register 32 sacks. Glover earned his fourth consecutive Pro Bowl selection after leading the team in pressures, finishing second in sacks and seventh in tackles.

Rodgers was the defensive line coach at the University of Arkansas in 2002, helping the Razorbacks to a 9-5 record, the Western Division title of the Southeastern Conference, a berth against Georgia in the SEC title game and an appearance in the Music City Bowl. The Hogs defense ranked second in the SEC, 18th in the nation, against the run, and in posting two shut-outs, finished the season ranked 26th in the nation in points allowed.

Prior to joining the staff at Arkansas, Rodgers was the defensive line coach at Middle Tennessee State (1999-2001). He also held the duties of assistant head coach for the final two years of that assignment. In his last season with the Blue Raiders, Middle Tennessee State went 8-3 and was co-champion of the Sun Belt Conference. Defensively, the school tied for first in the conference with 27 sacks, and was second in scoring.

Rodgers began his coaching career as defensive line coach at Tennessee-Martin in 1994. After three years in that position, he added the title of assistant head coach in his final year at UT-Martin (1997). He then spent a year as the defensive line coach at Louisiana-Monroe (1998) before moving to Middle Tennessee.

Rodgers was a four-year letterman at Tennessee (1988-91) and an honorable mention All-Southeastern Conference selection. As a linebacker and defensive end, he contributed to Volunteer teams that won the 1990 and 1991 SEC Championship and played in three New Year's Day bowl games – the 1990 Cotton Bowl, the 1991 Sugar Bowl and the 1992 Fiesta Bowl, winning both the Cotton and Sugar Bowl games. The 1989 Vols squad posted an 11-1 record and finished the year ranked fifth in the country.

Following his collegiate career, Rodgers signed a free agent contract with the Pittsburgh Steelers in 1992 and played with the Shreveport Pirates of the Canadian Football League in 1994. In between, he returned to Knoxville to complete his degree in political science in 1993.

Rodgers was born on June 24, 1969 in Humboldt, Tenn. and starred at Humboldt High School. He and his wife, Marcella, have a son, Kacy II (4/2/92).

COWBOYS

After distinguishing himself as a productive taskmaster in tutoring the Dallas tight ends during his first two seasons under Bill Parcells, Tony Sparano took charge of the Cowboys offensive line and became the running game coordinator in 2005. An accomplished offensive line coach for several years in the collegiate ranks – and for one previous NFL season with the Cleveland Browns – Sparano will continue to shape a Dallas line that is a healthy mix of proven veterans and developing young players.

The 2005 Dallas line allowed Drew Bledsoe the protection to throw for 23 touchdown passes, a figure that tied for the sixth highest single-season touchdown total in franchise history and the most since Troy Aikman had 23 in 1992. The Dallas front also allowed Bledsoe the time to throw for 3,639 yards which was the second-best single-season yardage total ever by a Dallas quarterback. Cowboys second-year running back Julius Jones fell just short of a 1,000-yard season (993), while rookies Marion Barber and Tyson Thompson combined to add another 720 yards on the ground.

At the time of Pro Bowl left tackle Fiozell Adams's season ending knee injury in Week Six of 2005, the Cowboys were seventh in total offense (373.2 yards-per-game) and led the NFL in time of possession (34:14). The injury to Adams forced Sparano into a restructuring mode, while also accelerating the development of Rob Pettiti who started all 16 games at right tackle as a rookie. Dallas finished the year 13th in the NFL in total offense (325.1), and Larry Allen closed his Cowboys career with his 10th Pro Bowl selection.

While directing the tight ends in 2004, Sparano guided second-year man Jason Witten to a Pro Bowl season while enjoying a record breaking year. Witten established Cowboys records for receptions (87) and receiving yards (980) by a tight end while finishing the year second in the NFL in receptions among tight ends and second in the NFL in receiving yardage for tight ends. The season ending injury to Dan Campbell in Week Three forced Witten's acceleration into the spotlight, and also forced Sparano to develop depth with youngsters Brett Pierce and Sean Ryan.

In 2003, Sparano's first season in Dallas, the Cowboys tight end corps became a dependable weapon in the team's running and passing games – helping the club improve from the 30th ranked offense in 2002 to 15th in 2003. Witten finished fifth among rookie receivers, first among rookie tight ends, with 35 receptions for 438 yards. Campbell continued his rise as one of the NFL's premier blocking tight ends while also catching 20 passes for 195 yards.

As the tight ends coach for Jacksonville in 2002, Sparano mentored Kyle Brady, who hauled in 43 passes for 461 yards and four touchdowns, the second-best numbers in each category for his career. In addition, Pete Mitchell grabbed 25 passes for 246 yards and two scores. Sparano's troops were also responsible for a Jags running game that averaged 4.6 yards-per-carry – fifth in the NFL – led by Fred Taylor's 1,314 yards.

Sparano spent the 2001 season as tight ends coach for the Washington Redskins. In 1999 and 2000, he was an assistant with Cleveland, his first season as offensive quality control coach before taking over the offensive line in 2000.

From 1994 to 1998, Sparano was the head coach at the University of New Haven, where his teams made two trips to the NCAA Division II playoffs, finishing second in 1997. He was named the New York York Metropolitan Football Writers Division II Coach of the Year and was the New England Football Writers Division II/III Coach of the Year in both 1995 and 1997.

Sparano began his coaching career at New Haven in 1984, spending four seasons as the offensive line coach and recruiting coordinator. He was the offensive line coach, recruiting coordinator and academic liaison at Boston University in 1988. From 1989 to 1993, he was BU's offensive coordinator, helping the Terriers to an 11-0 mark in 1993.

Sparano was a four-year letterman and starting center at New Haven, where he also earned a degree in criminal law in 1982.

Born Oct. 7, 1961 in West Haven, Conn., Sparano was a standout offensive lineman at Richard C. Lee H.S. He and his wife, Jeanette, have two sons, Tony (10/22/86) and Andrew (8/28/89), and a daughter, Ryan Leigh (8/1/92).

Tony Sparano – Born October 7, 1961, West Haven, Conn. Center New Haven 1978-81. College coach: New Haven 1984-87, Boston University 1988-93, New Haven 1994-98 (head coach). Pro coach: Cleveland Browns 1999-2000, Washington Redskins 2001, Jacksonville Jaguars 2002, Dallas Cowboys 2003-05.

MIKE ZIMMER

DEFENSIVE COORDINATOR

Illinois State

COWBOYS

In 12 NFL seasons – six as the Dallas Cowboys defensive coordinator – Mike Zimmer has established himself as one of the league's top assistant coaches. Seven times in his 12 seasons, the Dallas defense finished the year ranked in the top 10 in total defense, and seven times the club ranked in the top 10 in pass defense.

Zimmer assumed the Cowboys defensive coordinator position on Feb. 1, 2000 after directing a Cowboys secondary that was one of the league's best throughout the second half of the 1990s. During his time in Dallas, Zimmer has been a part of six teams that qualified for post-season play, four NFC Eastern Division winners and the Super Bowl XXX champions.

Zimmer has earned respect and recognition from around the NFL as he has adapted his defense to the Cowboys changing rosters and 2005 was no different. He successfully oversaw the transition from the club's base 4-3 defense to a 3-4 system; the first time in club history the Cowboys utilized a 3-4 front as its base defense.

Incorporating as many as three rookies (DeMarcus Ware – who tied for the team lead in sacks with eight – Marcus Spears and Chris Canty) and another first-time starter (Bradie James – who led the team with 109 tackles) in the front seven, Zimmer's unit finished the year 10th in the NFL in total defense. A veteran secondary anchored by three-time Pro Bowl safety Roy Williams and third-year starter Terence Newman, allowed opponents to complete just 54.7% of their passes, the second lowest figure in the league.

Zimmer's 2004 defense struggled with the loss of veteran safety Darren Woodson (back) for the year while rotating through four different players at right cornerback. The Cowboys defense finished the season 16th in total defense, but the unit came together over the final half of the season, recording 17 sacks and 17 turnovers while holding three opponents to 12 points-or-less.

In 2003, Zimmer's defense surrendered an NFL low 253.5 yards-per-game – the sixth best single-season performance in club history. The Cowboys led the NFL in pass defense, and closed the season third in rush defense. The end result helped return Dallas to the playoffs after a three-year absence. The defense held six opponents to less than 10 points while finishing the year as the only NFL club to boast an opponents' pass completion percentage of less than 50% (48.6). The defense also led the NFL in fewest yards allowed on first down (4.13) and fewest first downs (14.3 per-game) while ranking second in scoring defense (16.3). For the first time since 1998, three Dallas defenders earned Pro Bowl recognition as Williams, Glover and linebacker Dexter Coakley represented the NFC in Hawaii.

Despite playing with the youngest secondary in the NFL in 2002, Zimmer's squad finished the year 18th in the NFL in total defense, 15th against the run and 19th against the pass. Only six teams allowed fewer touchdowns than the 32 given up by Dallas, and the 10 rushing touchdowns given up by Dallas was the fifth best total in the league. Five times during the year, the Dallas defense allowed 13 points-or-less. Setting the pace with young players, Zimmer had two rookies, safety Williams and cornerback Derek Ross, tie for fourth in the NFC with five interceptions each.

In 2001, the Cowboys allowed 1,710 rushing yards, a figure that was 927 yards less than the club allowed in 2000 – the largest turnaround in the NFL in 2001. The club's overall defense jumped from 19th in 2000 to fourth in 2001. The Cowboys were third in the NFL (second in the NFC) in pass defense, giving up 180.6 yards-per-game.

The Cowboys 2000 defense battled through a string of injuries that forced a total of five key starters to miss a combined 33 games. The Dallas pass defense once again landed near the top of league rankings, finishing third in the NFL.

Prior to being promoted to defensive coordinator, Zimmer spent five years as Dallas's defensive backs coach and a year as a defensive assistant working with the nickel defense. In six years under Zimmer's watchful eye, the Cowboys pass defense surrendered an average of 190.6 passing yards-per-game, the second lowest figure in the league over that time span. In addition to finishing as one of the top two pass defenses in the league three times in that time frame, Dallas was the only team to have allowed fewer than 176.0 passing yards-per-game over a season three times.

His 1999 unit helped the Cowboys pass defense finish fourth in the NFC and also tied for sixth in the league with 24 interceptions – returning four for touchdowns which tied the club record. His group in 1998 held eight opponents to 200 yards passing-or-less. Deion Sanders led the team with five interceptions and earned his third consecutive Pro Bowl berth, while Woodson earned his fifth straight Pro Bowl appearance after leading the team with 136 tackles. In 1997 the Cowboys finished at or near the top of several NFL pass defense categories, including fewest completions allowed, net yards-per-pass play and yards gained-per-completion. The Cowboys held five opponents to less than 120 yards passing. In 1996, Kevin Smith returned from a ruptured Achilles tendon to tie for the team lead with five interceptions. Woodson earned his third consecutive Pro Bowl berth after finishing with 118 tackles and five interceptions to tie Smith for the team lead. In his first season as defensive backs coach in 1995, Zimmer lost Smith for the year with a ruptured Achilles tendon in the season opener and did not have Sanders' services until Week Nine. Despite the injuries, the secondary surrendered only 204.5 passing yards-per-game, and Dallas returned four interceptions for touchdowns, tying the club record.

As a defensive assistant in 1994, Zimmer worked with the Dallas nickel defense, which helped the secondary finish as the top ranked pass defense in the league.

Before joining the Dallas staff, Zimmer spent five seasons as the defensive coordinator/secondary coach at Washington State. Zimmer's first Cougar defense in 1989 established a school record with 24 interceptions and 48 sacks. In 1993, the Cougars finished eighth in the nation in total defense and second in rushing defense.

Prior to joining the Cougars staff, Zimmer was an assistant at Weber State from 1981-88. Zimmer coached inside linebackers from 1981-84, while adding the duties of defensive coordinator in 1983. From 1985-88, he served as coordinator and oversaw the secondary.

Zimmer began his coaching career as a part-time assistant on defense at the University of Missouri in 1979, coaching, among others, All-Pro cornerbacks Eric Wright (San Francisco 49ers) and Johnnie Poe (New Orleans Saints).

Zimmer played quarterback at Illinois State in 1974. After redshirting the 1975 season, he suffered a broken thumb in the spring of 1976 and was moved to linebacker. A neck injury, suffered during the 1976 season, led to surgery and the end of his playing career. He graduated with a bachelor's degree in physical education in 1979.

Zimmer was a two-time all-conference quarterback at Lockport, Ill., H.S. in 1972-73, playing for his father Bill, who played football at Bradley and later with the San Francisco 49ers. Mike also earned all-conference honors in wrestling and baseball.

Born June 5, 1956 in Peoria, Ill., Zimmer and wife Vikki have three children, Adam (1/13/84) – a coaching assistant with the New Orleans Saints, Marki (4/30/87) and Corri (2/22/90).

PRO: In eight NFL seasons, Flozell Adams has become one of the NFL's premiere left offensive tackles. He solidified his status when he was named a starter on the NFC squad in the 2004 Pro Bowl, then earned his second trip to Hawaii as a reserve in 2005. Adams's career development was dealt a disappointing blow in 2005 after a knee injury forced him to miss the last 10 games of the season. Adams suffered a torn ACL in his right knee in the Cowboys win over the N.Y. Giants (10/16) and underwent successful surgery on Oct. 25. He has enjoyed a very productive off-season rehabilitation program and is expected to return to top form for the 2006 season. The injury brought to a halt a string of 102 straight starts at left tackle for Adams – a streak that began in 1999 when he made the switch from right guard where he saw extensive action as a rookie. A picture of durability throughout his career, his string of 107 consecutive starts was the longest active streak on the club and – at the time of his injury – the 12th longest active streak in the NFL. Prior to last season, he was the only Cowboys offensive lineman to start and finish all 16 games at the same position in each of the previous three seasons (2002-2004). His natural athletic talents have also made him an imposing figure on the Cowboys field goal/PAT defensive units, where he has blocked seven opponents' kicks in his career (three field goals and a club-record four extra points). In 2003, he led the NFL with a club-record tying three blocked kicks, with all three coming on extra points. Evidence of Adams's effectiveness along Dallas's offensive line can be seen in the club's rushing production. A Dallas back has rushed for over 100-yards 34 times in Adams's 114 career starts. During the first five years of his career, Adams opened holes for the NFL's all-time leading rusher, Emmitt Smith, who rushed for 5,928 yards during that time span – the fifth most in the NFL over that period. Adams brings imposing size, strength and athletic ability to the critical left tackle position, and his return to the lineup will play a major role in the Cowboys success in both the running game and passing game in 2006.

2005: After a pair of Pro Bowl selections in the two previous seasons, Adams opened the 2005 campaign with a return to the form that has made him one of the NFL's top left offensive tackles. A torn ACL in his right knee in the win over the Giants (10/16) ended his season after only six games, leaving a void that was difficult to fill at one of the game's most integral positions. At the time of the injury, the Cowboys were 4-2, ranked seventh in total offense (373.2 yards-per-game) and had allowed 13 sacks in six games (2.2 per-game). Dallas went on to finish the year 13th in total offense (325.1) and surrendered 36 sacks in the games that followed his injury (3.6). Adams started his seventh consecutive season opener at left tackle next to Larry Allen in the win at San Diego (9/11). He helped the Dallas offense rack up 28 points and 301 yards of total offense. In the following week's Monday night loss to Washington (9/19), he was part of a Dallas line that did not allow a sack in 36 pass plays, marking the first time that the Cowboys had shut out an opposing defense in the sack category since Dec. 8, 2002 against San Francisco. In the next week's win at San Francisco (9/25), the line allowed just two sacks in 40 pass plays as the Cowboys rolled up 443 yards of total offense. Quarterback Drew Bledsoe's 363 yards passing – with two touchdowns – was the eighth best performance in club history. In a key division win over Philadelphia (10/9) at Texas Stadium, the line again did not allow a sack of Bledsoe while pushing the Cowboys offense to a season-high 456 yards of total offense, the most since gaining 541 yards at Washington on Sept. 12, 1999. Included in that total were 167 rushing yards. Adams suffered the season ending injury the following week in the third quarter of an overtime win against the N.Y. Giants (10/16). He underwent successful surgery to repair the right knee ACL on October 25.

2004: Adams followed up the most productive year of his career with another solid performance that netted him a reserve spot on the NFC Pro Bowl roster. Over the final seven games of the season, Adams and his cohorts on the offensive line ramped up their run blocking, allowing rookie Julius Jones to rush for 803 yards during that time – an average of 114.7 yards-per-game. The Cowboys offense opened the season at Minnesota (9/12) by accumulating 423 total yards – including 352 passing yards by Vinny Testaverde. The line also allowed only one sack in 52 pass plays. The following week against Cleveland (9/19), Dallas racked up a season-high 441 yards of offense, including 322 passing yards from Testaverde, who was sacked only once in 36 pass plays. Testaverde's performance marked only the second time in club history a Dallas signal caller had thrown for more than 300 yards in back-to-back games. Against the N.Y. Giants (10/10), Adams and Co. paved the way for 166 rushing yards (5.5 yards-per-carry). Testaverde threw for 284 yards against Pittsburgh (10/17), a defense that finished the year as the league's top ranked defensive unit. At Green Bay (10/24), Testaverde threw for 308 yards, his club record tying third 300-yard passing day of the season. The Dallas offensive line opened holes for Eddie George to rush for 99 yards against Detroit (10/31) while surrendering just one sack in 25 pass plays as Testaverde completed 79.2% (19-of-24) of his passes. Adams held Justin Smith without a sack at Cincinnati (11/7) then limited Jevon Kearse to one tackle against Philadelphia (11/15). The line allowed just one sack to the Eagles, who finished the year third in the league in sacks-per-pass play. Against Chicago (11/25) on Thanksgiving Day, Adams was part of an offensive line that led the way for Jones to rush for 150 yards, tying the second-best mark ever (at the time) by a Cowboys rookie running back. Adams also recovered a third quarter fumble by R.W. McQuarters following an interception to give the ball back to Dallas. In a Monday Night Football battle at Seattle (12/6), the line's blocking paved the way for Jones to run for 198 yards, the third best rushing day in club history and the second best ever by a Cowboy rookie. It also marked the first back-to-back 100-yard rushing games for a Dallas back since December of 2001. Jones scored three touchdowns in Dallas's 43-39 come-from-behind victory over the Seahawks, the most by a Dallas back since Smith turned the trick against Minnesota on Nov. 26, 1998. Adams and his cohorts wrapped up the season at the N.Y. Giants (1/2/05) by opening holes for Jones to rush for 149 yards on 29 carries (5.1 avg.) while allowing Testaverde to finish the game with a season-high 109.2 quarterback rating after completing 76.7% (23-of-30) of his passes.

2003: The 2003 season was a coming-out party for Adams. After signing a new five-year contract in the offseason, Adams went on to have the most productive year of his career, climaxing in Hawaii in February as the only first-time starter on the offensive line for the NFC squad at the Pro Bowl. His work during the regular season allowed Dallas to jump from 30th in 2002 to 15th in 2003 in total offense with an increase of almost 50 yards-per-game. That offensive output helped the club post a 10-6 record after three straight 5-11 seasons. The Cowboys opened the season with back-to-back days of 403 yards of offense against Atlanta (9/7) and at the N.Y. Giants (9/15). It was the first back-to-back 400-yard days for Dallas since 1998. The pass blocking against the Giants was instrumental in Quincy Carter having the time to throw for a career-high 321 yards. Run blocking was the key at the N.Y. Jets (9/28) as Dallas rushed 41 times for 202 yards (4.9 avg.) and a touchdown. The offensive line allowed just one sack in 32 pass plays against Arizona (10/5) as the Cowboys picked up 365 total yards of offense and controlled the clock for 36:28. The line gave up just one sack and helped Dallas control the clock for 37:21 at Detroit (10/19). At Tampa Bay (10/26), Adams limited Bucs defensive end Simeon Rice to two tackles and no sacks on the day. The club racked up 400 yards of total offense, including 208 on the ground, against Washington (11/2). The pass protection allowed just one sack in 34 pass plays. Adams blocked his second career extra point when he batted down the Redskins first attempt. He blocked his second extra point of the season at New England (11/16) when he batted Vinatieri's try in the second quarter, becoming the first player in club history with two blocked PATs in the same season. The line allowed just one sack for no yards in 45 pass plays against Carolina (11/23). The Panthers defensive front was limited to nine tackles for the game. Adams extended his club record for blocked extra points against Miami (11/27) with his third block of the season. At Washington (12/14), Adams was part of a line that led the way for Troy Hambrick's 189 rushing yard day, at the time the third best single-game performance in club history.

2002: In a season plagued by injuries and uncertainty on the offensive line, Adams was the one constant as he was the only Cowboys offensive lineman to start and finish every game. After missing a large amount of training camp with a hyperextended right knee (Aug. 6), Adams returned to the starting lineup for the opener at Houston (9/8) and helped Dallas rush for 155 yards. After reshuffling the line at St. Louis (9/29), Adams anchored a unit that allowed two sacks in 38 pass plays in the last-second victory over the defending NFC Champions. He was the only Dallas offensive lineman to start and play the entire Carolina (10/13) game as Dallas produced 148 yards and 14 points in the fourth quarter to nab a 14-13 win. In the loss to Seattle (10/27), Adams played a key role in NFL history as Smith ran for 109 yards on 24 carries (4.5 avg.) and became the league's all-time leading rusher with an 11-yard run in the fourth quarter. It was Smith's first 100-yard game of the season, and his record breaking run came over Adams's (left) side of the line. In the win over Jacksonville (11/24), the Dallas line provided time for Chad Hutchinson to throw for 301 yards. The 405 total yards against the Jaguars was a season-high. In the Thanksgiving Day victory over Washington (11/28), Adams helped lead the way for a season-high 211 rushing yards, including a season-best 144 yards by Smith, who went over the 17,000-yard mark for career rushing and recorded his fourth consecutive 100-yard day against the Redskins. Adams suffered a sprained left ankle early in the second quarter but returned in the second half. He also blocked his fourth career kick when he got his hands on a James Tuthill field goal attempt in the second quarter. In the loss to San Francisco (12/8), he helped hold the 49ers without a sack in 28 pass plays, marking the first time in 2002 that the Dallas line did not allow a sack.

2001: As part of a line that helped Dallas finish third in the NFL in rushing at 136.5 yards-per-game, Adams's work allowed Dallas to rack up 2,184 yards on the ground, the second best total by a Cowboys team in the last 20 years (1995 - 2,201). Also excelling at pass blocking, the line allowed just 34 sacks in 447 pass plays. For the season, opponents were held to two sacks-or-less in a game 10 times. That streak started Week One when the vaunted Tampa Bay (9/9) defense was limited to just two sacks while allowing Dallas to rush 23 times for 99 yards (4.3 avg.). The following week saw the line create holes in the San Diego (9/23) defense as Smith ran for 85 yards on 17 carries (5.0 avg.) and moved past Barry Sanders into second on the NFL's all-time rushing list. Adams excelled on special teams at Philadelphia (9/30), blocking his first career PAT. Against Washington (10/15), Adams helped lead Smith (107 yards) to his first 100-yard rushing game of the season and Dallas to 211 yards on the ground. He was also part of an offensive line that opened the way for Troy Hambrick (127 yards) and Michael Wiley (85) to rush for 207 yards and a 6.3 yard-per-carry average at Atlanta (11/11). Against Philadelphia (11/18), Adams worked against Hugh Douglas most of the day and limited him to one tackle. He helped Dallas to its third 200+ yard rushing day of the season as the Cowboys ran 44 times for 215 yards, including a 102-yard effort from Smith, at Washington (12/2). Smith logged a season-high 128 yards at Arizona (12/23), and the offensive line allowed just one sack in 30 pass plays. In the Cowboys upset win over San Francisco (12/30), Adams and the line led the way to 186 rushing yards, including 126 by Smith, and limited the 49ers to one sack as Carter threw for a season-high 241 yards. The Cowboys offensive line closed out the season with a sackless performance at Detroit

(1/6/02) and led the way as Smith gained 77 rushing yards – putting him over the 1,000-yard mark for the 11th consecutive season, an NFL record.

2000: In his second season as the Cowboys starting left tackle, Adams was part of an offensive line that allowed 35 sacks in 480 pass plays. In six games, opponents were held to one sack-or-less. During Troy Aikman's final 172 pass attempts of the season, the Dallas line allowed him to be sacked only four times – once every 43 attempts. In addition to pass protection, Adams helped Smith (1,203) eclipse the 1,000-yard barrier for the 10th consecutive season. Adams's work also allowed the Cowboys to average 4.2 rushing yards-per-carry for the year, a mark the club has topped just twice in the past 12 seasons. Only four NFC clubs posted a better yard-per-carry average in 2000. Adams's blocking at Arizona (9/10) helped limit the Cardinals to one sack in 35 pass plays as Randall Cunningham threw for 243 yards and three touchdowns. Adams helped lead Smith to his first 100-yard rushing game of the year at Carolina (10/1) when Smith romped for 132 yards on 24 carries (5.5 avg.). In the rematch against Arizona (10/22), the Cowboys rushed for 200 yards, including 112 by Smith, while allowing just one sack. Against Jacksonville (10/29), Smith again eclipsed the 100-yard mark with 102 yards on 24 carries. Adams helped Smith clear the 100-yard barrier for the third consecutive week at Philadelphia (11/5) as Dallas rushed for 204 yards against the league's ninth ranked defense entering the game. Adams and the offensive line held Cincinnati (11/12) sackless in 37 pass attempts, and then duplicated the feat by holding Minnesota (11/23) without a sack in 43 pass attempts. The line's work against the Vikings also allowed Smith to rush for 100 yards on 12 carries before leaving the game in the third quarter with a concussion. For the sixth time during the season, Adams and company led Smith past the 100-yard mark as he rushed for 150 yards against Washington (12/10). Against the Redskins, the Cowboys rushed for 242 yards as a team, marking the most rushing yards by the Dallas offense since 1993.

1999: Adams was the only Dallas offensive lineman to start all 16 regular season games, and he provided the production of a seasoned veteran in his first season at left tackle. He was a key part of an offensive line that allowed just 24 sacks in 531 pass plays, the second fewest sacks allowed in the NFL. The Dallas line also allowed one sack-or-less in nine regular season games, including five of the final six games. In addition, Adams helped Smith to his highest single-season rushing total (1,397) since 1995, while enabling the Pro Bowl running back to collect the second highest number of 100-yard rushing games in a season in his career (nine). In his first NFL start at left tackle, at Washington (9/12), he helped lead the way for a Dallas offense that gained 541 total yards, the highest offensive output by Dallas since Sept. 15, 1985 when the team gained 554 yards against Detroit. In addition, Aikman was sacked just one time in 50 pass plays in the overtime win over the Redskins. The following week, Smith gained 109 yards in a win over Atlanta (9/20), marking just the third time in 29 games that the Falcons defense had allowed a 100-yard rusher. In the win over Green Bay (11/14), Adams and Co. provided run blocking that helped spring Dallas's ground game to 149 yards on 34 carries despite Smith missing the game with an injury. On special teams, Adams blocked a Ryan Longwell field goal, marking the first blocked field goal by a Dallas offensive player since Doug Cosbie on Oct. 21, 1979 against the St. Louis Cardinals. Two weeks later in the Thanksgiving Day win over Miami (11/25), Adams blocked a 47-yard field goal attempt by Olindo Mare in the second quarter. That effort tied the club record for blocked field goals in a season (two), as Adams became the 11th player in club history to accomplish that feat and the first since Leon Lett in 1994. In that same Miami game, the Cowboys offensive line 38helped lead Smith to 103 rushing yards against what was the NFL's sixth ranked defense going into the game. Dallas finished the season as the NFL's sixth ranked rushing offense, averaging 128.2 yards-per-game.

1998: The Cowboys second-round choice (38th overall), Adams was forced into extended work as a rookie after injuries to right guard Everett McIver. He started 10 games in place of McIver, who suffered serious injuries to both knees. Adams's 12 total starts were the most ever by a Dallas rookie offensive lineman. Although inexperienced, and playing a new position, he earned All-Rookie recognition and was a key part of a Dallas line that allowed just 19 quarterback sacks – the fewest in the NFL. Adams was marked ready for duty in the Dallas opener against Arizona (9/6), where he was used as a third tight end on short yardage situations. Adams wound up playing the final three quarters of the game at right tackle after starter Erik Williams was ejected. Adams helped the Dallas offense amass 444 total yards (188 rushing) against the Cardinals – both totals were the team's highest since 1996. In addition, the offensive line did not allow a sack of Aikman in 32 pass plays. The next three weeks, Adams saw considerable action at tight end as a short yardage blocker, and earned a starting assignment against Oakland (9/27) as the team opened the game in a two-tight end set. After McIver went down with his first knee injury at Washington (10/4), Adams earned his first start at right guard against Carolina (10/11). Against the Panthers, Dallas rolled up 428 yards of total offense. In his first five starts at right guard, Adams helped Smith rack up four 100-yard rushing games, including a season-high 163 yards on 29 carries (5.6 avg.) against the N.Y. Giants (11/8). In that battle with the Giants, the Dallas offensive line allowed no sacks to a New York defense that led the NFL in sacks during the 1998 season. Adams did not start against Seattle (11/22), but he entered the game when McIver tore the anterior cruciate ligament in his left knee. Adams started the remaining five regular season games at right guard and earned his first post-season experience by starting against Arizona (1/2/99) in the playoff loss at Texas Stadium.

COLLEGE: Adams spent three years in the starting line-up for Michigan State, and during that time, the Spartans went to three straight bowl games for only the second time in school history. They also had a running back top the 1,000 rushing yard mark each season. Adams started the final 28 games of his career at tackle, and in 34 career starts, he helped a Spartan running back reach the 100-yard mark 21 times. As a senior, Adams moved from right tackle to left tackle and picked up All-America honors and was named the Big Ten Offensive Lineman of the Year by the league's head coaches. One-of-four offensive linemen who were semi-finalists for the Outland Trophy and Lombardi Award, Adams earned postseason invitations to the East-West Shrine Game and Senior Bowl all-star games. He was a second team All-Big Ten selection at right tackle following his junior and sophomore seasons.

PERSONAL: A high school All-America and all-state selection as a two-year starter on the offensive line at Proviso West High School in Maywood, Ill., Adams also lettered three times in wrestling and four times in track (shot put). He advanced to the state heavyweight wrestling finals as a junior. Adams earned his degree in criminal justice from Michigan State and is a cousin of former NBA guard Hersey Hawkins. Since joining the Cowboys, Adams has participated in the offensive line's support of The Rise School of Dallas with the "First Downs for Down Syndrome" project. In the fall of 2001, the entire offensive line helped paint a Dallas Cowboys Pegasus with the children from The Rise School. The Pegasus, a project to promote the City of Dallas, was donated to the school for a charitable fundraiser. He also served as a guest speaker for the Coppell, Texas, High School football team as part of the NFL High School Tuesday program. The program encourages NFL teams to visit a local high school to speak on the importance of education and the benefits associated with sports. During the 2003 season, Adams joined a group of his teammates and participated in the Cowboys annual Hometown Huddle in support of the NFL United Way relationship. Adams and his teammates played Bingo with the 100-plus senior citizens at the Brady Center/Catholic Charities.

PRO: Akin Ayodele (AY-kin AY-dell) joined the Cowboys as an unrestricted free agent this winter after four seasons with the Jacksonville Jaguars. A versatile linebacker who has seen most of his action at outside linebacker thus far in his NFL career, Ayodele will move to the inside in the Dallas 3-4 scheme. A three-year starter for Jacksonville, he became the first player in Jaguar history to begin their career with four consecutive 100-tackle seasons, logging 108 tackles as a rookie in 2002, a career-high 150 in his first year as a starter in 2003, 131 in 2004 and 100 last season. Originally drafted by Jacksonville in the third round (89th overall), Ayodele has played in all 64 games since he was drafted, and he had started in 40 consecutive games before the streak was snapped in 2005 against Houston when the team opened up in a nickel package. In 2004 and 2005 he finished second on the team in total tackles and led the team in forced fumbles with four in 2005.

2005: Ayodele played in all 16 games and the AFC Wild Card game for the Jaguars, finishing third on the team with 100 tackles - his fourth consecutive season with 100-or-more tackles. He also forced a team-high four fumbles on a defensive unit that finished sixth in the NFL in total defense for the year and helped lead Jacksonville to a 12-4 record and wild card playoff berth. In the season opener against Seattle (9/11), Ayodele had four tackles, a forced fumble and a sack on a fourth quarter takedown of quarterback Matt Hasselbeck. The following week at Indianapolis (9/18) he had eight tackles, including his 400th career stop. Against Denver (10/2), he posted his first double-digit tackle game of the season with 12 stops. The next week against Cincinnati (10/9), he made six stops and had a season-high two tackles for losses while recovering a Carson Palmer fumble with 1:16 remaining in the game to secure the Jaguars 23-20 win. He had seven tackles and a forced fumble at Pittsburgh (10/16) before posting six tackles at St. Louis (10/30). Against Houston (11/6) Ayodele was not in the starting lineup as the Jaguars opened in their nickel defense, snapping a string of 40 consecutive starts. He finished the game with five tackles. He returned to the starting lineup at Tennessee (11/20) and recorded five tackles and a quarterback pressure. At Arizona (11/27) he posted seven tackles and 1.5 sacks, including a sack and forced fumble of Kurt Warner with 0:32 remaining that ended the Cardinals final drive in a 24-17 Jacksonville win. Ayodele posted eight tackles at Cleveland (12/4) and then finished second on the team with a season-high 15 tackles and a tackle for a loss against Indianapolis (12/11). Against San Francisco (12/18) he again finished second on the team with seven tackles. In the regular season finale at Tennessee (1/1/06) he had three tackles and a forced fumble. In the team's first playoff game since the end of the 1999 season, Ayodele recorded eight tackles and a tackle for a loss at New England (1/7/06) in an AFC Wildcard loss.

2004: Ayodele finished second on the team for the second consecutive season with 131 tackles, surpassing 100 tackles for the third consecutive season. He also tallied two sacks, forced a fumble, recovered a fumble and blocked a field goal while starting all 16 games for the second straight year. In the season opener at Buffalo (9/12), he recorded eight tackles and forced a fumble. The following week he recovered a fumble and posted another eight stops against Denver (9/19). He had nine tackles at San Diego (10/10). He led the team with a career-high two sacks of Trent Green and 15 tackles against Kansas City (10/17). He collected his second double-digit tackle game of the year with 11 stops against Detroit (11/14). Against Chicago (12/12) he recorded eight tackles and a tackle for a loss before blocking his first career field goal against Houston (12/26). He closed out the season with nine tackles at Oakland (1/2/05).

2003: Ayodele started all 16 games for the Jaguars at linebacker for the first time in his career and finished second on the team with a career-high 150 tackles, two interceptions and three fumble recoveries - tying him for third most in Jaguars history with five takeaways. His three fumble recoveries tied him for third in the AFC in that category. In the season opener at Carolina (9/7) he recorded a team-high 11 tackles, a sack of Rodney Peete and an interception of Jake Delhomme that he returned 13 yards. He would go on to record seven double-digit tackle games on the year, including a season-high 14 stops against Indiana (11/9) and at New England (12/14). At Baltimore (11/2), Ayodele recorded his first career touchdown when he picked up a fumble and raced 15 yards for a score to tie the game at 10-10. He led the team with 13 tackles against New Orleans (12/21). In the season finale at Atlanta (12/28), he picked up his second interception of the season when he grabbed a Michael Vick pass and returned it two yards.

2002: Ayodele finished his rookie season fourth on the team with 108 tackles and was second on the club in special teams tackles with 13. He became just the fifth rookie in Jaguars history to record 100 tackles. He saw action in all 16 games, starting three games at strongside linebacker while also getting considerable playing time as a rush end on passing downs. He also recorded three sacks, one interception, two forced fumbles, two passes defended, a tackle for a loss and led the team with 13 quarterback pressures. He earned his first start in the second game of the season at Kansas City (9/15), recording seven stops. He had an outstanding game against Cleveland (12/8) recording 10 tackles and one sack. In his next start against the N.Y. Jets (9/29) he notched six tackles, two pressures and broke up a season-high two passes. He recorded eight tackles in his third career start at Tennessee (10/13). His top performance of the year came at the N.Y. Giants (11/3) when he led the team with 15 tackles and recorded his first career sack and forced a fumble of Kerry Collins. Against Washington (11/10), Ayodele recorded six tackles and a career-high four quarterback pressures. The following week at Houston (11/17) he recorded nine tackles and a sack of David Carr. His second double-digit tackle game of the season came against Pittsburgh (12/1) when he logged 12 tackles. He followed that performance with an all-around game against Cleveland (12/8), making 10 tackles, a sack of Tim Couch and his first career interception - a theft he returned 22 yards to set up a Jaguars field goal.

COWBOYS

PRO: Marion Barber III quickly became a valuable contributor to the Cowboys running game as a rookie and now gives Dallas one of the best young sets of running backs in the National Football League. The duo of Barber and second-year back Julius Jones amassed 1,531 yards and 10 touchdowns in their first season together in Dallas, and should continue to build on that performance in year two. Much like Jones the year before, Barber jumped right into the action as a rookie with a number of outstanding performances, finishing fifth in the NFL in rushing among rookies with 538 yards. The Cowboys drafted Barber with their first selection in the fourth round (109th overall) of the 2005 NFL Draft.

2005: Barber's rookie campaign was a complete success as he finished with 538 yards and five touchdowns on 138 carries - good for second on the team. He also added 18 receptions for 115 yards. His 538 yards placed him fifth in the NFL in rushing among rookies, and his five rushing touchdowns placed him fourth among league rookies. After a solid training camp, Barber was sidelined for the final two weeks of preseason after having surgery on his foot to remove an infection. He opened the season as the club's kickoff return man, returning three kickoffs for a 19.3-yard average at San Diego (9/11). He was inactive the following week against Washington (9/19) and did not play at San Francisco (9/25). He saw his first real action at running back at Oakland (10/2). Working as the club's third-down back, he recorded the first two carries of his career, picking up one yard. He was inactive against Philadelphia (10/9) before seeing considerable action against the N.Y. Giants (10/16) following an ankle injury to Jones the previous week. Against the Giants he recorded 11 carries for 30 yards and had two receptions for 21 more. On the Cowboys first field goal drive of the fourth quarter, he accounted for 41 yards (20 rushing, 21 receiving) on the 15-play, 79-yard drive. Twice he picked up first downs on third down to keep the drive alive. The following week at Seattle (10/23), Barber did not start but saw the bulk of the action at running back for the injured Jones and led the team with 95 yards on 22 carries. He was also sacked on an attempted halfback pass. He earned his first NFL start and led the team with 127 yards and two touchdowns on 27 carries against Arizona (10/30). It was the first 100-yard rushing game of the season for Dallas and the two scores were the first of Barber's career. His 28-yard touchdown run on the opening possession was his longest of the season. Against Philadelphia (11/14), Barber earned his second start and led the team with 46 yards and a touchdown on 13 carries while splitting time with Jones who was working back into the line-up. Barber had a one-yard scoring run in the first quarter to knot the game at 7-7 just one play after making a key blitz pickup that allowed Drew Bledsoe to complete a 58-yard pass to Peerless Price to the one-yard line. He later reeled off a 26-yard run with 3:17 remaining to set up a 20-yard Bledsoe-to-Terry Glenn touchdown pass on the next play as Dallas closed to within six points at 20-14 in a game they would later win 21-20. Barber spelled Jones against Detroit (11/20) and finished with 15 carries for 53 yards and two touchdowns, his second two-touchdown game of the season and his third consecutive game with a score. Five of his carries picked up a first down, including two to convert third downs. Coming off the bench against Denver (11/24), he carried the ball nine times for 28 yards, seeing most of his action on third down. Barber led the team with 82 yards on 15 carries, including a season-long tying 28-yard run against Kansas City (12/11). He also added two receptions for 32 yards with a season-long 21-yard catch and an 11-yard catch to convert a third-and-eight on the final game-winning 14-play, 68-yard touchdown drive in the final four minutes of the game. At Washington (12/18), he had a season-high four receptions for 26 yards. On special teams he downed a punt at the Washington five-yard line on punt coverage. He managed only 20 yards on six carries at Carolina (12/24), but he had a five-yard reception and a seven-yard run to the Carolina two-yard line on the final game-winning touchdown drive to make the most of those yards.

COLLEGE: Barber carried the ball 575 times for 3,276 yards (5.7 avg.) and 35 touchdowns for the Golden Gophers. His 3,276 rushing yards ranked third in school history as did his 14 career 100-yard rushing games. The 4,495 all-purpose yards Barber accumulated ranked second in school history as did his 35 rushing touchdowns. Barber accomplished these impressive numbers in only three years, having missed all but two games of his sophomore season before receiving a redshirt due to a chronic hamstring injury. As a junior, Barber earned honorable mention All-Big Ten honors after rushing for 1,269 yards and 11 touchdowns. After recovering from a hamstring injury from a year earlier, Barber rushed for 1,196 yards and 17 touchdowns to earn first-team All-Big Ten honors as a redshirt sophomore. He tied or broke several school records, including the record for rushing touchdowns in a season and 100-yard rushing games (seven) in a season. He was the focal point of an offense that set a Big Ten record for total offense (6,430) and finished with the fourth highest rushing total (3,759) and sixth-highest point total (503) in conference history. Barber also led the conference and finished seventh in the nation in punt return average (14.5). Barber struggled with hamstring problems that limited him to two games as a sophomore and earned him an additional year of eligibility. As a true freshman, Barber twice topped the 100-yard mark for rushing yards.

PERSONAL: Barber was a SuperPrep and PrepStar all-Midwest and consensus all-state selection as a senior running back and defensive back at Wayzata, Minn., High School. He gained 1,778 yards and 18 touchdowns carrying the ball and picked off a team-high 10 passes patrolling the secondary. The business marketing education major led his team to an 18-4 two-year record, including a 10-2 mark in his final prep campaign. He was also an honorable mention all-conference center fielder for the Wayzata baseball team. As a rookie last year, Barber was a member of the Cowboys 2005 Rookie Club – a program designed to introduce rookie team members to community service in the Dallas area which included work with The Salvation Army, Children's Medical Center Dallas and Meals on Wheels. Marion is the son of Marion Barber, Jr., who gained 3,235 rushing yards and scored 34 touchdowns for the Golden Gophers (1977-80) before embarking on a seven-year (1983-88) NFL career with the N.Y. Jets. Marion III was the recipient of the Sheldon Douglas Endowed Scholarship at Minnesota.

PRO: Justin Berault (pronounced BARE-ee-oh) quickly turned heads at training camp as a rookie sixth-round draft choice in 2005. Despite suffering a torn medial and lateral meniscus in his right knee in a July 31 training camp practice, Berault battled for a spot in the line-up at safety by making plays all over the field against both the run and pass. The knee injury was too much to overcome however, and his season came to an early end when he was placed on injured reserve Sept. 3. He underwent surgery on Sept. 13 and will be back in the hunt again this fall.

2005: Berault played in the first two preseason games, recording two tackles, a sack and an interception before missing the remainder of the season with a torn medial and lateral meniscus in his right knee.

COLLEGE: Berault started 45-of-46 career games at Ball State and is one of only a handful of players in the history of college football to register at least 100 tackles a season each season he played – finishing his career with 508 tackles. Berault closed out his collegiate career by earning first-team All-Mid American Conference honors and being awarded Ball State's Mark Hays Inspirational Award for the second straight year. He finished the season with a team-high 125 tackles, including five for losses, an interception and a fumble recovery. Berault earned first-team All-MAC honors and was the winner of the Mark Hays Inspirational Award after leading the team with a career-high 145 tackles as a junior. He also posted six stops for losses, six pass deflections, two forced fumbles and an interception. As a sophomore, Berault finished second on the team with 121 tackles. He also contributed six stops for losses, two passes defended, two forced fumbles and an interception. Berault made the most of his redshirt freshman season, earning freshman All-America honors from the Football Writers Association and The Sporting News after finishing third in the country in tackles among freshmen with 117. He also posted three pass deflections, two tackles for losses and an interception.

PERSONAL: Arthur Justin Berault earned all-star honors, was named the Marion County Player of the Year and conference, all-county and school most valuable player after recording 112 tackles, four interceptions and a fumble recovery while catching 21 passes for 468 yards and five touchdowns as a senior at Warren Central High school in Indianapolis, Ind. For his prep career, he totaled 242 stops, seven interceptions and four fumble recoveries on the defensive side of the ball while catching 35 passes for 710 yards and seven scores on the offensive side. He earned three letters in football, three in basketball and one in baseball during his time at Warren Central. He earned his degree in criminal justice. As a rookie last year, Berault was a member of the Cowboys 2005 Rookie Club – a program designed to introduce rookie team members to community service in the Dallas area. He also participated in The Salvation Army Angel Tree program – donating Christmas gifts for underprivileged children. He and his wife, Niki, have a daughter Madison (1/7/02) and a son Mason (6/9/05).

PRO: In 13 NFL seasons, Drew Bledsoe has become one of the league's top throwers and with each pass continues to move up the NFL's all-time charts in every career passing category. He currently ranks fifth all-time in career attempts and completions, and is seventh all-time in career passing yardage. He is tied with John Hadl and Peyton Manning for 13th all-time in career touchdown passes. Among active quarterbacks, he stands second behind only Brett Favre in career completions, attempts and passing yards. He and Manning are tied for second behind Favre in career touchdowns. Bledsoe's name is littered across the NFL passing record books in a number of other areas as well. In 2000, he became just the fourth quarterback in league history to have seven consecutive 3,000-yard passing seasons. In 2005, he recorded his ninth career 3,000-yard passing season, tying him with Warren Moon for fourth in NFL history. In 2005 he also became just the 10th player in NFL history to reach the 40,000 passing yard plateau, reaching the mark in his 172nd career game — the fifth fastest player to reach that milestone. Bledsoe holds the NFL record for pass attempts in a season with 691 in 1994 and also has the third best mark with 636 in 1995, those marks coming during a three-year span (1994-96) that he led the league in pass attempts. He also holds the league record for pass attempts (70) and completions (45) in a game, setting the mark against Minnesota on Nov. 13, 1994. In that game, he also threw no interceptions, setting a league mark for pass attempts in a game without an interception. His 400 completions in 1994 are the third best total in league history, and he is also tied for fourth in NFL history with six 400-yard passing games. His next 400-yard passing game will move him into a tie with Joe Montana and Moon for the second most 400-yard games in league history behind Dan Marino's record 13 games. In 1993-94 he had a string of four-straight 300-yard passing games, the sixth longest streak in league history. In his career, Bledsoe has four overtime touchdown passes, the most in NFL history. The only other players to throw more than one are Terry Bradshaw (three), Dan Fouts (two), Moon (two), and Brian Sipe (two). In 2004 Bledsoe topped the 10,000-yard mark for his career in Buffalo, making him one of just seven quarterbacks in NFL history to throw for over 10,000 yards with two different teams. A model of durability, Bledsoe started all 16 games for Dallas in 2005 and all 48 Bills games over his three seasons in Buffalo, making him one of just five NFL quarterbacks to start every game over the course of the last four seasons. The other four: Tom Brady (NE), Favre (GB), Trent Green (KC) and Manning (Indy). During his 13-year career, Bledsoe has missed just 14 games due to injury (regular season and postseason), and nine times he has started all 16 games for his club. The Cowboys signed Bledsoe to a three-year contract on Feb. 23, 2005 after his release by the Buffalo Bills. He joined the Bills in a trade with New England on the second day of the 2002 NFL Draft in exchange for Buffalo's first-round selection in the 2003 NFL Draft. Bledsoe spent the first nine years of his NFL career with the Patriots, who selected him with the first overall pick in the 1993 NFL Draft.

2005: Bledsoe's first season in Dallas proved to be a success offensively as he finished eighth in NFC, 17th in the NFL, with an 83.7 quarterback rating — tying the third best single-season rating of his career. He was third in the NFC, eighth in the NFL, with 3,639 passing yards, the second-highest total in club history and the ninth 3,000-yard season of his career. He also tied for fourth in the NFC, eighth in the NFL, with 23 touchdowns, the fifth best season of his career and the most by a Dallas quarterback since Troy Aikman threw 23 in 1992. Bledsoe completed 300 of his 499 pass attempts placing him second in the NFC, eighth in the NFL in completions and third in the NFC, eighth in the NFL, in attempts. His 60.1 completion percentage marked just the fourth time in his 13-year career that he had topped the 60% rate for a season. Three times Bledsoe topped the 300-yard passing mark in a game with Dallas posting wins on all three occasions. In the season opener at San Diego (9/11) Bledsoe earned NFC Offensive Player of the Week honors by completing 18-of-24 passes for 226 yards and season-highs with three touchdowns and a 143.4 quarterback rating in his Dallas debut. Three times he led Dallas from behind during the game, including the final time with 3:06 remaining when he was three-of-three passing for 24 yards and a score. He was also seven-of-eight passing for 97 yards and two touchdowns on third downs during the game as Dallas converted 64% of their attempts. On the first play of the fourth quarter Bledsoe completed a 15-yard pass to Terry Glenn, giving him 40,000 career passing yards — the 10th player in NFL history to reach that milestone. The following week against Washington (9/19), he was 21-of-36 for 261 yards and a touchdown, including a 70-yard touchdown toss to Glenn on a flea-flicker. At San Francisco (9/25) Bledsoe completed 24-of-38 attempts for a season-high 363 yards and two touchdowns. He also threw his first two interceptions of the season after opening the year with 70 consecutive attempts without a pick. His 363 yards tied the eighth best passing day in club history and was his best showing since a 463-yard day at Minnesota on Sept. 15, 2002. In the second quarter he put Dallas on the board with a six-yard touchdown run, his seventh career rushing touchdown. He also moved past the 49ers Joe Montana (40,551 yards) into eighth place in NFL history for career passing yards. His 63-yard touchdown pass to Patrick Crayton in the fourth quarter to bring Dallas to within three points at 16-13 was the highlight of a 11-of-26 passing day for 212 yards at Oakland (10/2). Bledsoe tied his season high with three touchdown passes against Philadelphia (10/9), completing 24-of-35 attempts for 289 yards. He guided Dallas to points on six of their first seven possessions as the Cowboys jumped out to a 30-3 lead in the 33-10 win. Bledsoe completed 26 passes in 37 attempts for 312 yards, one touchdown and one interception against the N.Y. Giants (10/16). It was his second 300-yard passing game of the season. In guiding Dallas into position for the game-winning field goal on the opening drive of overtime, he completed three-of-four passes for 49 yards. At Seattle (10/23), he had 136 yards on 13-of-24 passing with a touchdown and two interceptions in the rain. Bledsoe posted a career-best 79.2% completion percentage on 19-of-24 passing against Arizona (10/30), throwing for 220 yards and a touchdown. He led Dallas on scoring drives on four-of-five first half possessions while taking the team to a 24-10 halftime lead. On Monday Night Football at Philadelphia (11/14), Bledsoe completed 70.8% of his passes (17-of-24) for 196 yards, one touchdown and one interception. With 3:44 remaining in the game he was three-of-three passing for 46 yards and a touchdown in guiding Dallas 72 yards in four plays to close within six points at 20-14 in the eventual 21-20 win. He had a season-low 110 yards passing against Detroit (11/20) on 12-of-23 passing and did not throw a touchdown pass for first time in 2005. On Thanksgiving Day against Denver (11/24), he had season-highs for completions (29) and attempts (44) while throwing for 232 yards, two touchdowns and two interceptions. They were his highest attempt and completion totals since Dec. 8, 2002. He also scored his second rushing touchdown of the year on a one-yard dive. At the N.Y. Giants (12/4), he had season-lows for completion percentage (38.5) and rating (36.9) in the wet and cold of the Meadowlands, completing just 15-of-39 passes for 146 yards, a touchdown and two interceptions. He bounced back the following week against Kansas City (12/11) to earn NFC Offensive Player of the Week honors for the second time in 2005 as well as the Fed Ex Air & Ground Player of the Week award when he completed 22-of-34 passes for 332 yards, a season-high tying three touchdowns and a quarterback rating of 126.1. He guided Dallas on two fourth quarter touchdown drives, including a final 14-play, 68-yard drive where he was five-of-eight for 49 yards with a one-yard touchdown pass to Dan Campbell with 0:22 remaining to give Dallas a 31-28 win. In the second quarter he completed a 71-yard touchdown pass to Glenn off a flea-flicker that was the longest pass play of the season and his longest completion since Dec. 1, 2002. With 22 completions on the day, Bledsoe moved past Fran Tarkenton (3,686) and Vinny Testaverde (3,688) into fifth place in NFL history for career pass completions. The 332 yards marked his third 300-yard passing game of the season and he topped the 3,000-yard mark for the season. At Washington (12/18) he completed 16-of-29 passes for 153 yards a touchdown and a season-high three interceptions with two of his interceptions coming off tipped balls. In the Cowboys 24-20 come-from-behind win at Carolina (12/24), Bledsoe completed 15-of-23 passes for 209 yards with one touchdown and one interception. The scoring pass was a two-yarder to Glenn with 0:24 remaining to give Dallas the win. He was three-of-five passing for 36 yards and a score on the final nine-play, 58-yard game-winning drive. In the game he moved past Fouts (43,040) into seventh place on the NFL's all-time passing yards list. In the season-finale against St. Louis (1/1/06), he was 18-of-39 passing for 242 yards with a touchdown and two interceptions. His 39 attempts moved him past Testaverde into fifth place on the NFL's all-time pass attempts list and his touchdown toss moved him into a tie with Hadl and Manning for 13th in NFL history for career touchdown passes.

2004: Bledsoe wrapped up his third season in Buffalo completing 256-of-450 passes for 2,932 yards, 20 touchdowns and 16 interceptions, the sixth time in his career he has thrown 20-or-more touchdowns in a season. During the season he also continued his climb up the NFL's all-time passing charts. He made his first move of the season in the opener against Jacksonville (9/12) when he completed 17-of-26 passes for 153 yards and a 17-yard touchdown strike to Eric

Moulds, surpassing Fouts for seventh on the NFL's all-time attempts list. He finished with 198 yards, a touchdown and an interception on 13-of-24 passing at Oakland (9/19), connecting again with Moulds on the scoring pass after a 65-yard pass to rookie Lee Evans set the Bills up at the five-yard line. He totaled more than 200 passing yards for the first time on the season against New England (10/3), completing 18-of-30 passes for 247 yards, a touchdown and an interception. For the third straight week, he connected with Moulds on a 41-yard scoring pass at the end of the first half to tie the score at 17-17. He opened up the game with a 55-yard pass to Evans on the Bills first play from scrimmage, setting up a field goal. At the N.Y. Jets (10/10), Bledsoe completed 16-of-29 passes for 197 yards, two touchdowns and one interception, and he was six-of-eight passing for 97 yards on the Bills two touchdown drives. The first drive was an eight-play, 69-yard drive that was capped off by a 16-yard scoring pass to tight end Mark Campbell, and the second drive, a two-play, 62-yard drive culminated with a 46-yard touchdown throw to Evans. At Baltimore (10/24), Bledsoe finished the game with 203 passing yards, completing 20 of a season-high 37 passes with a season-high four interceptions. He compiled a 100.4 passer rating against Arizona (10/31), marking only the second time in his career he has posted a 100-plus rating without attempting 20 passes in a game, finishing with 81 yards on 8-of-17 passing with two touchdowns. He was not sacked in the game, his first sack-free game since Sept. 14, 2003. Along the way, he moved up in the NFL's record books: passing Dave Krieg for 10th on the NFL's all-time passing yards list. Bledsoe enjoyed his second straight game with no interceptions or sacks against the N.Y. Jets (11/7), marking only the 17th time in his career with zeros in both columns. He finished the day with 184 yards on 18-of-30 passing with one touchdown. Against St. Louis (11/21), Bledsoe completed 15-of-24 passes for 185 yards and three touchdowns. All three of his scoring tosses went to Campbell, making Campbell the second player to catch three touchdowns in a single game from Bledsoe (Ben Coates). Making his first professional visit to his home state (Washington), Bledsoe threw for 275 yards and a touchdown with season highs for attempts (37), completions (25) and completion percentage (67.6) at Seattle (11/28). He was 20-of-28 on the Bills five scoring drives and his touchdown toss moved him into 19th place on the NFL's all-time career touchdown list, passing John Brodie. The following week, he matched a career-high with four touchdown passes at Miami (12/5), completing 19-of-30 passes for a season-high 277 yards and a season-best passer rating of 132.9. It was the 11th four-touchdown game of his career. Bledsoe guided the Bills to their fifth straight victory with a win at Cincinnati (12/19), marking his longest personal win streak since the 1996-97 seasons with New England. He finished the day 15-of-30 for 183 yards and a touchdown. His 60-yard pass to Evans on a flea-flicker in the first quarter made Evans the first receiver to catch four passes of 50-plus yards from Bledsoe in one season. His 13th completion against the Bengals boosted Bledsoe into seventh place ahead of Montana on the NFL's all-time completions list. A win at San Francisco (12/26) pushed the Bills win streak to six games, the second longest streak of Bledsoe's career. In the season finale against Pittsburgh (1/2/05), he became only the seventh quarterback in NFL history to pass for over 10,000 yards with two different teams, finishing the game with 189 yards on 16-of-30 passing.

2003: In his second season with the Bills, Bledsoe again started all 16 games and completed 274-of-471 passes (58.2%) for 2,860 yards, 11 touchdowns and a career-low 12 interceptions. Bledsoe opened the season against New England (9/7) and was 17-of-28 for 230 yards with a touchdown and an interception en route to his first win against his former team. The next week at Jacksonville (9/14), he was again very impressive with 314 yards on 19-of-25 passing with two touchdowns and no interceptions for a near-perfect rating of 144.2. He then endured a difficult outing at Miami (9/21). For just the fourth time in 19 career games with the Bills, he failed to throw a touchdown pass, and he finished the game 10-of-25 passing for 98 yards with two interceptions. He came back the next week against Philadelphia (9/28) to complete 27-of-43 passes for 296 yards with both a touchdown pass and run and no interceptions. The scoring run was the fifth of his career and third as a Bill. Against Cincinnati (10/5), he led his 22nd career fourth quarter comeback and finished with 211 yards on 19-of-35 passing with a touchdown and no interceptions. His third quarter interception at the N.Y. Jets (10/12) snapped a stretch of 130 attempts without a pick, the 12th 100+ streak of his career. Against Washington (10/19), he completed 19-of-26 passes for 244 yards with a touchdown and an interception, enjoying a 73.1% completion rate - his 15th career game above 70% and his second of 2003. At the N.Y. Giants (11/30), he completed 19-of-29 passes for 252 yards and a pair of touchdowns in less than three quarters of action. On Buffalo's three straight scoring drives in the second and third quarters, he was 13-of-17 for 179 yards with two touchdown throws. Six of his 19 completions in the game covered 20+ yards, and he finished with a season-high passer rating of 115.9. His two touchdown passes at Tennessee (12/14) gave him 201 for his career.

2002: Bledsoe enjoyed a phenomenal first season with the Bills, starting all 16 games at quarterback and setting 10 franchise records, including single-season marks for yards (4,359), attempts (610), completions (375) and 300-yard games (seven). He earned his fourth career Pro Bowl selection, having also been selected following the 1994, '96 and '97 seasons with New England, and became the third quarterback in Bills history to earn a Pro Bowl selection, joining Jim Kelly (five) and Doug Flutie (one). Bledsoe ranked second in the NFL in passing yards (4,359) and attempts (610) behind only Rich Gannon (4,689 and 618), and his 375 completions trailed only Gannon (418) and Peyton Manning (392). Only Gannon (10) had more 300-yard passing games. Bledsoe threw 24 touchdown passes, the most by a Bills signal caller since Jim Kelly had a club-record 33 in 1991. With two rushing touchdowns, he matched his career total heading into the season. Twice in the first five games he topped 400 passing yards (there were only two in franchise history before '02). Bledsoe opened the season with a memorable outing against the N.Y. Jets (9/8) that saw him bring the Bills back to tie the game at 31 with a 29-yard touchdown strike to Moulds on fourth-and-nine with 0:34 remaining before falling in OT. He set the tone for the offense with a huge block on defensive tackle Jason Ferguson on a reverse. Bledsoe enjoyed a record day and engineered the game-winning overtime touchdown drive at Minnesota (9/15), ending the game with a 48-yard score to Peerless Price. It marked his third career touchdown pass in overtime, tying Terry Bradshaw for the NFL record. Bledsoe was three-of-three for 29 yards on the drive which led to a 54-yard, game-tying field goal as regulation ended. For the game, he set a career-high and Bills single-game record with 463 passing yards (old personal record: 426 yards, 11/13/94; old Bills record: 419 yards, Joe Ferguson, 10/9/83). It was his sixth career 400-yard passing game, tying him for the fourth most 400-yard games in NFL history. He also set a Bills single-game record with 49 attempts without an interception (old record: 46 by Joe Ferguson, 9/23/84 and Jim Kelly, 11/7/93). In the game, he became the 24th player in NFL history to reach 30,000 career passing yards and became the third fastest in terms of games, reaching the plateau in his 126th career game - tying Favre (Marino did it in 114 and Moon in 125). For his efforts, Bledsoe was selected as AFC Offensive Player of the Week, the seventh time in his career he has been honored. He led the Bills to their second victory of the season with an overtime win against Chicago (9/29), again ending it with a game-winning 26-yard touchdown pass and setting an NFL record with his fourth career touchdown pass in overtime. It was also the 10th four-touchdown game of his career and the first by a Bill since Jim Kelly had four on Dec. 10, 1995 at St. Louis. At the end of September, Bledsoe was named the AFC Offensive Player of the Month, his second career Player of the Month selection. The next week against Oakland (10/6), he set a club record for attempts without an interception at 175 before throwing a pick on his 27th attempt. It was also the second longest streak of his career (179 attempts, Oct. 23, 1995 - Nov. 26, 1995). At Houston (10/13), the Bills trailed 24-17 entering the fourth quarter, but the Bills offense went on two touchdown drives to grab their third win of the year. In his first outing against his former team, New England (11/3), he threw for 302 yards, the fifth time in 2002 he topped the 300 mark (31st of career). He topped the 3,000-yard passing mark for the season at Kansas City (11/17), the second time in his career he had reached that mark in the first 10 games (1994). He also threw a seven-yard strike to Moulds to extend his streak of starts with a touchdown pass to 10 games, the longest streak by a Bills quarterback to start his career. He had that touchdown streak broken the next week at the N.Y. Jets (11/24). He recorded his first rushing touchdown as a Bill (third of career) on a two-yard plunge against Miami (12/1) and also had two touchdown passes of 50+ yards (73 yards to Price, 57 yards to Moulds). At New England (12/8), he posted the seventh 300-yard game of 2002 and 33rd of his career, setting a club record for 300-yard games in a season (Jim Kelly, 6 in 1991). It marked the 10th time in club history a quarterback had consecutive 300-yard games (third by Bledsoe in 2002). With his first completion against San Diego (12/15), Bledsoe established a club record for single-season passing yards (3,844 - Jim Kelly, 1991). He then surpassed the 4,000 passing yard mark for the season in a loss at Green Bay (12/22), marking the third 4,000-yard season of his career. The 10-0 loss to the Packers marked just the second time in his career that his team had been shut out (6-0 loss, 11/28/93 vs. N.Y. Jets). He collected his second rushing touchdown of the season on a seven-yard carry in the season finale against Cincinnati (12/29).

2001: Bledsoe started the first two games of the year, extending his consecutive starts streak to 34 before suffering a chest injury in the fourth quarter against the N.Y. Jets (9/23) when he was hit by Mo Lewis. He was inactive and did not dress the next four contests. He then dressed but was inactive as the club's third quarterback for three weeks. He was elevated to the second quarterback spot but did not play in the final seven games of the regular season and for the opening playoff game against Oakland (1/20/02). He returned to action in the AFC Championship Game at Pittsburgh (1/27/02) when he replaced an injured Tom Brady (ankle) with 1:40 to go in the second quarter with the Patriots driving at the Steelers 40-yard line. He came on to complete three straight passes to David Patten, including an 11-yard touchdown, and then played the entire second half in leading the Patriots to the AFC Championship. He served as the back-up to Brady in the Patriots Super Bowl XXXVI win over St. Louis (2/3/02).

2000: Bledsoe started every game despite playing with a jammed thumb, an injury he suffered at midseason, and threw for 3,291 yards, becoming just the fourth quarterback in NFL history to have seven consecutive 3,000-yard seasons. He also became the Patriots all-time leading passer with a 26-yard pass to Kevin Faulk in the second quarter at Denver (10/1), moving ahead of Steve Grogan (26,886 yards). Bledsoe was also a threat on the ground, setting a career-high and finishing third on the team with 158 rushing yards. In the season opener, he rushed for a career-high 30 yards on eight carries against Tampa Bay (9/3). He tied a franchise record at Indianapolis (10/22) when he directed an 18-play scoring drive to open the game (18 plays, 89 yards, 8:43), culminated by a 19-yard touchdown pass to J.R. Redmond. He left the game in the second quarter with a thumb injury to his right hand. Against Cincinnati (11/19), he led his 18th career game-winning drive as he moved the offense 81 yards in 12 plays in 3:05 to set up the game-winning 22-yard field goal, completing four-of-seven passes for 65 yards. He completed a season-high 33 passes on 48 attempts for 282 yards and a pair of touchdowns against Kansas City (12/4) in a 30-24 victory on Monday Night Football. Two weeks later at Buffalo (12/17), he led the Patriots on two scoring drives late in the game to secure an overtime victory over the Bills amidst the worst game conditions of his eight-year career. In overtime that day, he led the team on an 83-yard, 14-play drive, setting up the game-winning 24-yard field goal with just 0:19 left. Bledsoe passed for a season-high 312 yards against Miami (12/24), completing 18-of-34 attempts with two touchdowns and two interceptions. It was his first 300-yard game of the season and his fifth 300-yard game against Miami, the most against any team.

1999: Bledsoe started all 16 games for the Patriots and other than a pass attempt by wide receiver Troy Brown in the season finale, attempted every pass for the team. His 539 attempts ranked third in the league (first in the AFC), while his 305 completions ranked sixth overall (second in the AFC). His 3,985 passing yards also ranked sixth in the league (second in the AFC) and fell just 15 yards shy of eclipsing the 4,000-yard plateau for the third time of his NFL career. Five times he eclipsed the 300-yard passing mark in a game. Bledsoe tossed 19 touchdowns, including a season-long 68-yarder to Shawn Jefferson. In the season opener at the N.Y. Jets (9/12), he completed his first six attempts and finished the game completing 21-of-30 attempts for 340 yards and a touchdown. He orchestrated a 10-play, 44-yard drive to set up the game winning 23-yard field goal in a 30-28 come-from-behind victory. He earned AFC Offensive Player of the Week honors against Indianapolis (9/19) after leading the Patriots back from a 21-point, third quarter deficit to a 31-28 victory with 24 unanswered points. It was the 15th come-from-behind victory of his career and the second in as many weeks. He led the Pats on three fourth quarter scoring drives – two touchdown passes to Ben Coates and a game-winning 26-yard field goal. He finished the day 27-of-45 for 299 yards, a career-high tying four touchdowns and a quarterback rating of 109.4. He then completed 20-of-28 passes (71.4%) for 233 yards against the N.Y. Giants (9/26) to guide the Patriots to their third consecutive victory of three points-or-fewer, leading the team on three straight second half scoring drives. He passed for 393 yards and a touchdown in a 19-7 victory at Cleveland (10/3), helping the Patriots to a 4-0 start and finishing with a passer rating of 104.1 – the third time in four games he eclipsed a rating of 100.0. He did not throw an interception in his third consecutive game (120 attempts). He completed 23-of-45 passes for 334 yards at Kansas City (10/10), his third 300-yard game of the season. He had a streak of 129 pass attempts without an interception snapped in the second quarter against the Chiefs, when his 10th pass attempt of the game was picked off by Donnie Edwards, ending the third longest streak of his career. With his 22nd pass attempt of the game against Miami (10/17), Bledsoe moved ahead of Steve Grogan (3,593) as the franchise's leader for career pass attempts, giving him the franchise records for attempts and completions in just his seventh season. Bledsoe then led the Patriots to a 24-23 victory over the Broncos (10/24), their first win in the series since 1980. At Arizona (10/31) he completed 14-of-22 passes for 276 yards and four touchdowns without an interception, giving him a career-high 146.8 passer rating. Against the N.Y. Jets (11/15) Bledsoe led the Patriots on two fourth quarter scoring drives with touchdown passes to Kevin Faulk and Troy Brown. He completed his longest pass of the season at Miami (11/21) with a 68-yard touchdown to Jefferson. With a 10-yard pass to Terry Glenn in the fourth quarter against Dallas (12/5), Bledsoe reached the 25,000-yard passing plateau. He also eclipsed the 3,000-yard passing plateau for the sixth consecutive season on a 25-yard completion to Jefferson. From 1962-92, that feat had been accomplished just five times by four different New England quarterbacks, Tony Eason was the only other quarterback in Pats history to have multiple 3,000-yard seasons (two). In back-to-back road games at Indianapolis (12/12) and Philadelphia (12/19), Bledsoe topped the 300-yard passing mark, throwing for 379 yards against the Colts and 331 yards against the Eagles.

1998: Bledsoe extended his consecutive games started streak to 58 games, including three starts with a compound fracture to his right index finger, before missing the last two games of the regular season and playoffs. Despite missing two games and starting three others with a broken finger, Bledsoe still finished among the AFC's leading passers with 481 attempts (fourth), 263 completions (fourth), 3,633 yards (second) and 20 touchdowns (tied for fifth) while his 14 interceptions were a career-low at the time. Bledsoe displayed tremendous resiliency and fortitude leading the Patriots to three consecutive victories over Miami, Buffalo and Pittsburgh late in the season to propel the Patriots to their third consecutive playoff appearance – a franchise record – all despite playing with a fractured right index finger. He originally injured the finger in the fourth quarter against Miami (11/23) but still led the team on a 15-play, 80-yard scoring drive, capped by a 25-yard touchdown pass to Shawn Jefferson with just 0:29 remaining in the game to give the Patriots a 26-23 victory. He finished the game with a (non-OT) career-high 423 yards after completing 28-of-54 passes with two touchdowns. His play earned him the NFL's Miller Lite Player of the Week and AFC Offensive Player of the Week honors. After missing an entire week of practice, he started the following week against Buffalo (11/29) and completed his second consecutive come-from-behind, game-winning touchdown toss, this time with a one-yard pass to Ben Coates with no time on the clock. It marked the first time in NFL history that a quarterback led his team to consecutive come-from-behind victories and game-winning touchdowns in the final 30 seconds of each game. He finished the Bills contest with 246 yards and three touchdowns (28-of-43 passing) and became the first player since the award's inception to earn back-to-back NFL Miller Lite Player of the Week honors. He followed those heroics with a 327-yard effort (on 21-of-34 attempts) in a 23-9 victory at Pittsburgh (12/6), highlighted by a career-long 86-yard touchdown pass to Terry Glenn. In addition to the Miami and Buffalo wins, Bledsoe also orchestrated fourth quarter comebacks against Tennessee (9/20) and at New Orleans (10/4). Trailing 16-13 in the fourth quarter, he completed three-of-four passes for 65 yards and a touchdown against the Titans to secure a 27-16 win, and against the Saints with the score knotted at 27, he completed six-of-eight attempts for 79 yards to set up the game-winning field goal in a 30-27 victory. In the season finale at St. Louis (12/13), Bledsoe moved ahead of Grogan (1,879) as the franchise's all-time completion leader with a four-yard pass to Lovett Purnell.

1997: Bledsoe started every game for the second consecutive season and was once again among the league leaders in most passing categories, completing 314 (second in the NFL) of 522 passes (third) for 3,706 yards (fourth) – his fourth consecutive season eclipsing the 3,500-yard passing plateau – and 28 touchdowns (third). His +13 touchdown-to-interception differential ranked third in the league and his 87.7 quarterback rating set a single-season career-high and ranked third in the AFC. At the end of the season, he led the Patriots to their second consecutive division title – a franchise first – guided them to the playoffs for the third time in four seasons and made his third trip to the Pro Bowl. Entering the season, he had completed four passes of 50 yards-or-more but completed seven passes of 50 yards-or-more during the year, including three to Troy Brown. Bledsoe also led the league in third down completion percentage (.600), completing 102-of-170 attempts with a league-high 10 of his 28 touchdowns coming on third down. He opened the season with a near flawless performance, completing 26-of-39 passes (66.7%) for 340 yards and four touchdowns against San Diego (8/31) and posting a quarterback rating of 128.2 – the third highest single-game rating of his career. The following week at Indianapolis (9/7), he completed 15-of-25 passes for 267 yards and four more touchdowns to finish with a 136.2 quarterback rating – at that point, the highest rating of his career. With that performance he became the first player in NFL history to throw at least four touchdown passes in each of the first two weeks of the season. The eight touchdown passes in two games marked the highest two-game total of his career and were spread to eight different receivers. It was not until the third week of the season against the N.Y. Jets (9/14) that he threw his first interception. Later in the season at the N.Y. Jets (10/19), Bledsoe completed 24-of-38 passes for 294 yards, including a season-long 67-yard completion to Troy Brown. He added a pair of touchdown passes against the Jets to give him 17 through the first seven games of the season. He did not throw an interception in a victory at Buffalo (11/9) and extended his consecutive games with a touchdown streak to 11 while posting his third game of the year with a quarterback rating over 100.0. After a tough game at Tampa Bay (11/16) that saw his touchdown streak snapped, Bledsoe rebounded to guide the Patriots to victories in four of their next five games. He had a streak of 120 consecutive attempts without an interception snapped against Pittsburgh (12/13), but did set a single-season career best with his 28th touchdown pass of the year when he hit David Meggett for a 49-yard score. A 14-12 victory at Miami (12/22) in the season finale propelled the Patriots into the playoffs. He completed 18-of-26 passes (69.2%) against the Dolphins but did not throw a touchdown pass for just the third time all season. However, his two short touchdown runs were enough to secure the win. In an AFC Wild Card rematch with the Dolphins (12/28), Bledsoe hit Brown with a 24-yard touchdown. He finished the game completing 16-of-32 passes for 139 yards, and his touchdown pass to Brown proved to be enough in a 17-3 win. The following week in a divisional playoff game at Pittsburgh (1/3/98), he threw for 264 yards – a postseason career-high – while completing 23-of-44 attempts (52.3%), but was intercepted twice and fumbled due to a blindside hit on the team's final possession.

1996: Bledsoe started all 19 games for the Patriots, including playoffs, the most single-season starts by a quarterback in franchise history. For the second time in three seasons, he eclipsed the 4,000-yard passing plateau and earned his second trip to the Pro Bowl. Along the way he led the league in pass attempts (623) for the third consecutive season and in completions (373) for the second time in three years. After an 0-2 start, Bledsoe guided the team to victories in 11 of the next 14 games to claim the AFC East title. He then directed victories over Pittsburgh and Jacksonville to claim the AFC Championship and advance to Super Bowl XXXI. The Pats were without receivers Terry Glenn and Vincent Brisby and then lost Shawn Jefferson to a concussion during the season opener at Miami (9/1), a 24-10 loss. In the home opener, Bledsoe led New England to a 31-0 blanking of Arizona (9/15) by completing 21-of-35 attempts (60.0%) for 221 yards and three touchdowns without an interception, but it was his pickup of a first down on fourth-and-one when he jumped over a Cardinals defender that will be most remembered. He completed his first eight pass attempts against Jacksonville (9/22) the following week and led the Pats on a 49-yard drive to set up the game-winning kick in an overtime victory. The next week at Baltimore (10/6), he threw a season-high and career-high tying four touchdown passes in a 46-38 win, completing 25-of-39 attempts (64.1%) for 310 yards. Against Miami (11/3) he completed 30-of-41 attempts (73.2%) for a season-best 419 yards, the second-highest single-game passing total in franchise history (426 vs. Minnesota, Nov. 13, 1994). At the N.Y. Jets (11/10) he finished with 297 yards (24-of-34) and three touchdowns in a dramatic 31-27 come-from-behind victory. Bledsoe posted his fourth 300-yard game of the season with 301 yards and two touchdowns, including the game-winning touchdown pass to Ben Coates with just 1:32 remaining, at the N.Y. Giants (12/21). Also in the game he eclipsed the 4,000-yard passing plateau for the second time in three seasons, becoming just the fourth quarterback in NFL history to post multiple 4,000-yard passing seasons. In the postseason he completed 14-of-24 attempts for 164 yards and a touchdown in a 28-3 divisional playoff victory over Pittsburgh (1/5/97), then connected on 20-of-33 attempts for 172 yards in the AFC Championship Game win over Jacksonville (1/12/97). In Super Bowl XXXI against Green Bay (1/26/97), Bledsoe threw for 253 yards and a pair of touchdowns.

1995: For the second straight season, Bledsoe attempted (636) and completed (323) more passes for more yards (3,507) than any other quarterback in Patriots history, doing so in just 15 games. His 636 pass attempts were the third most in NFL history. Unlike his record-setting 1994 season (when the Patriots relied on Bledsoe's passing far more than the running game), New England had a far more productive running game that resulted in the franchise's all-time single-season rushing leader - Curtis Martin, 1,487 yards. For the second consecutive year, Bledsoe attempted more passes than any other NFL quarterback and ranked second in the AFC in pass completions. He also established a franchise record during a seven-game stretch at midseason when he attempted 179 consecutive passes without an interception, breaking the record of 178 (Tony Eason, 1986). Bledsoe opened the season against Cleveland (9/3) by guiding the Patriots to a come-from-behind 17-14 victory after trailing 14-9 with just 4:29 remaining in the game. He led a 14-play, 85-yard drive which was capped by Martin's game-winning touchdown run with just 0:19 remaining. He then attempted 51 passes in back-to-back losses against Miami (9/10) and at San Francisco (9/17). He took a devastating hit from linebacker Ken Norton late in the first quarter against the 49ers and was forced to leave the game with a separated left shoulder. He re-entered the game early in the second quarter and played through the pain after missing just one offensive series. Bledsoe had a streak of 23 consecutive starts snapped when he missed the following game at Atlanta (10/1) following the Patriots bye week while still recovering from the injury. He returned to the starting lineup and attempted 56 passes against Denver (10/8), but he could not generate an offensive touchdown despite penetrating the red zone on four occasions. He threw his first touchdown pass of the season at Kansas City (10/15) when he connected with Vincent Brisby for a 22-yard score in the third quarter. When the Pats hosted their first Monday Night Football game in 14 years, a 27-14 victory over the Bills (10/23), Bledsoe threw for 262 yards and a touchdown. He then had three touchdowns in a 35-25 victory at Buffalo (11/26), completing the first series sweep of the Bills since 1987. However, he had his record-breaking streak of passes without an interception ended at 179 when Buffalo's Bryce Paup picked him off at the Bills goal line. He sustained a contusion to his right shoulder in the first quarter at Pittsburgh (12/16) on a hit by Greg Lloyd, yet finished the game with a season-high performance completing 39-of-60 passes for 336 yards and three touchdowns.

1994: Bledsoe had a record setting season, leading the NFL in pass attempts (691), completions (400) and yards (4,555) on his way to his first career Pro Bowl appearance - at 22 years of age, he became the youngest quarterback to ever play in the game. Among NFL quarterbacks, only Dan Marino, who threw for 5,084 yards in 1984, had a more spectacular sophomore season. Bledsoe set three NFL passing records during the year - most attempts in a season (691), most attempts in a game (70) and most completions in a game (45) - and came within four completions of establishing a fourth NFL record - his 400 completions ranked second only to Warren Moon who completed 404 passes for Houston in 1991. In guiding the NFL's top-rated passing offense, averaging 277.8 yards-per-game, he completed over 50 passes to five different targets - Ben Coates (96), Michael Timpson (74), Leroy Thompson (65), Vincent Brisby (58) and Kevin Turner (52) - the first time in NFL history that had been accomplished. Bledsoe also set eight franchise passing records - most attempts in a season (691), most attempts in a game (70), most completions in a season (400), most completions in a game (45), most passing yards in a season (4,555), most passing yards in a game (426), most consecutive 300-yard games (four) and most 300-yard games in one season (six). He also finished fourth in the league with 25 touchdown passes, trailing only Steve Young (35), Brett Favre (33) and Dan Marino (30). With 16 starts, Bledsoe became the first Patriots quarterback to do so since Steve Grogan in 1975. He opened the season throwing for over 300 yards in five of the first six games. In the season opener at Miami (9/4), he set a Patriots passing record by throwing for 421 yards (which he broke nine games later) in just his 13th NFL start, completing 32-of-51 passes while throwing four touchdowns. Against Green Bay (10/2) Bledsoe would earn NFL Miller Lite Player of the Week and AFC Player of the Week honors in leading the Patriots to a 17-16 come-from-behind win. Trailing 16-14 with 1:14 remaining in the game, he directed the Patriots on an 11-play, 45-yard drive which set up the game-winning field goal by Matt Bahr (33 yards) with just 0:04 remaining. Bledsoe finished the day 29-of-53 for 334 yards, two touchdowns and one interception. He won those same honors in November when he exploded for franchise records against Minnesota (11/13), completing 45-of-70 passes for 421 yards and three touchdowns. The 70 pass attempts set an NFL record for passes in a game. Trailing 20-0 with 0:58 left in the first half, he completed four consecutive passes to lead the Patriots on a seven-play, 48-yard drive and a 38-yard field goal as time expired. In the second half, Bledsoe turned in a legendary performance by completing 37-of-53 attempts (69.8%) for 354 yards and three touchdowns, without an interception, sack or penalty called against him. He connected with Ray Crittenden on a 31-yard touchdown on the opening drive of the second half and then pulled the Pats to within three (20-17) with a five-yard touchdown pass to Leroy Thompson with 2:27 remaining in regulation. With just 1:51 left, he converted a fourth-and-10 by completing a 25-yard pass to Brisby. He went on to complete his next four attempts to take the Patriots to the five-yard line, where Bahr kicked the game-tying field goal with just 0:14 remaining, sending the game into overtime. In the extra period he completed his first five passes and won the game with a 14-yard touchdown strike to Kevin Turner. The 26 unanswered points in the 26-20 victory ignited a seven-game win streak to close the season. Trailing 10-9 at Indianapolis (11/27) with 3:13 remaining, Bledsoe directed his third fourth-quarter comeback of the season with a 12-play, 55-yard drive to position Bahr for his second game-winning field goal (42 yards) of the season. He attempted 50 passes for the sixth time during the season in the Patriots 20-13 Wild Card playoff loss at Cleveland (1/1/95).

1993: Bledsoe played in 13 games with 12 starts as a rookie, leading an offense that improved from its 27th ranking in 1992 to 12th in 1993. He led a passing attack that jumped 14 places in the NFL rankings, from 26th to 12th. At the age of 21, he became the youngest player in franchise history and just the second Patriots rookie quarterback to start in his NFL debut (Jim Plunkett, 1971). He rewrote the Patriots rookie passing records by finishing the season with 214 completions on 429 attempts for 2,494 yards and 15 touchdowns. His 2,494 yards ranked fourth all-time on the NFL's rookie quarterback list and were 10th all-time among the Patriots career passing leaders. Bledsoe was inactive for three games (vs. Houston 10/17, at Seattle 10/24 and at Indianapolis 10/31) after injuring his left knee just before halftime of the 23-21 victory at Phoenix (10/10). He saved his best game for the season finale, throwing for a season-high 329 yards on 27-of-43 passing, including four touchdowns in a 33-27 overtime victory against Miami (1/2/94). He teamed with Timpson on the 36-yard touchdown pass that won the game in overtime.

COLLEGE: Despite only starting 28 games during his collegiate career (1990-92), Bledsoe left Washington State ranked second on the all-time passing list with 7,373 yards, topped only by Jack Thompson's 7,818 yards (44 games). Upon his departure, his 46 touchdowns and 532 completions ranked second on WSU's career passing list, behind Thompson's 53 scores and 601 completions. He was named All-Pac-10 and was ninth in the nation in total offense as a junior in 1992, averaging 247.0 yards-per-game and completing 211-of-386 passes for 2,770 yards and 18 touchdowns. He hit on 37-of-66 passes for a school-record 413 yards against Montana and then was selected Pac-10 Player of the Week after connecting on 18-of-30 passes for 259 yards and a touchdown in blizzard-like conditions against Washington. He broke his own school-record by throwing for 476 yards (30-of-46) and tied another record with an 87-yard pass, as the Cougars rolled up 636 total yards in a Copper Bowl victory over Utah. As a sophomore, Bledsoe earned All-Pac-10 conference second-team honors in 1991 after completing 199-of-358 passes (55.6%) for 2,741 yards. His 2,647 yards of total offense was the fourth best performance in school history. He won the starting quarterback position in 1990 to become the first true freshman to start at the position for Washington State in over 30 years.

PERSONAL: Drew McQueen Bledsoe is the son of Mac and Barbara Bledsoe and was born on Feb. 14, 1972 in Ellensburg, Wash. He was selected first-team all-state by the Tacoma News Tribune after his senior year at Walla Walla, Wash., High School and was named to numerous local and regional all-star teams, including the Western 100, Northwest Nugget, Long Beach Press Telegram 'Best of the West' and Seattle Times Blue Chip while earning SuperPrep's Far West Offensive Player of the Year and Washington State Player of the Year honors. He also lettered in basketball. An education major at Washington State, Bledsoe established the Albert 'Stu' Bledsoe Endowed Football Scholarship, a $150,000 endowment to his alma mater, in the name of his grandfather. He serves as International Chairman of the Children's Miracle Network, helping to raise millions of dollars annually to benefit hospitalized children in 170 children's hospitals nationwide. He also founded the Drew Bledsoe Foundation (developed and run by his parents Mac and Barbara Bledsoe), whose mission is to improve the lives of American children by teaching parenting skills to parents and launched a web site for the foundation in 1999 at www.drewbledsoe.com. Around Thanksgiving, Bledsoe can be found distributing turkeys to families in need. He also continues to support the local United Way Annual Campaign. In 2001, Bledsoe received Pop Warner's top honor, the Inspiration to Youth Award. In 2005, he was inducted into the Humanitarian Hall of Fame for his contributions to the communities in which he has lived. Bledsoe quickly became a fan favorite in Dallas and was selected the 2005 winner of the Bob Lilly Award given to the Dallas Cowboys player that best exemplifies the sportsmanship, dedication, leadership and achievement characteristics of Hall of Fame defensive tackle Bob Lilly. To help victims of hurricane Katrina, Bledsoe made a $2,500 donation to the Salvation Army for every touchdown pass he threw during the 2005 NFL season, totaling $57,500. The Bledsoe Family also worked with The Salvation Army to adopt a family in need for Christmas. They provided this family with gifts for Christmas morning. His grandfather, Albert McQueen Bledsoe, was a Top Gun fighter pilot during World War II and a four-star Navy Admiral. In 1998, Bledsoe authored his first children's book, entitled 'Make the Right Call.' In April, 2006 Bledsoe caddied for family friend Ben Crane as he captured the Master's Par-3 Tournament title. Bledsoe will soon begin the initial planting of grapes for his Flying B Vineyard in his home state of Washington and hopes to begin wine production in a few years. Drew and his wife, Maura, have three sons, Stuart, John, and Henry, and a PRO: Rocky Boiman, an athletic fifth-year linebacker, provides experience and versatility for Dallas at the linebacker position as a free agent acquisition in 2006 from Tennessee. He has the ability to play either outside linebacker spot, serve in goal line situations or rush the passer from the end position. In his four NFL seasons, Boiman has recorded 113 tackles, 1.5 sacks and two interceptions working at linebacker. On top of that he has excelled as a special teams player during his career, logging 59 tackles while a member of the Titans coverage units. As a rookie in 2002, Boiman quickly established himself as one of the team's better special teams players, leading the team with 28 special teams tackles – the most by a Titans player since the organization began tracking the statistic in 1987. He then became a fixture on defense beginning in 2003, setting career-highs in almost every defensive category. Boiman was originally taken in the fourth round (133rd overall) of the 2002 NFL Draft by the Tennessee Titans.

2005: Boiman saw action in 15 games with two starts at left outside linebacker and finished the season with 28 tackles. He also tied for third on the team with 15 tackles on special teams. In the season opener at Pittsburgh (9/11) he recorded three tackles. He had one tackle and a season-high three tackles on special teams against Baltimore (9/18). At St. Louis (9/25) he tied for the team lead with two stops on special teams. At Houston (10/9), Boiman recorded two tackles and a special teams stop before matching his season-high with three tackles on special teams against Cincinnati (10/16). Boiman notched his first start of the season at Arizona (10/23) and recorded five tackles and a stop on special teams. He moved back into a reserve role against Oakland (10/30), posting two tackles and a tackle on special teams despite injuring his calf in the game. He was then inactive at Cleveland (11/6) due to the calf injury, but returned to action against Jacksonville (11/20) with three tackles and a tackle on special teams. Against San Francisco (11/27) and Indianapolis (12/4) he posted two tackles from his linebacker position and one on special teams. Boiman returned to the starting lineup in the season finale at Jacksonville (1/1/06) recording six tackles.

2004: Boiman entered the season as the starting left outside linebacker due to Peter Sirmon's season-ending knee injury suffered during the Titans training camp. He played in seven games with six starts but was limited due to left knee and right calf injuries. He finished the season with 24 tackles, one tackle for a loss and one pass defended. In the season opener at Miami (9/12) he recorded two tackles. The following week in the home opener against Indianapolis (9/19) he recorded a season-high five tackles. He recorded four tackles against Jacksonville (9/26) before spraining his left knee. The injury kept him out of the lineup the next two games at San Diego (10/3) and at Green Bay (10/11). He returned to the starting lineup against Houston (10/17) and recorded four tackles along with a tackle for a loss. He did not start at Minnesota (10/24), but matched his season-high of five tackles. He recorded four tackles against Chicago (11/14) and helped limit the Bears to 176 yards of total offense before missing the final seven games of the season with a strained right calf.

2003: Boiman saw action in every game, starting three, and set career-highs in tackles (55), sacks (1.5), interceptions (2) and tackles for a loss (4). He also finished fourth on the squad with 16 tackles on special teams. In the season opener against Oakland (9/7), he posted a special teams tackle, three stops and a half-sack – the first sack of his career. At Pittsburgh (9/28) he stepped in at linebacker in the first quarter after a back injury to Sirmon and posted eight stops and a sack of quarterback Tommy Maddox in the end zone for a safety. He also intercepted Maddox in the fourth quarter returning it 60-yards for a touchdown – the first of his career – to seal the Titans 30-13 win. Following his performance, he was named AFC Defensive Player of the Week. The following week at New England (10/5) in his first NFL start, he posted eight tackles, two tackles for a loss and one stop on special teams. Against Houston (10/12) he posted a career-high 11 stops on defense, a quarterback pressure and his second interception of the season. At Carolina (10/19) he got his third start of the season posting six tackles while helping limit Panthers Pro Bowl running back Stephen Davis to 20 yards on 11 carries, his lowest rushing total of the regular season. At Atlanta (11/23) Boiman was credited with five tackles on defense and two on special teams and helped limit the Falcons rushing attack to 25 yards on 20 carries. In the postseason he recorded one start in the four-linebacker package at Baltimore (1/3/04) and accounted for two stops on defense and was part of a defensive contingency which helped limit NFL rushing leader Jamal Lewis to a season low 35 yards on 14 carries.

2002: As a rookie, Boiman saw action in all 16 games, primarily on special teams where he blocked one punt and set a team record with 28 special teams tackles – the most ever by a Titans player since 1987 when it became a recorded statistic and one forced fumble. He also played as a reserve outside linebacker on defense, posting six tackles. Boiman recorded two or more special teams tackles in 10 of the Titans 16 regular season games. He was credited with a career-high four special teams tackles in victories against Philadelphia (9/8), at Cincinnati (10/27) and against Indianapolis (12/8). He accounted for two tackles on special teams against Jacksonville (10/13) and in the season finale at Houston (12/29) he posted three special teams tackles and blocked a punt. In the AFC Divisional Playoff Game against Pittsburgh (1/11/03) he posted one stop on special teams before leaving the game in the third quarter with a left knee contusion. He returned the next week at Oakland (11/19/03) to add another special teams stop.

COLLEGE: Boiman started 21-of-43 games at Notre Dame, recording 144 tackles, 8.5 sacks, five fumble recoveries, two forced fumbles and one pass deflection in his career. He started seven games as senior posting 41 tackles, including a career-high 12 against Ohio State and 11 against Texas A&M.

PERSONAL: Rocky Michael Boiman was born in Cincinnati, Ohio and attended St. Xavier High School. Boiman was a three-sport athlete, who was named all-city in baseball twice, served as captain of the track team as a senior and was named to the Ohio North-South all-star game and Ohio-Pennsylvania Big 33 all-star game. He was also named Southwest Ohio Player of the Year, Greater Cincinnati League Player of the Year and All-City Player of the Year in 1997 at St. Xavier. He served as a football captain and won team MVP and all-state honors during his senior year, finishing with 164 tackles, six interceptions and 139 return yards. He finished his high school career with 330 tackles, 11 interceptions and 15 passes deflections, earning him three letters and all-league honors in each of his three seasons. He also set school records for most kickoff return yards plus longest kickoff return (95 yards). Upon coming to Dallas, Boiman joined Cowboys Linebacker DeMarcus Ware and Defensive End Marcus Spears and a dozen other teammates in support of the Second Annual Taste of the NFL: The Ultimate Dallas Cowboys Tailgate Party which benefited the North Texas Food Bank. The event helped raise money that will provide over 330,000 meals to North Texans in need.

COWBOYS

PRO: In an effort to increase the physical size and athleticism of their team, the Dallas Cowboys used their second round draft choice (42nd overall) to select Kevin Burnett from the University of Tennessee in the 2005 NFL Draft. Burnett was plagued by injuries during his rookie season, having to undergo surgery at the end of training camp to clean out cartilage damage in his left knee and then major reconstructive surgery to repair the ACL in his right knee during the last week of the season. Sandwiched between those two injuries, he proved to be a valuable coverage player on special teams and got his first taste of action at outside linebacker as well. He spent the offseason rehabilitating his knee and should be healthy to battle for a role on the defense this fall.

2005: Burnett saw most of his playing time on special teams and finished the season with 11 tackles, tying him for fourth on the team. He was inactive for the first two games of the season following arthroscopic surgery on Sept. 8 to repair cartilage damage in his left knee. He saw his first NFL action on special teams at San Francisco (9/25). Against Philadelphia (10/9) he tied for the team led with two special teams tackles and added another tackle on special teams against Arizona (10/30). Against Philadelphia (11/14) he saw extensive playing time at linebacker and recorded two stops. He recorded two tackles and his first career sack as DeMarcus Ware's back-up at outside linebacker against Kansas City (12/11) while also adding a stop on special teams. At Washington (12/18) he added two tackles on defense and two more on special teams. He then led the team with three special teams tackles at Carolina (12/24). He landed on injured reserve Dec. 29 after tearing the ACL in his right knee during practice on Dec. 28.

COLLEGE: Burnett was a two-time All-Southeastern Conference selection and in 2003, he – along with offensive tackle Michael Munoz – became the first juniors to serve as team captains since 1944. In 2004 they became the first two-time captains since J.G. Lowe earned the honor in 1924-25. To wrap up his collegiate career, Burnett earned All-America and first-team All-Southeastern Conference honors while being selected as a semi-finalist for the Butkus Award and the Bronko Nagurski Award after posting a career-high 120 tackles, six stops for losses, a sack and an interception. After spending 2002 rehabilitating a torn anterior cruciate ligament in his left knee, Burnett returned to the playing field in 2003, started 12-of-13 games and garnered second-team All-SEC honors by registering 90 tackles, 7.5 stops for losses, eight pressures, three passes defended and 1.5 sacks. Burnett tore the ACL in his left knee in the season opener of his junior season. As a sophomore, he played in 12 games, posting 52 tackles, 6.5 tackles for losses, 3.5 sacks and three pass deflections. Burnett saw action in 11 games as a freshman, recording 11 tackles, two sacks and a fumble recovery.

PERSONAL: Kevin Bradley Burnett was a stand-out safety and running back for Dominguez High School in Compton, Calif., where he earned PrepStar All-America and second-team all-state honors as a safety following his senior season. He also was named all-conference as a running back having rushed for 650 yards and 16 touchdowns on 48 carries. He finished his prep career with seven interceptions while leading Dominguez to the state playoffs in 1998 and 1999. Burnett – who earned his degree in Sports Management – was a member of the SEC Academic Honor Roll in 2002 and 2003 and the SEC and American Football Coaches Association Good Works teams in 2003. He earned his masters in Sports Management in 2004. As a rookie, Burnett was a member of the Cowboys 2005 Rookie Club – a program designed to introduce rookie team members to community service in the Dallas area which included work with The Salvation Army, Children's Medical Center Dallas and Meals on Wheels.

COWBOYS

PRO: Perhaps the surprise in the Cowboys 2005 draft class was the quick emergence of defensive end Chris Canty. After entering his senior season as a potential first round draft choice, Canty fell into the fourth round because of a knee injury during his senior season as well as a detached retina in his left eye in the spring prior to the draft. After trading a fifth round pick in 2005 and a fourth rounder in 2006 to Philadelphia for the Eagles fourth round choice, the Cowboys landed Canty who came on to lead all Dallas defensive linemen with 43 tackles. With impressive size – 6-7, 300 pounds – and an innate quickness that allows him to get into opposing backfields off the edge, Canty should be a cornerstone on the Dallas front line for many years to come.

2005: After working throughout the spring and summer to rehabilitate his knee and recover from the retina injury, Canty was on the field one week into training camp. He split time with Greg Ellis at right defensive end and led all defensive linemen with 43 tackles. He was also second on the team with five tackles behind the line and tied for fourth on the club with 2.5 sacks. Canty took to the field in the season opener at San Diego (9/11) and recorded his first NFL tackle along with a quarterback pressure. Against Washington (9/19) he added his first career sack with a third-quarter take-down of Mark Brunell. He was third on the team, tops among linemen with a season-high six tackles at Oakland (10/2). He also added half a sack and a tackle for a loss. Canty had two tackles against Philadelphia (10/9) as the defense limited the Eagles to 129 total yards, including just 19 on the ground – the fourth lowest rushing total in club history. At Seattle (10/23) he recorded two tackles as the NFL's top ranked offense entering the game was limited to 289 total yards, 118 below their season average, and one touchdown. Shaun Alexander, the NFL leading rusher entering the game at 119 yards-per-game (5.5 avg.), was limited to 61 yards on 21 carries (2.9 avg.). Canty had a season-high two quarterback pressures against Arizona (10/30) as well as a tackle and a tackle behind the line as the defense limited the Cardinals to 213 total yards, including just 71 on the ground. At Philadelphia (11/14), he saw considerable playing time on first and second downs, recorded two tackles, a tackle for a loss and a forced fumble that the Eagles recovered. His play against Detroit (11/20) helped limit the Lions to 226 total yards, including just 29 yards on 12 carries (2.4 avg.) by Kevin Jones. Canty led all linemen with three tackles and added his second sack of the season against Denver (11/24). At the N.Y. Giants (12/4), Canty earned his first NFL start, replacing Ellis at right end, and recorded four tackles as the Giants were limited to 277 total yards and 10 offensive points. He started again the next week against Kansas City (12/11) and led all defensive linemen with five tackles despite suffering a sprained ankle during the game. He did not start but saw action at Washington (12/18) after missing two days of practice due to the ankle. He recorded two tackles and a tackle behind the line at Carolina (12/24) as the Dallas defense limited Carolina to 71 rushing yards on 24 carries (3.0 avg.) with a long of nine yards. In the season finale against St. Louis (1/1/06), Canty led all defensive linemen with five tackles and also had a tackle for a loss.

COLLEGE: A two-time second-team All-ACC selection, Canty led all conference defensive linemen in tackles as a sophomore and junior. Canty's senior campaign was cut short in the fourth game of the season when he tore the anterior cruciate ligament, medial collateral ligament and posterior cruciate ligament in his left knee. At the time of his injury, he had posted 30 tackles, seven stops for losses, a sack and a forced fumble. As a junior, Canty was named second-team All-Atlantic Coast Conference, Lineman of the Year in Virginia and recipient of the Ned McDonald Award as UVA's Most Outstanding Defensive Player after registering a career-high 104 tackles, 12 stops for losses, 12 pressures and four sacks. He became only the second down lineman in school history to record more than 100 tackles in a season. His performance in the classroom also helped him earn All-ACC Academic honors. Despite missing three games due to injury, Canty finished his sophomore season with 86 tackles, four stops for losses, four pass deflections, three pressures, three fumble recoveries and two sacks while starting eight-of-11 games. Canty saw action in 12 games as a reserve defensive end in 2001 after redshirting his first year at Virginia. He started one game and recorded 23 tackles, three pressures, two passes defended and a tackle for a loss.

PERSONAL: Despite not playing football until his junior season at Charlotte, N.C., Latin School, Christopher Lee Canty earned all-state honors as a senior tight end and defensive end after recording 20 catches for 400 yards on offense and 89 tackles and seven sacks on defense. He finished his prep career with 161 tackles, 12 sacks and two fumble recoveries. He was also a two-year letterman and all-conference honoree for the basketball team. He received his bachelor's degree in African-American studies in May of 2004 and took graduate course work in secondary education during his final football season at Virginia. As a rookie, Canty was a member of the Cowboys 2005 Rookie Club – a program designed to introduce rookie team members to community service in the Dallas area which included work with The Salvation Army, Children's Medical Center Dallas and Meals on Wheels. He also participated in the 2006 Stars of Texas...Racing Against the Odds event hosted by local newspaper columnist and radio personality Randy Galloway that raised over $300,000 for the American Diabetes Association. His mother, Shirley, is an ordained Methodist minister.

COWBOYS

COLLEGE: The Cowboys selected Bobby Carpenter with their first pick in the 2006 NFL Draft to give them a tough, athletic linebacker to lineup opposite of their first round selection last year, DeMarcus Ware. Carpenter has the size and speed to be an effective run stopper while also being able to pressure the passer with speed (4.63 in the 40) and bull-rushing ability. He is also a solid athlete who can cover backs out of the backfield or tight ends in the passing game. One of the more accomplished defenders to come out of Ohio State in recent years, Carpenter finished his Buckeye career 10th on the school's all-time quarterback sacks list with 14.5. As a member of what was considered to be the best linebacking corps in college last season, he helped the Ohio State defense lead the nation in rushing defense and finish fifth in both total defense and scoring defense. The son of former NFL running back, Rob Carpenter, who played for Cowboys head coach Bill Parcells with the N.Y. Giants (1983-85), the younger Carpenter has benefited from the experience of having a father who played in the NFL and coached him in high school.

2005: Carpenter wrapped-up his college career by earning All-Big Ten Conference second-team honors for the second consecutive year after posting 49 tackles, a career-high eight sacks, 10.5 tackles behind the line of scrimmage and three pass deflections. He played a key role in the Buckeyes' 10-2 record and a berth in the Fiesta Bowl. Carpenter started his senior season with three tackles, one sack and one tackle for a loss against Miami before posting 11 stops and two tackles for a loss against Texas. Against San Diego State he had three stops with two sacks and two tackles for a loss before posting another three stops and one sack and one stop behind the line of scrimmage against Iowa. He tied his season-high with 11 stops the next week against Michigan State while also posting both season-high and career-high numbers with four sacks and four tackles for losses. At Indiana he added three stops before recording another four at Minnesota. Against Illinois he managed one tackle and added six stops against Northwestern. He suffered a broken right fibula at Michigan and was unable to play in the Fiesta Bowl against Notre Dame due to injury.

2004: An All-Big Ten Conference second-team selection, Carpenter posted a career-high 93 stops, two sacks and 6.5 tackles for losses. He also intercepted three passes and had three pass deflections. In four games he had at least 10 tackles, leading the team in tackles in three of those. In the season opener against Cincinnati he tied for the team lead with nine tackles before posting a career high 13 stops against Marshall. He notched three stops at North Carolina State and added another 10 at Northwestern to go along with an interception. Against Wisconsin he posted six tackles and one tackle for a loss before adding four stops at Iowa. Against Indiana he led the team with 11 stops, had one interception, one sack and two tackles for a loss. He had two tackles against Penn State before leading the team and tying his career-best with 13 tackles at Michigan State. At Purdue he had nine stops, one sack and two tackles for a loss before tallying another nine stops against Michigan. In the season finale against Oklahoma State, he had four stops and one interception which he returned nine-yards to setup an Ohio State score.

2003: Carpenter saw action in every game, while notching four starts at strong-outside linebacker, and recorded 37 tackles, 4.5 sacks and 6.5 tackles for losses. The Buckeyes rolled to an 11-2 record, including a win over Kansas State in the Fiesta Bowl. He recorded at least one stop in every game but Indiana while posting a season-high six tackles against Bowling Green. At Penn State he recorded two stops and posted two more against Michigan State while also causing a fumble. Carpenter added four stops against Purdue and another two at Michigan. In the Fiesta Bowl against Kansas State he recorded five stops, two sacks and 2.5 tackles for a loss.

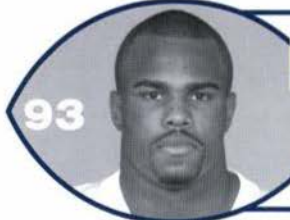

2002: Carpenter played in every game as a freshman helping the Buckeyes to a 14-0 record and the national championship win over Miami in the Fiesta Bowl. Although he mainly saw action on special teams, and as a backup linebacker, he finished his rookie season with 12 tackles. He began his collegiate career by making a tackle on the opening kickoff against Texas Tech and finished the season opener with three stops. He posted a season-high five stops against Kent State the next week.

PERSONAL: Carpenter attended Lancaster, Ohio, High School where he played football for his father, Rob Carpenter. He was a first-team all-Ohio choice as a senior and rated the 13th best outside linebacker in the country by Rivals.com. Carpenter finished his high school career with 128 tackles and 12 tackles behind the line of scrimmage, while also playing alongside his brother, Johathan, in 2001, who is currently a linebacker at the University of Cincinnati. As a member of the Lancaster swim team, he advanced to the district finals in both the 50 and 100 meter freestyle. Carpenter graduated with a degree in business from Ohio State.

PRO: Kenyon Coleman – one of the biggest defensive ends on the Dallas roster – was acquired in an Aug. 31, 2003 trade with the Oakland Raiders because of his size, strength and physical style of play. Combined with his athleticism, Coleman has all the traits needed to be a contributing player at the end of the Cowboys defensive line with the club's switch to the 3-4. Originally a fifth-round draft choice (147th overall) of the Raiders in the 2002 NFL Draft, Coleman will be looking to increase his playing time and contribution this fall as he battles for one of the key reserve spots on the Cowboys defensive front.

2005: Coleman started at left defensive end for five games, while seeing playing time in seven other contests. He totaled 17 tackles, 0.5 sacks, a tackle for a loss and one quarterback pressure on the year. He earned his first NFL start at left end at San Diego (9/11) and recorded two stops. Against Washington (9/19) he recorded three tackles, one quarterback pressure and a crucial tackle for a loss before adding three tackles at San Francisco (9/25). He recorded a career-high four tackles at Oakland (10/2) and split a sack with Chris Canty. He was inactive against Philadelphia (10/9) but returned to the action against the N.Y. Giants (10/16) to record one tackle. At Seattle (10/23) and against Arizona (10/30) he was inactive and then recorded a tackle as a reserve at Philadelphia (11/14) and against Kansas City (12/11). He recorded two more tackles at Carolina (12/24) but was inactive for the final game of the season against the Rams (1/1/06).

2004: As part of the defensive end rotation, Coleman recorded 10 tackles, two pressures and a sack in a reserve capacity. He opened the season at Minnesota (9/12) with a single stop before totaling a season-high tying two tackles against Cleveland (9/19) while helping limit the Browns to 202 total yards, including just 66 through the air. The following week at Washington (9/27), he registered a tackle and a quarterback pressure. He again tied his season-high with two stops against the N.Y. Giants (10/10). He recorded a single tackle at Cincinnati (11/7), then tallied the Cowboys only sack two weeks later at Baltimore (11/21) when he touched down Kyle Boller. He saw limited action the next four weeks and did not play in the final two games of the season.

2003: Despite joining the Cowboys the week of the season opener in a trade from Oakland, Coleman finished the year with 15 tackles, three quarterback pressures, a sack, a tackle for lost yardage, a fumble recovery and a pass break-up as a reserve in Dallas's defensive end rotation. In the overtime win at the N.Y. Giants (9/15), he knocked down his first career pass. In the following game, at the N.Y. Jets (9/28), he registered his first tackle as a member of the Cowboys. In Dallas's 24-7 win over Arizona (10/5), Coleman recorded his first career sack when he tackled Jeff Blake in the end zone for a safety. He also added a pressure in the Cardinals win. In the Cowboys win at Detroit (10/19), he recorded a tackle and recovered a fumble while helping limit the Lions to 157 total yards. Coleman posted one of his more productive outings of the year against Buffalo (11/9), recording two tackles and a pair of quarterback pressures while helping limit the Bills to 185 total yards. In the Thanksgiving Day loss to Miami (11/27), he had another two-tackle game, with one of his stops resulting in a loss of seven yards. He was a game-day deactivation for the Cowboys playoff loss at Carolina (1/3/04).

2002: Coleman was active for just one game – at Buffalo (10/6) – as a rookie and posted one tackle. He was inactive for 15 regular season games and all three Raiders playoff games.

COLLEGE: Coleman finished his collegiate career with 138 tackles, 16.5 sacks and 34 tackles for losses for the Bruins. His 34 tackles for losses placed him ninth in school history. After earning a medical redshirt as a true senior,

Coleman returned to the field in 2001 and was an All-Pac 10 selection after finishing with 44 tackles, 15 for losses, and a team-high 8.5 sacks. Coleman saw time in just three games in 2000 before suffering a torn meniscus in his left knee and was granted a medical redshirt. Coleman was one-of-four players to start every game as a junior, earning All-Pac 10 honors after finishing with 50 tackles, nine for losses and 3.5 sacks. Coleman started eight-of-10 games as a sophomore and led all defensive linemen with 23 tackles while adding 4.5 sacks, two fumble recoveries and a forced fumble. Coleman saw playing time in all 12 games as a true freshman, registering 15 tackles, three fumble recoveries and two passes defended.

PERSONAL: Kenyon Coleman lettered three years along the offensive and defensive lines at Alta Loma, Calif., High School. He was named PrepStar All-America as the fourth ranked offensive lineman in the west. As a senior, he was a key member of the team that finished 13-1 and ranked third in Division II. The philosophy major also played three years of varsity basketball. He and his wife, Katie, have a daughter, Kailah (5/17/04) and a son, Kaleb (7/27/05).

He followed that with two tackles and three special teams stops in the AFC Championship Game at Denver (1/17/99).

1997: Coleman played in 16 games for the Jets, starting the first two games of the season at free safety before being replaced by Jerome Henderson. He then moved to right corner and spent the remainder of the season backing up Otis Smith. He finished the year with seven tackles, two passes defended, one interception and one fumble return. He was also fourth on the team with 10 special teams stops.

1996: As a rookie, Coleman saw action in 13 games, starting the final three contests at right corner. He finished the season with 29 tackles and was third on the team with 10 passes defended. He also added four special teams stops. He replaced an injured Gary Jones at Miami (9/15) at free safety and recorded five tackles. He then earned his first NFL start at right corner against Houston (12/1), posting three tackles. He registered five tackles and one pass defended at New England (12/8). Coleman recorded his first career interception against Philadelphia (12/14) when he picked off Ty Detmer and returned the ball 23 yards to set up a Jets touchdown. He also posted five tackles and two passes defended.

COLLEGE: Coleman started 36 consecutive games for the Red Raiders and set a Southwest Conference record with four interception returns for touchdowns, one return short of the NCAA mark. He had nine career interceptions for 246 yards and the four scores. He also recorded 256 tackles and blocked six kicks. He was also a member of the Tech track team, competing in the triple jump and long jump where he earned all-conference honors.

PERSONAL: Coleman was born in Dallas, Texas and earned all-district and all-city honors as a safety at Lake Highland High School in Dallas. He detailed cars as a summer job while majoring in communications at Tech. He was very active in the community during his time in Houston leading the NFL/United Way Hometown Huddle at Cossaboom YMCA, visiting troops at Fort Hood Military Installation, serving as the spokesman for the Texans Blood Drive, serving as a model in two Texans Style Shows to benefit Houston Texans Foundation and Family Services of Greater Houston and participating in the Special Olympics Texas Sports and Celebrity Carnival. He has a daughter, Gabriella.

COWBOYS

PRO: The Dallas Cowboys signed Marc Colombo on Nov. 1, 2005 to provide depth at offensive tackle after losing Flozell Adams for the season. Colombo, a former first round selection (29th overall) by the Chicago Bears in 2002, is a big, strong lineman that has playing experience at both tackle positions. Colombo was limited to seven career starts at left tackle for the Bears and played as a reserve right tackle in 11 other games. Having worked through almost two years of rehabilitation because of a serious knee injury, Colombo enters the season as healthy as he has ever been. He also provides Dallas with an able body on special teams, having blocked two career field goal attempts.

2005: Colombo returned to the Bears and played in the season opener at Washington (9/11) but was released the next week. He was out of football until signing with Dallas on Nov. 1. He was inactive his first three games with Dallas but saw his first action on special teams at the N.Y. Giants (12/4). Against Kansas City (12/11) and at Washington (12/18) he played on special teams and at tight end in goal line situations. He was inactive at Carolina (12/24) before finishing out the season against St. Louis (1/1/06) on special teams.

2004: Colombo started the season on Reserve/PUP while rehabbing his knee injury. He was elevated to the active roster in Week 10 and saw time in eight games, starting two at left tackle. At Tennessee (11/14), he saw his first action since Nov. 18, 2002 and blocked a 52-yard field goal attempt – his second career blocked field goal. He started his first game of the season at Detroit (12/26) and helped the Bears gain 124 yards on 25 rushes (5.0 avg.).

2003: Colombo spent the entire 2003 season rehabbing his knee injury.

2002: Colombo was drafted in the first round by Chicago. After playing as a reserve the first five weeks of the season, he moved into the starting lineup at left tackle Week Six. He made his NFL debut in the season opener against Minnesota (9/8), subbing at right tackle for an injured James Williams. He spelled Williams in the second half at Atlanta (9/15) and then moved to left tackle in the second half at Buffalo (9/29). Colombo blocked his first kick – a 28-yard field goal attempt – against Green Bay (10/7). He made his first career start – at left tackle – at Detroit (10/20) and started the next five games. At St. Louis (11/18), Colombo suffered a dislocated left patella and femoral nerve damage. He was inactive against Detroit (11/24) then was placed on Reserve/Injured for the final five games of the season.

COLLEGE: Through his final two years at Boston College, Colombo did not allow a sack in 20 games. In each of his four collegiate seasons, he helped pave the way for a 1,000-yard rusher. As a senior, Colombo earned All-Big East Conference honors playing both tackle positions. He started the first two games at right tackle before moving to the left side for six games. He was part of an offensive line that generated 4,361 yards and featured 1,000-yard rusher William Green. He moved into the starting lineup as a junior and started all 12 games for the NCAA's 21st ranked rushing attack and the Big East's third ranked offense on an offensive line that yielded just six sacks. As a sophomore, Colombo played in seven games, including the Insight.com Bowl. He played in six games, mostly on special teams as a true freshman.

PERSONAL: Colombo earned Boston Globe, Boston Herald, Brockton Enterprise and Taunton Gazette all-scholastic honors at offensive tackle as a senior at Bridgewater, Mass., State College. He also registered 75 tackles and five sacks as a senior defensive lineman. He earned Brockton Enterprise all-scholastic honors as a senior, playing basketball and baseball. He earned his degree in sociology from Boston College.

COWBOYS

PRO: When Terrance Copper signed with the Cowboys as an undrafted rookie in 2004, there was little thought that he would become a regular contributor for Dallas as a rookie. But through hard work and determination, Copper received a chance to contribute and demonstrated a willingness to do whatever he could. He has quickly proven to coaches that he not only has the ability to be a productive receiver, but also the gumption and tenacity to be a special teams standout. He will look to continue to contribute on special teams and fill in as a reserve on offense on a team with stand-out wide receivers.

2005: Copper played in all 16 games for the Cowboys contributing mainly on special teams. He finished the season with 11 special teams tackles, placing him fifth on the team – tops among offensive players. In the season opener at San Diego (9/11) he tied for the team lead with two special teams tackles on punt coverage before recording his first kickoff return of the season at San Francisco (9/25) with an 11-yard return off a 49ers squib kick. Against Philadelphia (10/9) he posted two special teams tackles and added another tackle against the N.Y. Giants (10/16). He had two additional stops on special teams against Arizona (10/30) and returned his second kickoff of the season against Detroit (11/20) with a 21-yard return. He recorded his only reception of the season against Denver (11/24) with a five-yard catch to give the Cowboys a first down and also added one stop on special teams.

2004: Copper originally signed with the Cowboys as a rookie free agent, but was released prior to the start of the season. He immediately signed to Dallas's practice squad, and eight weeks later he was signed to the active roster (Oct. 30) after the team lost Terry Glenn for the season with a sprained foot. Despite seeing action in just 10 games, Copper emerged as a key contributor on one of the NFL's top kick coverage units, finishing fifth on the team with 14 special teams tackles as the Cowboys led the NFL in opponents kickoff return average at 17.5 yards-per-return. As a receiver, he caught seven passes for 84 yards and a touchdown while returning 16 kickoffs for 307 yards (19.2 avg.). In his NFL debut against Detroit (10/31), he returned a kickoff 21 yards and posted a special teams tackle. He tied for the team lead with two special teams tackles against Philadelphia (11/15) as the Eagles were held to a 17.5-yard average on four kickoff returns. He also returned two kickoffs for 42 yards. He caught his first career passes at Baltimore (11/21), hauling in three passes for a team-high 44 yards as the third receiver. He also tallied a team-high three special teams tackles while returning his only kickoff 39 yards. He finished second on the squad with three special teams stops against Chicago (11/25) on Thanksgiving Day as the Bears were limited to a 15.5-yard average on four kickoff returns. He also caught two passes for 22 yards and recorded his first career rushing attempt. In the Cowboys dramatic 43-39 come-from-behind Monday night victory at Seattle (12/6), Copper registered two receptions for 18 yards, including his first career touchdown grab. He also posted two special teams tackles as the Seahawks were limited to a 17.3-yard average on seven kickoff returns. He tied for the team lead at Philadelphia (12/19) with two special teams stops.

COLLEGE: Copper left East Carolina as one of the most productive receivers in school history, ranking second on the Pirates career receptions list (139) and fourth in career receiving yards (1,683). He finished his final campaign with a team- and Conference USA-high 87 catches for 897 yards and two touchdowns. He also returned 27 punts for 124 yards. As a junior, Copper finished third on the team with 30 catches for 395 yards while returning 30 punts for 328 yards. Copper saw action in all 12 games as a sophomore and finished with 13 receptions for 204 yards while returning 10 punts for 70 yards. As a true freshman, he averaged 20.8 yards on nine receptions (187 yards) and added a scoring catch.

PERSONAL: Copper was a three-time all-conference and all-area wide receiver for Washington, N.C., High School, where he also earned honorable mention All-America honors from USA Today after catching 41 passes for 697 yards and 11 touchdowns as a senior. The industrial technology major was also selected to play in the 1999 Shrine Bowl and East/West All-Star Game. He graduated with school records for career receptions (159), career receiving yards (1,831), single-season receptions (55 – 1997) and single-season receiving yards (697 – 1999). He was part of the Cowboys 2004 Rookie Club – a program designed to introduce rookie team members to community service in the Dallas area. He and his fellow rookie teammates participated in visits to various non-profit organizations serving children and adults, including the NFL Play It Smart program at Dallas' Lincoln High School, ChildCareGroup, NFL United Way Hometown Huddle and The Salvation Army.

COWBOYS

PRO: The Cowboys added a versatile athlete with the ability to contribute on offense and as a return specialist when they drafted Patrick Crayton in the seventh round (216th overall) of the 2004 NFL Draft. Touted as one of the most versatile and multi-talented athletes in the country, Crayton saw time as a punt returner and receiver as a rookie, making an immediate impact in the club's historic Redskins series with a last-minute game-winning touchdown catch. In 2005 Crayton thrived in training camp taking full advantage of the competition to earn the third receiver spot and continued to impress coaches with his ability to make plays before a mid-season ankle injury slowed his second NFL season. After rehabbing the ankle Crayton came back to contribute for the final stretch in 2005, and he will be back to 100 percent for the 2006 season.

2005: Crayton had an outstanding sophomore campaign slowed by a fractured ankle but still saw action in 11 games. He led the team with a 7.2-yard punt return average and added 22 receptions for 341 yards and two touchdowns as the club's third receiver. He got off to a quick start, leading the team with career-highs in receptions (six) and receiving yards (89) at San Diego (9/11). He scored one touchdown and five of his six catches in the season opener gave the Cowboys first downs. Against Washington (9/19) he was limited to one catch for five yards and served as the team's punt returner with four returns for a 7.3-yard average. At San Francisco (9/25) he had four receptions for 39 yards and his first career rush for no gain on a fake punt attempt. He had a career-long 63-yard touchdown reception at Oakland (10/2) in the fourth quarter before posting two receptions for 30 yards and setting career-highs with seven punt returns for 84 yards against Philadelphia (10/9). Against the N.Y. Giants (10/16) he caught four passes for 46 yards, and his one catch on the Cowboys game-winning scoring drive in overtime was for 10 yards and gave the Cowboys a first down. Unfortunately he fractured his ankle on the play and was inactive for the next five games. He returned to action at the N.Y. Giants (12/4) and saw limited playing time with one punt return for four yards. Crayton had four fair catches, tying the club single-game record, against Kansas City (12/11). At Washington (12/18) he had his first reception for 24 yards since suffering the injury and had one punt return for six yards. He added two more returns for eight yards at Carolina (12/24). He closed out the season against St. Louis (1/1/06) with three receptions for 45 yards and two punt returns for 15 yards.

2004: Crayton's rookie season got off to a slow start as he was inactive the first three weeks of the season. He was released on Oct. 2 and spent the next month on the club's practice squad before moving back to the active roster on Oct. 30 after Terry Glenn was lost for the season and Quincy Morgan was injured at Green Bay. Crayton made his NFL debut against Detroit (10/31) as a punt returner and receiver, recording a clutch 30-yard catch on third-and-eight to pick up a first down for his first career reception. That drive ended in the final touchdown of the game, putting Dallas up 31-21 with 1:54 remaining. The next week at Cincinnati (11/7), Crayton recorded two receptions for 14 yards as the club's third receiver. Again working as the club's third receiver against Philadelphia (11/15), he recorded two catches for six yards and took over as the club's punt returner in the second quarter, logging three returns for 34 yards (11.3 avg.). Crayton saw limited action as the fourth wide receiver at Seattle (12/6) and took a direct snap from center on a two-point attempt but was tackled short of the end zone. The following two weeks against New Orleans (12/12) and at Philadelphia (12/19), he was inactive. He returned to action in style against Washington (12/26), recording two catches for 54 yards and the game-winning touchdown. His first catch, a 15-yarder, came on fourth-and-10 from the Dallas 25-yard line with 1:09 remaining to pick up a first down on his first snap of the game. Five plays later, he hauled in a 39-yard touchdown pass to give Dallas the lead at 13-10 with 0:30 remaining. It was his first career touchdown reception and his first catch since Week 10. In the regular season finale at the N.Y. Giants (1/2/05), Crayton was second on the team with a season-high five receptions for 58 yards after taking over as the club's number two receiver when Keyshawn Johnson fractured his ankle. Four of his five receptions picked up a first down for Dallas and all five came on scoring drives. He had a 19-yard grab on fourth-and-one with 0:08 left in the first half to set up a Billy Cundiff 45-yard field goal as time expired. He then had three receptions for 27 yards, including one to convert a third-and-four on the Cowboys opening touchdown drive of the second half. In the second quarter he attempted his first career pass, throwing an interception after getting the ball on a handoff.

COLLEGE: A four-time all-conference selection, Crayton saw time as a punt returner, kickoff returner, quarterback and wide receiver at Northwestern Oklahoma State. In 44 games for the Rangers, Crayton averaged 19.0 yards-per-catch and scored 17 touchdowns on 80 receptions at receiver, rushed 209 times for 1,751 yards and 17 touchdowns, returned 72 punts for a 20.8-yard average and 10 touchdowns, returned 39 kickoffs for a 23.7-yard average and two scores and completed 136-of-236 passes for 1,967 yards, 21 touchdowns and eight interceptions. In four years, he amassed 5,688 all-purpose yards, including 3,718 yards in total offense and 46 touchdowns. As a senior, he earned Little All-America second team and All-Central States Football League Offensive Player of the Year honors starting at quarterback while also handling kickoff returns, punt returns and logging time at wide receiver. He completed 128-of-221 passes for 1,837 yards and a school-record 19 touchdowns. He also rushed for a school single-season record 1,476 yards with 13 touchdowns on 173 carries while adding 15 receptions for 331 yards and four scores. He became the first player in NAIA annals to score a touchdown passing, receiving, rushing and on kickoff and punt returns in a single season. As both a sophomore and junior, Crayton earned All-America honorable mention and All-CSFL first team honors at receiver. As a sophomore he led the nation with 19 punt returns for 508 yards (26.7 avg.) and three touchdowns.

PERSONAL: Crayton attended DeSoto, Texas, High School and was a standout competing at receiver, quarterback, running back and return specialist. He graduated from Northwestern Oklahoma State with a degree in health education. He was a member of the Cowboys 2004 Rookie Club – a program designed to introduce rookie team members to community service in the Dallas area. He and his fellow rookie teammates participated in visits to various non-profit organizations serving children and adults, including the NFL Play It Smart program at Dallas' Lincoln High School, ChildCareGroup, NFL United Way Hometown Huddle and The Salvation Army. At the NFL Play It Smart visit to Lincoln High School, Crayton spoke to the football team about the importance of education. He also participated in the 2006 Stars of Texas – Racing Against the Odds event hosted by local newspaper columnist and radio personality Randy Galloway that raised over $300,000 for the American Diabetes Association. During the 2006 offseason, Crayton hosted a football camp for youth in his hometown of DeSoto, Texas.

COWBOYS

PRO: Keith Davis's natural instincts for being around the ball – and his explosive ability to make the big hit – make him a dual threat as both a stellar special teams performer and a developing young safety. While starting 15-of-16 games at free safety in 2005, Davis teamed with Pro Bowl strong safety Roy Williams to form perhaps the hardest hitting duo of safeties in the NFL. The free agency addition of Marcus Coleman will provide Davis with a strong training camp challenge for the free safety spot along side Williams in 2006, but the experience Davis gained as a starter in '05 – combined with his reputation as one of the NFL's premier special teams performers – will make him a valuable member of the roster for the ensuing years in Dallas. He has recorded a team-high 37 special teams tackles over the course of the past two seasons. Davis is also one of the Cowboys best come-back stories in recent history. He originally earned a shot with the Cowboys as a rookie free agent in 2002, but he was released at the beginning of the 2003 training camp after suffering a gun-shot wound that June. After a year of watching the NFL on television in 2003, Davis jumped at the chance to earn a spot in training camp with Dallas in 2004 when the club signed him and allocated him to NFL Europe. Davis went on to earn All-NFL honors as a safety in 2004 with the World Bowl champion Berlin Thunder and then became one of the Cowboys top special teams players in 2004.

2005: Davis wrestled the starting free safety spot away from a group of challengers in training camp and went on to finish the year fourth on the team in tackles with 68. In addition, he was the leading tackler among all Dallas special teamers with 16 stops in the kicking game. Davis played a key role in helping the Cowboys kickoff team finish sixth in the NFL in opponents' average starting field position following a kickoff (26.9-yard line). Dallas was also 11th in the NFL in punt coverage with an average of 7.6 yards allowed. At San Diego (9/11) in his first career start at safety, Davis had three tackles and broke up a Chargers third-down pass into the end zone as time was running out on their final possession of the game. In the loss to Washington (9/19), Davis had four tackles and recovered a Laddell Betts fumble just before halftime. In the win at San Francisco (9/25), Davis added five tackles and tied for the team lead with two special teams tackles, including one at the 18-yard line on kickoff coverage. At Oakland (10/2), Davis tied for third on the team in tackles with six stops. In the win over the N.Y. Giants (10/16), Davis added four assists. In the last-minute loss at Seattle (10/23), Davis recorded two tackles as the NFL's top ranked offense entering the game was limited to 289 total yards, 118 below their season average, and one touchdown. He had four tackles and broke up a pass in the win over Arizona (10/30) while helping limit the Cardinals to 213 total yards including just 142 net passing yards. He also led the team with three special teams tackles as the Cowboys limited Reggie Swinton to an 18.1-yard average on seven kickoff returns. In the Monday night win at Philadelphia (11/14), he had six tackles as the Eagles were limited to 178 net passing yards and an 8.7 yard-per-catch average. The Philadelphia wideouts had just one catch of over 10 yards (18-yard catch by Greg Lewis). In the win over Detroit (11/20), Davis was second on the team with a career-high seven tackles as the Lions were held to 226 total yards, including just 169 in the air. Davis also led the team with two special teams tackles against the Lions, including one at the 16-yard line as Eddie Drummond was limited to a 19.8-yard average on four kickoff returns and one return for -6 yards on punt returns. In the overtime loss to Denver, (11/24), Davis was third on the team with five tackles as the Broncos were limited to 149 net passing yards. In addition, he led the team with two special teams tackles including one on kickoff coverage at the Broncos 16-yard line. He also downed a McBriar punt at the Broncos two-yard line on a possession that ended two plays later with a fumble at the 10-yard line, setting up the game-tying touchdown. In the following week's loss at the N.Y. Giants (12/4), Davis recorded five tackles as the Giants were limited to 150 net passing yards. In the win over Kansas City (12/11), Davis recorded five tackles and had a big special teams stop of Dante Hall at the Chiefs 14-yard line on kickoff coverage. In the loss at Washington (12/18), he recorded four tackles and broke up his second pass of the season with a big hit on Robert Royal. In the season ending loss to St. Louis (11/06), Davis recorded five tackles and a tackle behind the line of scrimmage as the Rams were held to 147 net passing yards.

2004: Davis started the year by earning All-NFL honors while leading the Berlin Thunder to the World Bowl title. He finished second in the league - first on the team - with four interceptions and second on the team with 65 tackles. Following that season, He jumped right into the thick of things with the special teams units for the Cowboys and went on to finish second on the team with 21 special teams tackles. He was part of a kickoff coverage unit that led the NFL with a 17.5-yard return average and did not allow a kickoff return of 35 yards-or-more all season. For his hard-nosed play on coverage teams, Davis was selected to the USA Today All-Joe Team. He tied for the team lead with two special teams tackles in the season opener at Minnesota (9/12) as the Vikings were limited to a 17.8-yard average on four kickoff returns. Two weeks later, he again tied for the team lead with two stops covering kicks at Washington (9/27). His performance helped limit Chad Morton to three punt returns for a 6.0-yard average on eight punts. He led the team with three special teams tackles and forced a fumble on the opening kickoff of the second half against Pittsburgh (10/17). His work with coverage teams helped Dallas limit the Steelers to a 13.6-yard average on five kickoff returns. He again led the team with three special teams tackles against Detroit (10/31) as Eddie Drummond, the NFL's third ranked kickoff returner entering the game (29.0 avg.), was limited to a 16.8-yard average on five returns. Davis also forced Drummond to fair catch a 50-yard Mar McBriar punt at the 13-yard line. A second quarter hip flexor strain at Cincinnati (11/7) kept him on the sidelines the second half and the following week against Philadelphia (11/15). He returned to action at Baltimore (11/21) and then was second on the team with three special teams tackles in the win at Seattle (12/6). The Seahawks were limited to a 17.3-yard average on seven kickoff returns. Against New Orleans (12/12), Davis led the team with three special teams tackles while helping limit the Saints to a 16.5-yard average on four kickoff returns. He had one tackle inside the 20 on a kickoff and also drew an illegal block penalty on another. Against Washington (12/26), Davis led the team with three special teams tackles and forced a fumble on punt coverage that was recovered by Keith O'Neil.

2003: Davis re-signed with the Cowboys March 7 but was released July 26 after suffering a gunshot wound as a bystander in an altercation. He remained out of football for the 2003 NFL season.

2002: Davis signed with the Cowboys as a rookie free agent and totaled eight tackles and an interception in preseason action. He was released Sept. 1 and signed to the Cowboys practice squad Sept. 2. He was released again on Sept. 10, but re-signed to the practice squad Sept. 16. He was then moved to the active roster Oct. 12 and recorded four tackles against Carolina (10/13) in his first NFL action. He recorded a tackle, two quarterback pressures and a pass defended at Arizona (10/20). He was waived Oct. 22 and re-signed to the Dallas practice squad Oct. 23. Davis moved back to the active roster on Nov. 22 and went on to record at least one special teams tackle in each of the last six games of the season, including two in the Thanksgiving Day win over Washington (11/28).

COLLEGE: Davis finished his collegiate career by leading Sam Houston with 96 tackles while breaking up seven passes and forcing three fumbles. This effort brought All-America honors from the American Football Coaches Association and All-Southland League honors. He finished his Bearkat career fourth on the school's career tackle list with 339 stops. As a junior, Davis was named Southland Football League Defensive Player of the Year and team Most Valuable Player after posting 99 tackles, a team-high 14 tackles behind the line of scrimmage and two interceptions while blocking two punts. Davis earned honorable mention All-Southland honors after recording 104 tackles, 11 passes defended, three forced fumbles, two interceptions and two fumble recoveries as a sophomore. He also blocked three punts during that campaign.

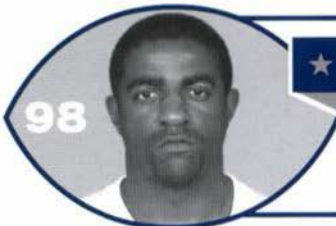

PERSONAL: Davis was a two-time all-state and all-district wide receiver and defensive back for Italy, Texas, High School. The four-year starter blocked five punts and caught 33 touchdown passes during his final two prep campaigns. Davis was a starter on the Gladiators basketball team that won the 1997 Class AA state championship. He was also a starter on the baseball team. As a member of the Cowboys 2002 Rookie Club – a program designed to introduce rookie team members to community service in the Dallas area – Davis participated in monthly charity visits to non-profit organizations helping children and adults. Just as he has done on the field, Davis has been an active contributor in the community since his return to the team. In 2004, he participated in the Cowboys Rookie Club Alumni visit to ChildCareGroup as the players carved pumpkins with over 140 pre-school children from low-income households. Davis also lent a hand serving meals in the Cowboys annual Early Thanksgiving Feast to over 300 deserving men and women at The Salvation Army. The 2005 season kept Davis busy in the community offering support during the team's annual NFL United Way Hometown Huddle Event. Davis and his teammates prepared and delivered meals to clients of Meals on Wheels and he also donated Christmas gifts for children in need through the team's support of The Salvation Army Angel Tree program. During the 2005 and 2006 offseasons, Davis attended the team's annual NFL Draft Day Party to sign autographs and interact with Cowboys fans in appreciation of their loyal support.

PRO: Since becoming a first round draft choice in 1998, Greg Ellis has brought dependability, durability, quality character and intelligence to the Dallas defensive line on a consistent basis. He has started 121 of a potential 128 games during his career, and has missed just four games due to injury in eight years. Ellis has led the team, or tied for the team lead, in sacks in each of the past five seasons – tying Jethro Pugh's club record for consecutive seasons leading the team in sacks. Pugh accomplished that feat from 1968-72. Overall he has led the Cowboys in sacks six times – one season short of Harvey Martin's team record of seven seasons. Ellis has also led all Cowboys defensive linemen in tackles six times. His career totals include 52 sacks, 170 quarterback pressures and 46 deflected passes. From day one, Ellis was able to overcome the pressure and expectations of being the Cowboys highest draft pick (eighth overall) since Russell Maryland (first overall in 1991) – as well as the physical demands of returning from a major injury in 2000 – to rise to the top of his profession and become one of the game's top all-around defensive ends. Having had his 1999 season cut short when he fractured the tibia and fibula in his left leg, Ellis fought through the pain and rehabilitation that accompanied having a titanium rod inserted into his leg. By the end of the 2000 season, he had re-emerged as one of the top defensive ends in the game, proving his worth to the club both on and off the field. On the field, he led the club's defensive linemen with a then career-high 77 tackles, and off the field, he was named by teammates as the recipient of the Ed Block Courage Award for overcoming his injuries. Ellis has continued to firmly establish himself as one of the team's true leaders with a level of consistency and production that showcases his versatility and toughness. The seasoned veteran made a smooth transition from the 4-3 alignment to the 3-4 in 2005 and was again the team leader in sacks. Selected as a team captain by his teammates in 2005, Ellis efficiently produces the type of all-around game that makes him one of the league's most complete linemen.

2005: Even with the move to the 3-4 defense for the first time in Cowboys history, Greg Ellis enjoyed another productive season – tying with rookie linebacker DeMarcus Ware for the team lead in sacks with eight – while leading the team in quarterback pressures with 21. He registered at least a half a sack in nine of Dallas's 16 games, while tying for the team lead in fumble recoveries with two. Ellis has now led the team in sacks in each of the past five seasons. Ellis and Ware finished the season tied for 11th in the NFC in sacks. He also led all Dallas defensive linemen in passes knocked down with five (fifth on the team). In the season opener at San Diego (9/11), Ellis collected half a sack and a season-high four quarterback pressures in his transition to the three-man front. He added another half sack in the home opening loss to Washington (9/19). In the win at San Francisco (9/25), Ellis extended his streak of games with at least a half sack to three as he collected a full sack and three quarterback pressures. In the win over Philadelphia (10/9), Ellis had one quarterback pressure and shared a sack with rookie Jay Ratliff. Ellis played a key role in helping the defense limit the Eagles to 129 total yards, including just 19 on the ground – the fourth lowest rushing total allowed by Dallas in club history. In the overtime win over the N.Y. Giants (10/16), he recorded three quarterback pressures and a sack, as Eli Manning went 14-for-30 (46.7%) passing. Ellis scooped up a Manning fumble at the Dallas 30-yard line in the fourth quarter and returned it 37 yards to set up the Cowboys final field goal in regulation. In the last-minute loss at Seattle (10/23), Ellis was second on the team – and tops among linemen – with a season-high six tackles. He also had a tackle for a loss and batted down a pass. Dallas limited the Seahawks offense – ranked first in the NFL entering the game – to 289 yards, 118 below their season average, and one touchdown. Shaun Alexander, the NFL's leading rusher at 119 yards-per-game (5.5 avg.), was limited to 61 yards on 21 carries (2.9 avg.). In the win over Arizona (10/30), Ellis recorded his only multi-sack game of the season with 1.5 sacks, two tackles, three quarterback pressures and a deflected pass as the defense limited the Cardinals to 213 total yards. His first sack ended the Cardinals opening drive at the Dallas 34-yard line and limited them to a field goal. In the Monday night win at Philadelphia (11/14), Ellis recorded his sixth sack of the year – and the 50th of his career – and forced a fumble on the play (recovered by Philadelphia) when he brought down Donovan McNabb on third-and-15 with 2:27 remaining in the game and Dallas clinging to a 21-20 lead. In the following week's win over Detroit (11/20), Ellis recorded his seventh sack of the season and forced a fumble on the play that was recovered by Dat Nguyen with 4:17 remaining in the game to seal the win. He led all linemen with three tackles as the Lions were limited to 226 total yards, including just 57 on the ground. In the Thanksgiving Day overtime loss to Denver (11/24), he recorded a sack in his fourth consecutive game, and his eighth of the season. Ellis also had two tackles, batted down a third down pass attempt and had a pressure. His second tackle of the Broncos game was the 500th of his career. In the loss at the N.Y. Giants (12/4), he recorded two tackles as the Giants were limited to one offensive touchdown and 150 net passing yards. Ellis did not start the game in New York for the first time in his career, ending a string of 121 consecutive starts. He also had a four-game sack streak stopped against the Giants although he had three quarterback pressures. He saw limited action in the following two games against Kansas City (12/11) and at Washington (12/18) before returning to the starting lineup at Carolina (12/24). In the Cowboys last-minute win over the Panthers, Ellis was third on the team, tops among linemen, with a season-high tying six tackles. He also recovered a Jake Delhomme fumble following a sack that got Dallas the ball back just before halftime. He remained in the starting lineup for the season's final game against St. Louis (1/1/06), recording two tackles along with a tackle for a loss and a batted down a pass.

2004: Ellis enjoyed the finest season of his seven-year career, turning in career-high numbers for sacks (nine) and tipped passes (12) while registering his third best season for pressures (22). His sack total led the team for the fourth consecutive season. His sack total for 2004 was 12th best in the NFC and 10th best among NFC defensive ends. By knocking down 12 passes at the line of scrimmage, he finished second only to cornerback Terence Newman (13) in that category. It was the second best total in the NFL among defensive linemen (Jason Taylor, Miami – 15) and the highest number by a Dallas defensive lineman since Ed "Too Tall" Jones had 14 in 1988. Ellis registered a sack in seven-of-16 games in 2004, including three multi-sack games, and he led all Dallas defensive linemen on the year in tackles with 63. In the home opening win over Cleveland (9/19), Ellis had one of the most dominant games of his career. He led the entire defense in tackles with seven while adding five pressures (one of which led to a safety), one sack and a tackle behind the line of scrimmage. He continued his productive ways the following week at Washington (9/27), turning in his first multi-sack game of the year with a pair of sacks of Mark Brunell. Ellis kept up his torrid pace in the loss to the N.Y. Giants (10/10), posting another two-sack game to go along with six tackles, four pressures and two tipped passes. In the loss to Pittsburgh (10/17), he picked up his sixth sack of the year. At Green Bay (10/24), Ellis's streak of four straight games with at least one sack was snapped by the Packers – who allowed just 12 sacks of Brett Favre all season. Ellis did manage two tackles and knocked down a Favre pass. In the loss at Cincinnati (11/7), Ellis led all Dallas defensive linemen with six tackles and batted down his fifth pass of the season. He put together another solid Monday Night Football performance against Philadelphia (11/15), registering seven tackles, assisting on a sack and batting down a pass. Ellis knocked down two passes and had five tackles – including one behind the line – in the loss at Baltimore (11/21). In the Thanksgiving Day victory over Chicago (11/25), he tied for second on the team with five tackles while posting 1.5 sacks and two pressures. He registered two stops, a pressure and his career-best ninth pass deflection at Seattle (12/6). In the loss at Philadelphia (12/19), Ellis was at his play-making best and had a hand in two of the team's most important plays in the near-upset of the NFC champions. He blocked an Eagles extra point and set up the Cowboys only touchdown with a sack and a forced fumble. For the day, Ellis had five tackles (one for lost yardage), a batted pass and three pressures. In the win over Washington (12/26), Ellis had another disruptive game with four tackles, a pair of quarterback pressures and two tipped passes.

2003: Ellis put together another productive season in helping the Dallas defense finish the year as the league's top ranked unit, surrendering only 253.5 yards-per-game – including just 89.1 yards on the ground (third in NFL) and 164.4 yards through the air (first in NFL). He led the team for the third straight year with 8.0 sacks, the most by a Cowboys defender since Tony Tolbert had 12.0 in 1996. Ellis finished with 48 tackles, 19 pressures, eight pass deflections, four tackles for losses and four forced fumbles. He kicked off the season by leading all linemen with six tackles while adding two pressures and a stop for a loss against the Falcons (9/7). In the Cowboys come-from-behind, overtime victory at the N.Y. Giants (9/15), he finished second on the team with five tackles, batted down a career-high three passes, posted four pressures and added half a sack. He also forced a Tiki Barber fumble and forced Kerry Collins into an interception that Al Singleton returned 41 yards for a touchdown. Ellis helped limit the N.Y. Jets (9/28) to 66 rushing yards on 26 carries (2.5 avg.) with two tackles. He then registered a tackle and a stop behind the line against Arizona (10/5) in helping hold the Cardinals to 151 total offensive yards. He recorded three tackles, a sack and a pass deflection against Philadelphia (10/12) before totaling two stops and two pressures at Detroit (10/19) in helping limit the Lions to 157 total yards. At Tampa Bay (10/26), he was third on the squad with six tackles while posting a sack that forced a fumble. Against Buffalo (11/9), he teamed with Eric Ogbogu on a sack of Drew Bledsoe, forcing a fumble on the play to end a potential Bills scoring drive. Ellis also added a tackle for a four-yard loss on a screen pass and had two pressures in helping limit the Bills to 185 total yards, including just 58 on seven second half possessions. He registered his fourth sack of the season at New England (11/16). Ellis recorded four stops against Miami (11/27) on Thanksgiving Day then tallied his fifth sack of the season at Philadelphia (12/7). Against the N.Y. Giants (12/21), he posted his first multi-sack game of the season (two), tied his season-high with four pressures and forced a fumble in helping limit the Giants to just 54 rushing yards on 22 carries (2.5 avg.). He finished the regular season at New Orleans (12/28) third on the team with a season-high seven stops while adding half a sack. Ellis's work against New Orleans helped limit Deuce McAllister – the NFC's second leading rusher – to just 49 yards on 21 carries (2.3 avg.). In the Cowboys wild card playoff loss at

2002: As the team has come to expect, Ellis led all linemen and was fourth on the team with a career-high 87 tackles, topping his previous best of 83 from the year before. He led the team and tied for 16th in the NFC with 7.5 sacks. He also led the team with a career-high 30 quarterback pressures, topping his previous best of 26 set in 2001. Ellis opened the season with a bang, recording at least half a sack in each of the first four games of the season. He led all defensive linemen with five tackles and three pressures at Houston (9/8). He also added half a sack and deflected a fourth quarter pass that La'Roi Glover intercepted. The following week against Tennessee (9/15), he posted a career-high tying two sacks and tied for the team lead among linemen with six tackles while leading the team with three quarterback pressures. Ellis had one of the most dominating games of his career pressuring the quarterback at Philadelphia (9/22), finishing with his second straight two-sack game, as well as a career-high tying six pressures. It was the first time a Cowboys player has posted back-to-back multiple-sack games since Tony Tolbert in Weeks 5-6 in 1996. At St. Louis (9/29), he recorded two of the biggest plays of the game. On the Rams final drive, Ellis recorded the club's only sack of the day on a third-and-three play at the Dallas 25-yard line. His six-yard sack forced the Rams to attempt a 49-yard field goal that hit the right upright, giving Dallas the ball for its game-winning field goal. In the first quarter, he ended a Rams drive with his second career interception, picking off a Kurt Warner pass. Dallas drove to its only touchdown of the day following the interception. Ellis finished the day with three tackles, a sack, two pressures and an interception. He then led all linemen with five tackles at the N.Y. Giants (10/6) but did not record a sack, ending his string of consecutive games with a sack at four. Against Carolina (10/13), he again led all linemen with eight tackles. For the third straight game, he was at the top of the linemen tackle totals with seven at Arizona (10/20). Ellis recorded five tackles while helping limit Shaun Alexander to a 2.5 yard-per-carry average on 23 carries (58 yards) against Seattle (10/27). He began experiencing headaches from a concussion suffered against Arizona following the Seattle game and was inactive at Detroit (11/3). He returned to the starting lineup at Indianapolis (11/17) and led all linemen with nine tackles. Against Jacksonville (11/24), he led the entire team with a season-high 10 tackles and recorded his first sack since Week Four. He also added five quarterback pressures and a tackle for a loss. Against San Francisco (12/8), Ellis tied for the team lead among defensive linemen with eight tackles while recording the club's only sack of the game. Ellis was again atop the line tackle chart with six stops at the N.Y. Giants (12/15). In the season finale at Washington (12/29), Ellis tied for the lead among linemen with five tackles.

2001: As a key contributor to the Cowboys dramatic turnaround on defense, Ellis led Dallas in sacks (six), quarterback pressures (26) and forced fumbles (four). While starting all 16 games at left end, he led all defensive linemen in tackles with 83 (fourth on the team), and he was third on the team in tackles for losses (seven for minus 12 yards). Ellis's efforts helped the Cowboys defense rank fourth in the NFL, allowing an average of just 287.4 yards-per-game. The Dallas pass defense closed the year third in the NFL – permitting just 180.6 yards-per-game. In 2001, Dallas allowed 1,710 rushing yards, a figure that was 927 fewer yards than the club allowed during the 2000 season. Those numbers represented the largest turnaround by any defensive unit in the NFL in 2001. In the season opening loss to Tampa Bay (9/9), Ellis led all Dallas defensive linemen with nine stops while posting one of Dallas's two sacks. Against San Diego (9/23), he recorded four tackles in helping limit LaDainian Tomlinson to a 3.3-yard average on 27 carries. The following week at Philadelphia (9/30), Ellis was extremely active, contributing a career-high six quarterback pressures and two pass deflections. In the Monday night win over Washington (10/15), Ellis recorded five tackles and his second sack of the year while helping limit the Redskins to 226 total yards. His biggest play of the game came with 2:39 remaining when he recovered a Stephen Davis fumble at the Cowboys 33-yard line to set Dallas up for its game-winning field goal drive. In the win over Arizona (10/28), he led all defensive linemen with seven tackles. He turned in another outstanding performance at the N.Y. Giants (11/4), leading all defensive linemen with eight tackles while also recording his third sack of the season and forcing a fumble on the play. In Atlanta (11/11), Ellis was second on the team in tackles with seven, and he turned in his first multi-sack game of the season with two, as the Falcons were limited to 201 total yards. In the loss to Philadelphia (11/18), Ellis led the team with three quarterback pressures, as the Eagles were limited to 227 total yards – 100 yards below their season average. On the ground, the Eagles averaged 2.8-yards-per-carry on 35 attempts. On Thanksgiving Day against Denver (11/22), Ellis led all defensive linemen with six tackles. At Washington (12/2), Ellis again led all Cowboys linemen in tackles with seven. Stephen Davis, the NFC's third leading rusher entering the game, was held to 53 yards on 17 carries. Ellis registered his sixth sack of the year in the win over the N.Y. Giants (12/9), while leading all defensive linemen with six tackles. His sack was a fourth quarter takedown of Kerry Collins that also forced a fumble. At Seattle (12/16), he suffered a sprained right knee mid-way through the first quarter but returned to action in the second quarter and recorded four tackles, a tackle for a loss and a quarterback pressure while helping hold the Seahawks to 139 net passing yards. In the Cowboys upset win over playoff bound San Francisco (12/30), he registered three tackles, two quarterback pressures and recovered a fumble. Dallas limited the NFL's second ranked 49er running game (146 yards-per-game at the time) to 56 yards.

2000: After two years patrolling the left end of the Dallas defensive line, Ellis switched to the right side in 2000 to take pressure off his injured left leg. He went on to lead all defensive linemen with 77 tackles, while tying for the team lead with seven tackles for losses and two fumble recoveries. He also finished second on the team with 13 quarterback pressures. After working into camp slowly, Ellis returned to full action for the final two preseason games. In the season opener against Philadelphia (9/3), he led all defensive linemen with eight tackles and a tackle for a loss in his first regular season action since suffering the leg fracture. He recovered a fumble at Arizona (9/10), and then at Washington (9/18), he recorded his first sack of the season on the game's final play to preserve the Cowboys Monday night win. He also recovered a Redskins fumble in the second quarter to set up a Dallas touchdown. Ellis led all defensive linemen and was third on the team with a career-high 11 tackles against San Francisco (9/24). It was the highest tackle total by a Dallas defensive lineman since Chad Hennings recorded 11 stops against the N.Y. Giants on Dec. 21, 1997. Facing perennial All-Pro Tony Boselli, Ellis put together an admirable day against Jacksonville (10/29) with five tackles, a tackle for a loss and a pressure. He also forced Boselli into two illegal procedure penalties. On special teams, Ellis blocked his first career field goal, getting his hand on a 49-yard fourth quarter attempt by Mike Hollis. Ellis was second among defensive linemen with nine tackles, including two behind the line, at Philadelphia (11/5). His seven tackles against Cincinnati (11/12) led all defensive linemen, and he recorded his second sack of the season, as the Bengals were limited to 195 total yards. Ellis again led all defensive linemen in tackles and was third on the team with nine stops at Baltimore (11/19). With four tackles, a sack and two pressures against Washington (12/10), Ellis helped limit the Redskins to just 79 rushing yards on the day, a season low for the Dallas defense.

1999: Despite missing the final three regular season games because of a fractured left tibia and fibula, Ellis led the team with 7.5 sacks. Before the injury, he was eighth in the NFC in sacks and was also tied for the team lead with 17 quarterback pressures. He finished the season with 59 tackles, four passes defended and two forced fumbles. Ellis set the tone for the season early, recording five tackles and a career-best two sacks at Washington (9/12) in the season opener. The first sack came with the Redskins at the Dallas four-yard line and forced a fumble that George Teague recovered to end a potential scoring drive. The second sack came on third-and-three on the Redskins opening possession in overtime and forced them to punt. Dallas then took the ball and drove 95-yards for the game-winning score. The next week on Monday Night Football, he recorded his first career interception and touchdown when he picked off a Danny Kanell pass and raced 87-yards for a score against Atlanta (9/20). It was the longest touchdown return of any kind by a defensive lineman in club history until the next game. He also led all defensive linemen with six tackles on the evening. Ellis closed out his season-opening burst of big plays against Arizona (10/3) by returning a Jake Plummer fumble 98 yards for a touchdown, the longest fumble return in Cowboys history. In doing so, he became the first Cowboys defensive player since Ray Horton in 1991 (vs. N.Y. Giants, 9/29 and at Green Bay, 10/6) to score a touchdown in back-to-back weeks. Ellis logged seven tackles and a sack in helping limit the N.Y. Giants (10/18) to 2.5 yards-per-carry. Ellis was third on the team, tops among linemen, with seven tackles at Indianapolis (10/31) while also adding a tackle for a loss and a forced fumble. For the second time in 1999, Ellis recorded a career-high two sacks in a game while also leading all defensive linemen with five tackles at Minnesota (11/8). With three tackles and a team-high three quarterback pressures against Green Bay (11/14), he helped limit Favre to a 57.1 quarterback rating and the Packers to 40 rushing yards. Ellis then logged a season-high eight tackles at Arizona (11/21) to finish second on the team, while adding a sack and three quarterback pressures. On Thanksgiving Day against Miami (11/25), pressure from the defensive front was instrumental in forcing Dan Marino into a career-worst five interceptions. Ellis recorded his final sack of the season at New England (12/5) while adding four tackles, but his season came to an abrupt end the next week against Philadelphia (12/12) when he fractured the tibia and fibula in his left leg in the first quarter. He underwent surgery that night to have a titanium rod inserted into the leg and was placed on injured reserve on Dec. 15.

1998: Ellis finished his rookie campaign leading the team with 22 quarterback pressures and all defensive linemen with 63 tackles. He also closed the year with five tackles for losses, five passes defended and three sacks. Since tackle records began being kept in 1979, Ellis became the first Cowboys rookie to lead all defensive linemen on the team in tackles. This effort earned him All-Rookie honors from Football News and Football Digest. Against Arizona (9/6), he became the first rookie to start a season opener at defensive end for Dallas since Bob Lilly in 1961. He finished with two tackles and two pressures against the Cardinals. He forced his first career fumble in the fourth quarter at the N.Y. Giants (9/21) and helped limit the Giants to 56 rushing yards. He recorded his first career sack while adding three tackles against Oakland (9/27). He registered a season-high nine tackles and 1.5 sacks against Carolina (10/11) while helping limit the Panthers to 37 rushing yards on 21 carries (1.8 avg.). He had three tackles and helped limit the Bears to 2.5 yards-per-rush at Chicago (10/18). He recorded four tackles and half a sack against the Giants (11/8) before recording two tackles and two pressures while helping limit the Cardinals to 32 rushing yards at Arizona (11/15). Against Minnesota (11/26) on Thanksgiving Day, he led all defensive linemen with four tackles while adding two pressures and two passes defended. He added six tackles and his first career fumble recovery at New Orleans (12/6). He led all defensive linemen with seven tackles and four pressures against Philadelphia (12/20). In his first postseason action, against Arizona (1/2/99), he led all defensive linemen with eight tackles.

COLLEGE: With 32.5 career sacks, Ellis left North Carolina as the school's all-time sack leader, the same school that produced NFL Hall of Famer Lawrence Taylor. As a senior, Ellis earned All-America honors, was a finalist for the Lombardi Award and an All-ACC selection for the third straight season after collecting 87 tackles, nine sacks and 32 quarterback pressures. As a junior, Ellis was named second-team All-America by The Sporting News and first-team All-ACC after closing the season with 62 tackles, a school record 38 pressures and 12.5 sacks, the second most sacks in a season behind Taylor's 16 in 1979. In 1995, Ellis became the first Tar Heel sophomore to be named first-team All-ACC since Reuben Davis in 1985. Ellis was also named honorable mention All-America by UPI while recording 71 tackles and seven sacks. As a back-up defensive end during his redshirt freshman year, Ellis ranked second on the team with four sacks.

PERSONAL: Gregory Lemont Ellis was an all-state selection as a tight end and defensive end at East Wake High School in Wendell, N.C. During his high school career, he intercepted five passes and returned all of them for touchdowns. He also blocked four punts and returned two of them for scores. An outstanding basketball player, Ellis was selected to play in the North Carolina East/West Shrine Game. The Greensboro News and Observer voted him the Male High School Athlete of the Year in 1993. Ellis enjoys spending time with the children at Happy Hill Farm and supporting their program that houses and educates abused and neglected children. Annually, he provides season tickets for the children from Happy Hill Farm to attend Cowboys home football games. Ellis has also served as a celebrity model escort for the annual Children's Cancer Fund Fashion Show, provided clothing and toys for needy children during the holidays for The Salvation Army Angel Tree Program, served as honorary chairman for the Crossroads Interfaith Housing Program in 2001 & 2002 and served as a celebrity guest reader for the Cowboys 2001 and 2002 Kick Off To School Reading night events hosted at the club's training camp site. During the 2005 offseason, Ellis served as a guest speaker at the Exxon-Mobile Green Team Program dedication ceremony with Builders of Hope. The program provides paid summer jobs to area high school students while building two affordable homes in the Eagle Ford neighborhood. Ellis received his degree in communications studies at UNC, where he was also a member of the junior varsity basketball team as a sophomore. Ellis's wife, Tangie, was his high school sweetheart. The couple has a daughter, Tyann (1/17/00), and son, Germiah Gregory (5/29/03).

COWBOYS

PRO: The Cowboys upgraded their depth at the tackle position this offseason by adding free agent Jason Fabini to the roster. Fabini was originally selected by the Jets in the fourth round (111th overall) of the 1998 NFL Draft and played eight seasons in New York. He has started in every game he has played in on the pro level (114 regular season games) after beginning his career at right tackle (1998 and 1999) and then switching to left tackle prior to the Jets 2000 training camp. He has also started in seven postseason contests. In 2004 Fabini was a part of an offensive line that paved the way for running back Curtis Martin to earn his first NFL rushing title with 1,697 yards. The unit also powered the Jets offense to finish third in the league in total rushing yards (2,388) and second in rushing first downs (135). In 2000 he was named the winner of the Ed Block Courage Award in a vote by his teammates after he battled back from a serious knee injury that cost him the second half of the 1999 season. As a rookie in 1998 he stepped in and started all 16 games, plus the team's two postseason games. He was the first Jets rookie offensive lineman to play and start in all 16 games since left tackle Chris Ward did in 1978 and became the first rookie right tackle to start in all 16 games since Marvin Powell accomplished the feat in 1977.

2005: Fabini started the first nine games of the season before landing on injured reserve Nov. 14 with a shoulder injury, ending his streak of games started at 89. In the season opener at Kansas City (9/11) he was part of an offensive line that allowed the Jets to pass for 352 yards. Against Miami (9/18) he was part of an offensive line that allowed the Jets to convert six-of-15 (40%) third down conversions. He posted his first start at left tackle at Jacksonville (9/25) but was forced to leave the game early with an MCL sprain to his right knee. At Baltimore (10/2) he started at right tackle, and he started at right tackle against Tampa Bay (10/9), helping block for two rushing touchdowns. He was part of an offensive line that blocked for 149 rushing yards and two touchdowns at Buffalo (10/16). He started at right tackle the next two games at Atlanta (10/24) and against San Diego (11/6). He was forced to leave the game in the first quarter at Carolina (11/13) with a torn pectoral muscle that landed him on injured reserve the next day.

2004: Fabini started all 16 games for the Jets and helped Martin lead the NFL in rushing with 1,697 yards. In the season opener against Cincinnati (9/12) he was part of a line that helped tally 438 yards of total offense and open holes for Martin's 196 yards on the ground. The unit also stopped the defense from getting to quarterback Chad Pennington as he was 20-of-27 and threw for 219 yards and two touchdowns. At San Diego (9/19) he helped Martin record his second consecutive 100-yard rushing game of the season and allowed Pennington enough time to throw for a 125.4 passer rating. He helped lead the way for 110 yards on the ground at Miami (10/3) before allowing Pennington enough time at Buffalo (10/10) to complete 31-of-42 passes for a season-high 304 yards. Against San Francisco (10/17) he helped pave the way for Martin's fourth 100-yard rushing game of the season, and he helped hold the Patriots (10/24) defense without a sack. He was a member of the first Jets offensive line since 1975 to block for two 100-yard rushers in the same game – running backs Martin and LaMont Jordan against Miami (11/1). He also helped the Jets total the most offensive yards, 472, since 2002. He led the way for 156 yards on the ground and helped Martin surpass the 1,000-yard mark on the season at Cleveland (11/21). He started and played in his 100th career game as he helped the offense gain 325 yards and eat up 34:07 of the clock at Arizona (11/28). Against Houston (12/5) he was part of an offensive line that helped produce a season-high 26 first downs and 210 yards on the ground, including Martin's club-record 40th 100-yard rushing game. Fabini was a member of the Jets offensive line that racked up 482 total yards (229 rushing, 253 passing) against Seattle (12/19) and did not allow a sack for the fifth game this season. He helped pave the way for Martin's ninth 100-yard game of the season when he rushed for 153 yards in the Jets regular-season finale at St. Louis (1/2/05). Fabini was part of the line that helped the offense gain 396 yards and blocked for Pennington to throw for 279 yards in the Jets 20-17 overtime Wild Card victory at San Diego (1/8/05).

2003: He started at left tackle in all 16 games, marking his fourth consecutive season without missing a start, and helped lead the way for Martin's 1,308 rushing yards on the season. In the season opener at Washington (9/4) he made his sixth consecutive opening day start for the Jets at left tackle. Against Miami (9/14) he made his 75th career start at left tackle. Against Dallas (9/28) he helped keep Vinny Testaverede on his feet for the second consecutive week, and he helped Martin set a season-high 174 rushing yards against Pittsburgh (12/14).

2002: He started another 16 games for the Jets while helping them reach the AFC Divisional Playoffs. At Detroit (11/17) he blocked for Martin's 112 rushing yards and for the team's season-high 189 rushing yards. Martin had his best day with 127 rushing yards at Chicago (12/15) and the line led the way for his 106 rushing yards at New England (12/22) while keeping Pennington sack-free. In the AFC Wild Card game against Indianapolis (1/4/03) he helped block for the team's 180 rushing yards before contributing to the teams 120 rushing yards in the AFC Divisional Playoff game against Oakland (1/12/03).

2001: Fabini started in 16 games for the third time in his four-year career with Jets. He helped pave the way for running back Martin's club record 1,513 yards and was also part of an offensive line that surrendered the fewest sacks in the AFC (19) and was second in the NFL only to Chicago's 16 sacks allowed. At Indianapolis (12/23) he helped keep Testaverde sack-free for the third straight game. He was part of the Jets offensive line that racked up 302 yards of total offense and a 46% third down conversion rate at Oakland (1/6/02). In the AFC Wild Card Game at Oakland (1/12/02) he started at left tackle and helped the Jets offense gain 410 yards (136 rushing & 274 passing).

2000: He started all 16 games at left tackle and was part of an offensive line that tied Indianapolis for fewest sacks allowed (20). Against Indianapolis (12/3) he opened holes for Martin's club-record 203 yards rushing and allowed the Jets offense to hold the ball for 41:25 while racking up 491 yards of total offense. At Baltimore (12/24) he helped hold the Ravens to only one sack in 69 pass plays, while the offense gained 524 yards (471 passing and 51 rushing).

1999: Fabini played in and started nine games (first eight at right tackle and one at left tackle). He was forced to leave the game at New England (11/15) with a torn left ACL and was out the rest of the season marking the only time in his pro career that he wasn't on the field with the Jets offense.

1998: He played and started in all 16 games for the Jets at right tackle as a rookie. He helped pave the way for running back Martin's 1,287 yards rushing and quarterback Testaverde's 3,256 yards passing and 29 touchdowns. Against Baltimore (9/13) he played with a non-displaced fracture in his right hand. He helped the running game gain 302 yards, the second most in team history, against the Colts (9/20). In three consecutive games - against Carolina (11/29), Seattle (12/6) and at Miami (12/13) he helped the Jets offense hold the opposing defense without a sack. Fabini closed his rookie season by helping Martin rush for his team record eighth 100-yard game and allowed the offense to control the ball for 38:51 in time of possession. In the AFC Divisional Playoff Game against Jacksonville (1/10/99) he helped the offense dominate as they held the ball for 38:51 and rack up 429 yards of offense. In the AFC Championship Game at Denver (1/17/99) he helped the offense total 370 yards.

COLLEGE: Fabini was a three-time All-Conference USA selection at Cincinnati and was a co-captain of the team while starting every game at left tackle as a senior. As a junior he started every game at left tackle and received the John Pease Award as the team's top offensive lineman. As a sophomore he made the third-team All-National Independent and started every game for the Bearcats at left tackle. He was also named the team's Rookie of the Year.

PERSONAL: Fabini was born in Fort Wayne, Ind., where he runs a free football camp for children with fellow native and former NFL standout Rod Woodson. He has donated much of his spare time to charities: working with YIA which works with developmentally challenged patients, March of Dimes WalkAmerica campaign, visiting Schneider Children's Hospital, supporter of the New York State Troopers Survivors Foundation Golf Tournament and he purchased $50 gift cards for children and took them holiday shopping at Toys "R" Us. Upon his arrival in Dallas, Fabini joined Cowboys Linebacker DeMarcus Ware and Defensive End Marcus Spears and a dozen other teammates in support of the Second Annual Taste of the NFL: The Ultimate Dallas Cowboys Tailgate Party which benefited the North Texas Food Bank. The event helped raise money that will provide over 330,000 meals to North Texans in need. He and his wife, Joanne, have three sons Hunter, Jacob and John Michael.

COWBOYS

COLLEGE: Anthony Fasano became the Dallas Cowboys second pick (53rd overall) in the 2006 NFL Draft after an outstanding collegiate career at Notre Dame. With the Cowboys offensive emphasis on using two-tight ends, Fasano will have an immediate impact working alongside and learning from two-time Pro Bowl tight end Jason Witten. He also arrives in Dallas after working in a similar offensive system under former Bill Parcells assistant Charlie Weis last season at Notre Dame. Fasano was one of three finalists for the John Mackey Award – presented to college football's most outstanding tight end – and one of four recipients of the Nick Pietrosante Award given each year to the Notre Dame player who best exemplifies the courage, loyalty, teamwork, dedication and pride of the late Irish All-America fullback. A serious offensive threat as a pass catcher, Fasano recorded at least one catch in his final 20 games at Notre Dame.

2005: Fasano finished his career at Notre Dame 11th overall and second among Irish tight ends on the school's career-receiving list with 92 receptions, and his 1,112 career receiving yards ranks second as well among Notre Dame tight ends. Fasano caught a career-high 47 passes as a senior, the second-best single-season performance by a tight end in school history. He was a third-team All-America selection after starting every game and catching 47 passes for 576 yards and two touchdowns, with nine of his receptions going for 20 yards-or-more. He converted 28 of his 47 catches into first downs, including six on third down. In the season opener at Pittsburgh he had four receptions for 42 yards. He had season-highs in both receptions and receiving yards against Michigan State when he hauled in seven passes for 93 yards. He came back with six catches for 66 yards at Washington. Against USC he had four receptions for 86 yards. Against BYU he notched five catches for 55 yards. He recorded his first touchdown of the season, a career-long 43-yard grab, against Tennessee among his four catches for 78 yards. He scored again the next week at Navy with four catches for 70 yards. In the Fiesta Bowl against Ohio State he hauled in two catches for 12 yards.

2004: Fasano started nine games for the Irish while seeing action in 11 and finished second on the team with 27 receptions for 367 yards and a career-best four touchdowns. He recorded four catches for 60 yards in the season opener at BYU before posting three receptions for 41 yards and a career-high two touchdowns at Washington. He was named the John Mackey National Tight End of the week following his performance at Purdue where he caught a career-high eight passes for 155 yards – which set a single-game receiving record for a Notre Dame tight end. Against the Boilermakers he recorded a season-long 42-yard reception. At Tennessee he hauled in two passes – one being an eight-yard touchdown. His only catch against Oregon State in the Insight Bowl was a 13-yard reception for a touchdown.

2003: Fasano played in 11 games for the Irish, starting three of those contests. He finished fourth on the team in receptions with 18 for 169 yards and two scores. He recorded his first collegiate catch against Michigan on a 19-yard reception in the fourth quarter. Fasano made his first career start against Pittsburgh, leading all receivers with two receptions for 15 yards. He again led the team in receiving against USC with four catches for 33 yards including his first career touchdown. Fasano started again against Boston College as Notre Dame opened in a two-tight end formation and recorded a season-high 48 yards on four catches. In the final game of the season against Syracuse he had three catches for 21 yards and a touchdown.

2002: Fasano did not see action as a freshman.

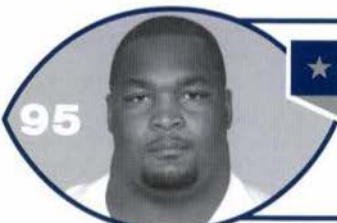

PERSONAL: Anthony Joseph Fasano was a four-year letterman and two-year captain at Verona, N.J., High School as a tight end and defensive lineman. He helped led the team to the New Jersey state title among Group 1 schools and threw the game-winning PAT pass in the 2001 title game. As a senior he caught 78 passes for 1,460 yards and a county-record 23 touchdowns. He finished his high school career with a county-record 42 career touchdown receptions. He established Verona High School records for career receptions (168) and touchdowns (42) as well as a single-season record for tackles (119). He also earned four letters in basketball and was the team captain his final two years. He was a two-time all-state pick in track winning the New Jersey Group 1 state title in javelin in his first year competing in the event. He pitched a one-hitter in baseball in his first outing as a freshman. He graduated from Notre Dame with a degree in marketing.

COWBOYS

PRO: With the Cowboys making the transition to the 3-4 defensive front, Jason Ferguson became a valuable asset as a free agent acquisition in the offseason leading up to the 2005 season. Ferguson shared the nose tackle position with La'Roi Glover in his first season as a Cowboy, but Glover's departure in free agency last spring puts Ferguson in the role of the defensive line's most experienced player (10th NFL season) and the Cowboys defender most familiar with the 3-4 scheme. Ferguson, who was originally a seventh round draft choice of Bill Parcells and the Jets in 1997, brings the size, strength and power that are necessities for the prototypical NFL nose tackle in the three-man front. A hard driving run stopper, Ferguson is capable of moving the line of scrimmage and he is also a disruptive force as a pass rusher. Ferguson and fellow veteran lineman Greg Ellis lead a front seven that has been recently injected with youth and talent. Younger faces such as ends Chris Canty and Marcus Spears and outside linebacker DeMarcus Ware will join forces with Ferguson and Ellis to form the nucleus of a solid front seven with versatile pass rushing ability. Ferguson has played over the center at nose tackle and across from the guard at defensive tackle. Despite missing the entire 2001 season after suffering a torn right rotator cuff in training camp, he has proven to be durable, missing only seven of a potential 124 regular season career games – not including the 2001 season – due to injury. He has also improved with age, having posted three of his best four single-season tackle totals and three of his top five single-season sack totals over the past four years – including a 106-tackle, 4.5-sack effort during the 2003 season. Ferguson signed with Dallas as an unrestricted free agent in 2005 after eight seasons with the Jets, where he had been a starter at defensive tackle and nose tackle in New York since 1998.

2005: Ferguson shared time throughout the season at nose tackle with Glover. He finished the year second among Dallas defensive linemen in tackles with 42. He also tied for fourth on the team in quarterback pressures with six. A sprained ankle in training camp slowed Ferguson's preseason progress, but he was able to make his Cowboys debut in the season opening game at San Diego (9/11) where he worked in a rotation with Glover. In the following week's Monday night loss to Washington (9/19), he was a major force on the inside, recording three tackles and a tackle for a loss as Clinton Portis was held to 52 yards on 17 carries. In the win at San Francisco (9/25), Ferguson recorded three tackles and batted a pass that Al Singleton intercepted at the Cowboys 31-yard line to end a potential scoring drive. In the Texas Stadium win over Philadelphia (10/9), he registered two tackles and a tackle behind the line as the defense limited the Eagles to 129 total yards, including just 19 on the ground – the fourth lowest rushing total allowed by a Dallas team in club history. In the victory over the N.Y. Giants (10/16), he recorded a quarterback pressure as Eli Manning went 14-for-30 (46.7%) passing. Ferguson also recovered a Plaxico Burris fumble at the Giants 19-yard line. In the last-minute loss at Seattle (10/23), he recorded three tackles as the NFL's top ranked offense entering the game was limited to 289 total yards, 118 below their season average, and one touchdown. Shaun Alexander, the NFL's leading rusher at 119 yards-per-game (5.5 avg.), was limited to 61 yards on 21 carries (2.9 avg.). In the win over Arizona (10/30), he had two tackles and a quarterback pressure as the Cardinals were held to 213 total yards. In the Monday night win at Philadelphia (11/14), Ferguson recorded four tackles. Ferguson earned his first start as a Cowboy in the team's loss at the N.Y. Giants (12/4), replacing Glover at nose tackle. He responded with a season-high six tackles – tops among linemen – and his first sack of 2005. He also added a season-high two quarterback pressures as the Giants were held to one offensive touchdown and 150 net passing yards. He started again the next week against Kansas City (12/11) as the Cowboys opened the game in a 4-3 defensive alignment. In his third straight start – the loss at Washington (12/18) – he tied his season-high and led all linemen with six tackles. In the last-minute win at Carolina (12/24), Ferguson recorded four tackles as the Panthers were limited to 71 rushing yards on 24 carries (3.0 avg.). While drawing the starting nod against St. Louis (1/1/06), he tied for the lead among linemen with five tackles and helped limit the Rams to 147 net passing yards.

2004: In his final season with the Jets, Ferguson started 15-of-16 games and totaled 60 tackles, 3.5 sacks and a career-high two forced fumbles after moving back to nose tackle from defensive tackle. He recorded two tackles and two pressures at San Diego (9/19) before notching five stops, two pressures and a sack that resulted in a forced fumble at Miami (10/3). He posted four stops against San Francisco (10/17) in his 90th career regular season game. He also teamed with Shaun Ellis to sack 49ers quarterback Tim Rattay on a third quarter, third down play that led to a San Francisco punt. The Jets then scored their first touchdown of the game to begin the march to a come-from-behind victory. He was held without a tackle in the AFC Championship Game at Denver (1/7/99) the following week.

1997: After being drafted in the seventh round (229th overall) of the NFL Draft, Ferguson saw action in 13 games as a rookie and recorded 32 tackles and a career-high 4.5 sacks. He was inactive for the first two games of the season, but made his professional debut at New England (9/14) and posted two tackles. He registered his first career sack against New England (10/19) a month later while contributing four tackles. He again tallied four stops and a sack at Miami (11/9) before suffering a bruised left shoulder on the second half kickoff against Minnesota (11/23) and not returning to action. He missed the game at Buffalo (11/30) due to the shoulder injury, but returned to the field against Indianapolis (12/7) and contributed four tackles. Against Tampa Bay (12/14), he totaled three tackles and a sack after being forced into full-time duty due to the season ending injury of Ernie Logan. Ferguson made his first career start in the season finale at Detroit (12/21) and totaled four tackles.

PRO: A smart, versatile player, Ryan Fowler has made the most of his opportunities both as a productive special teams performer and an emerging talent at middle linebacker. Dat Nguyen's retirement and injuries to fellow middle linebacker Scott Shanle put Fowler in a late season position to prove he could contribute as an every down player. His natural instincts and solid tackling ability have distinguished Fowler as a player who can make tackles behind the line of scrimmage - something he did at a record pace while starring in the ACC at Duke University. After finishing his career at Duke ranked second on the school's career tackles for a loss list (47.5), third on the career tackles list (495) and sixth on the career sacks list (12.5), Fowler took full advantage of his limited playing time in 2004 to shine on special teams. In 2005, he saw more time at middle linebacker and recorded four tackles for lost yardage. Fowler will be in the thick of the battle for the starting spot opposite Bradie James in the middle of the Dallas defense in 2006. Fowler was originally signed by Dallas as an undrafted rookie in April of 2004.

2005: Fowler's development and progress as an every down player was accelerated in the latter weeks of 2005 as Nguyen's unexpected retirement - and injuries to Shanle - opened the door for Fowler's extended playing time at middle linebacker. Prior to seeing regular action at linebacker, Fowler was a solid special teams player throughout the year - finishing the season second on the team in kicking game tackles with 12. As his time at middle linebacker increased in December, he was able to close out the season tied for third on the team in tackles for lost yardage with four. A strained left calf muscle forced Fowler to miss two early season games at San Francisco (9/25) and at Oakland (10/2). He returned to action on special teams in the following week's victory over Philadelphia (10/9). In the loss at Seattle (10/23), he recorded his first special teams tackle of the season at the Seahawks 19-yard line on a kickoff return. In the win over Arizona (10/30), Fowler tied for second on the team with two special teams tackles while helping limit Reggie Swinton to an 18.1-yard average on seven kickoff returns. In the Monday night win at Philadelphia (11/14), he tied for the team lead with three special teams tackles. All three of those stops came on kickoff coverage as the Eagles were limited to a 22.3-yard average on four kicks, with a long return of 28 yards. In the win over Detroit (11/20), he recorded one special teams tackle as Eddie Drummond was limited to a 19.8-yard average on four kickoff returns and one return for -6 yards on punt returns. He also saw limited time at middle linebacker against the Lions when Shanle was forced from the game with an ankle sprain. Fowler earned his first NFL start at middle linebacker against Denver (11/24) on Thanksgiving Day when he replaced the injured Shanle. He recorded two tackles as the Broncos were limited to 13 first downs and 149 net passing yards. He also added a special teams tackle in the overtime loss to Denver. In the loss at Washington (12/18), Fowler had a tackle for a loss and forced a Ladell Betts fumble that he recovered at the Dallas 37-yard line and returned nine yards. Fowler registered his second career start at linebacker in the last-minute victory at Carolina (12/24), again replacing Shanle. Fowler recorded five tackles and a tackle for a loss as the Panthers were limited to 71 rushing yards on 24 carries (3.0 avg.). Fowler started for the third time in the season ending loss to St. Louis (1/1/06), and he finished the game as the Cowboys leading tackler with a career-high nine stops – two of which were behind the line of scrimmage. The Rams were limited to a 3.2 yard-per-rush average and 147 net passing yards on the night.

2004: Fowler originally signed with the Cowboys April 30 as a rookie free agent but was released a month later when he failed a physical after injuring his back in offseason workouts. He re-signed with Dallas Aug. 2 but was released Sept. 5. He immediately signed to the Cowboys practice squad, where he spent the first five weeks of the season. On Oct. 15, he was signed to the active roster but was inactive for the next 10 games. He saw his first NFL action on special teams against Washington (12/26). In the season finale at the N.Y. Giants (1/2/05), he led the team with two special teams tackles and forced a fumble covering the Cowboys final kickoff. The Giants, who came into the game with a league-best 25.1-yard average on kickoff returns, were limited to a 16.0-yard average on five returns.

COLLEGE: As two-time team captain, Fowler became just the second player in Duke history to lead the team in tackles for three consecutive years. He finished his career second on the school's career tackles for a loss list (47.5), third on the career tackles list (495) and sixth on the career sacks list (12.5). He registered 136 tackles and eight double-digit tackle games as a senior, earning second-team All-ACC honors. As a junior, Fowler earned honorable mention All-ACC and Academic All-ACC honors after leading Duke with a career-high 145 tackles. Fowler led the Blue Devils in tackles (127) and sacks (three) and tied for the team lead in tackles for losses (seven) as a sophomore, posting seven double-digit tackle games. Fowler earned Freshman All-America honors from The Sporting News and was named Duke's Most Outstanding Linebacker as a true freshman after leading the Blue Devils with 87 tackles. He also led the team in tackles for a loss (13) and sacks (seven) – the fourth best single-season sack total in school history.

PERSONAL: Fowler was a three-year letterman at Seminole High School in Redington Shores, Fla., playing quarterback, running back and linebacker. As a senior, he captained a team that went 8-2 and made an appearance in the state playoffs. The sociology major was also the Florida state champion in the discus as a junior for the Seminole track and field team. As part of an NFL-NFLPA initiative to assist players in preparing for their post-playing careers, Fowler took part in the NFL Business Management and Entrepreneurial Program at the Wharton School at Penn during the 2006 offseason. As a rookie, he was a member of the Cowboys 2004 Rookie Club – a program designed to introduce rookie team members to community service in the Dallas area. He and his fellow rookie teammates participated in visits to various non-profit organizations serving children and adults, including the NFL Play It Smart program at Dallas's Lincoln High School, ChildCareGroup, NFL United Way Hometown Huddle and The Salvation Army. He has also participated in The Salvation Army Angel Tree program – donating Christmas gifts for underprivileged children in 2004 and 2005. During the 2005 offseason, Fowler attended the Taste of the NFL: The Ultimate Dallas Cowboys Tailgate Party hosted by former teammate La'Roi Glover and Abacus restaurant benefiting The North Texas Food Bank and also attended the Cowboys annual NFL Draft Day party in appreciation for the Cowboys loyal fans. He and his wife, Stacy, were married Feb. 26, 2005 and have one daughter, Macy (12/5/05).

PRO: When Aaron Glenn signed with the Dallas Cowboys on April 27, 2005, he not only reunited with Coach Bill Parcells, but he provided the Cowboys with veteran depth at cornerback – something they have lacked for several years. It didn't take long for Dallas fans to see the value in having talent and experience at the third cornerback position as Glenn made a positive impact on the Dallas secondary from day one. His game ending end zone interception in the season opener at San Diego set the tone for a year in which he made several contributions – both in the nickel package and as a starter. He brings leadership and professionalism to a Dallas secondary group that is rapidly emerging as one of the NFL's best. Glenn is an instinctive, athletic corner who has defied the aging process with excellent playmaking skills as a 13-year pro. Glenn, who will report to training camp just over a week removed from his 34th birthday, has started 170-of-180 career games and has been selected to three Pro Bowls during his career – twice with the N.Y. Jets (1997, 1998) and once with the Texans (2002). His selection with Houston made him – along with teammate Gary Walker – the first expansion Pro Bowlers since the 1970 NFL-AFL merger. Glenn has recorded at least one interception in each of the past 11 seasons (1995-2005), the second longest active streak in the NFL (Troy Vincent – 14). Glenn also brings the potential of a big play every time he is on the field. During his career, he has seven returns for touchdowns – five on interceptions, one on a kickoff and one on a missed field goal, which went down in Jets history as the longest return for a touchdown (104 yards). In Dallas, Glenn led the Cowboys in interceptions in 2005 while working as both a third corner and as a starter after Anthony Henry's mid-season injury problems arose. He was originally selected by the N.Y. Jets with the 12th overall pick in the 1994 NFL Draft. In 2002, he was chosen by the Houston Texans with the third pick in the NFL Expansion Draft.

2005: In taking on a new role as a non-starter for the first time in his 12-year NFL career, Glenn responded by leading the Cowboys in interceptions (four) and providing depth, leadership and valuable experience to a rapidly improving secondary. Glenn spent the majority of the first half of the season as the team's third corner in the nickel – playing on the outside while Terence Newman shifted into the slot. By season's end, he had seven starts – in place of the injured Henry – and his presence and production were visible for all 16 weeks of the season. His interception total for the year enabled him to record four-or-more interceptions in five of the last six seasons. Glenn also tied for third on the team in passes defended with eight. He made his presence felt immediately in the season opener at San Diego (9/11) with perhaps the play of the game. With the Chargers driving for the game winning score – in the game's final seconds – Glenn stepped in front of a Drew Brees pass in the end zone on fourth down to bring the game to an end with his first interception as a Cowboy. He earned his first start as a Cowboy in the lop-sided win over Philadelphia (10/9) as Dallas opened in nickel. Glenn recorded one tackle as the Eagles, the NFL's top ranked offense entering the game, were limited to 129 total yards, including just 110 yards through the air. In the following week's win over the Giants (10/16), he recorded two tackles while helping limit New York to a one-of-11 success rate on third downs. In the win against Arizona (10/30), Glenn recorded one tackle, broke up a pass and turned in an interception on Arizona's final offensive possession of the game. The Cardinals were limited to 142 net passing yards. After Henry suffered a late game groin injury against the Cardinals, Glenn moved into the starting lineup for the Monday night game at Philadelphia (11/14). He responded with four tackles while also breaking up a pass. The Eagles were limited to 178 net passing yards and an 8.7 yard-per-catch average, and the Philadelphia wideouts had just one reception of over 10 yards. Glenn started the following week in the win over Detroit (11/20) and recorded three tackles and helped limit the Lions to 226 total yards, including just 169 through the air. Again a starter in the overtime loss to Denver (11/24) on Thanksgiving Day, Glenn registered four tackles as the Broncos were limited to 149 net passing yards on the day. The Denver wide receivers had just six catches for 64 yards, with one catch, a 20-yarder, over 13 yards on the day. Glenn's first tackle of the game against Denver was the 600th of his career. In his fourth consecutive start, at the N.Y. Giants (12/4), Glenn battled Plaxico Burress all day and limited him to four catches for 47 yards with a long of 18 yards. While returning to the familiar setting of the Meadowlands, where Glenn had starred for the Jets, the wily veteran recorded two interceptions of Eli Manning. The first theft occurred in the end zone to end a potential scoring drive in the second quarter. The second interception took place in the third quarter – at the Giants 17-yard line – and his 10-yard return gave the Dallas offense a possession at the N.Y. seven to set up a touchdown. He suffered a sprained ankle on his second interception but returned to the game. It was the second two-interception game of his career. For the day, Manning completed just 12-of-31 passes for 150 net yards and no touchdowns. In the thrilling win over Kansas City (12/11), he returned to nickel work with Henry back in the starting lineup. He earned his seventh start of the year in the season ending loss to St. Louis (1/1/06) and recorded three tackles while helping limit the Rams to 147 net passing yards. For the night Tory Holt and Isaac Bruce were limited to five catches for 48 yards.

and recorded 59 tackles, 11 passes defended and five interceptions while returning four punts for 22 yards. In the Texans Week Two matchup at Detroit (9/19), he registered two stops and picked off a Joey Harrington pass. He tallied five tackles the following week at Kansas City (9/26) and matched that total against Oakland (10/3). Glenn recorded a season-high eight tackles in Houston's overtime loss to Minnesota (10/10), then picked off his second pass of the season at Tennessee (10/17) when he stepped in front of Steve McNair's first pass attempt of the game. He recorded an interception at Indianapolis (11/14) while helping hold Marvin Harrison to two catches. His theft against the Colts led to the Texans first touchdown of the game. Against Green Bay (11/21), Glenn tallied four tackles and picked off a pass. He recorded seven tackles at the N.Y. Jets (12/5) in his first trip back to the Meadowlands. He collected two tackles and knocked away five passes at Chicago (12/19), including picking off his fifth pass of the season on a fake field goal attempt. After tallying two tackles at Jacksonville (12/26), he closed the season with five stops against Cleveland (1/2/05).

2003: In his second season with the Texans, Glenn totaled 29 tackles, 16 pass deflections and an interception while starting 11 games – missing two in the middle of the season due to a groin injury and the final three games of the season after being placed on injured reserve with a groin injury. Following the season, he was voted the recipient of the Ed Block Courage Award by his teammates. He opened the season with seven tackles and two pass deflections at Miami (9/7), then posted four stops and two batted passes at New Orleans (9/14). He tallied three tackles against Kansas City (9/21) before leaving the game against Jacksonville (9/28) after just eight plays with a groin strain. He missed the remainder of the Jaguars game and games at Tennessee (10/12) and against the N.Y. Jets (10/19) due to the injury. He returned to the playing field at Indianapolis (10/26) and recorded a tackle and a pass deflection. The following week against Carolina (11/2), he picked off his only pass of the season when he stepped in front of a Jake Delhomme pass. Glenn registered three stops and two pass deflections at Cincinnati (11/9) before finishing with three tackles and three passes defended at Buffalo (11/16). The following week against eventual Super Bowl champion New England (11/23), he collected two tackles and knocked away two passes. In the rematch at Jacksonville (12/7), he totaled four tackles before leaving the game in the second half with a groin injury. He was placed on injured reserve three days later (Dec. 10) due to the injury and missed the final three games of the season.

2002: After being selected by the Texans with the third pick in the 2002 NFL Expansion Draft, Glenn put together a career year that resulted in his third Pro Bowl selection, first-team All-Pro honors from The Sporting News and College & Pro Football Newsweekly, second-team All-Pro honors from Football Digest and first-team All-AFC honors from Pro Football Weekly. He finished the season with a career-high 72 tackles, 16 passes defended (second best of career) and five interceptions (tying second best of career), which he returned for a career-best 181 yards and two touchdowns. He opened the season with four tackles and an interception that set up a Houston field goal drive against Dallas (9/8) in the franchise's first game. He posted a single tackle and another interception the following week at San Diego (9/15), marking the fourth time in his career he has picked off passes in consecutive games. He then posted six stops and a pass deflection against Indianapolis (9/22). He registered eight tackles at Philadelphia (9/29) before posting five stops and two pass deflections against Buffalo (10/13). At Jacksonville (10/27), he recorded two tackles and took a lateral on a punt return from Jabar Gaffney and raced 47 yards to set up Kris Brown's 45-yard game-winning field goal. The following week against Cincinnati (11/3), he tied a career-high with nine tackles. He registered four stops and picked off a pass at Tennessee (11/10), then picked up his first career sack when he dropped Mark Brunell for a 10-yard loss against Jacksonville (11/17). He tallied six tackles against the N.Y. Giants (11/24) before turning in one of the NFL's best single-game performances of 2002 at Pittsburgh (12/8). Against the Steelers, Glenn recorded eight tackles and picked off two passes, both of which he returned for touchdowns – one in the first quarter to give the Texans a 14-0 lead and the other late in the fourth period to secure the victory. His performance earned him his first career AFC Defensive Player of the Week honor. He then closed out the season by collecting three tackles and breaking up two passes at Washington (12/22) and contributing two stops against Tennessee (12/29). His career year came to an end when he started and tallied three tackles in the AFC's 45-20 Pro Bowl win.

2001: In his final season with the N.Y. Jets, Glenn started 12-of-13 games, marking the first time in his career he did not start a game in which he played. Despite missing three games with a sprained knee, he recorded 39 tackles, 13 pass deflections, a team-high five interceptions and a fumble recovery. He opened the season by recording seven tackles against Indianapolis (9/9), then posted three stops and his 20th career interception at New England (9/23). He picked off a pass at Buffalo (10/7) before totaling five tackles and a pass defended against Miami (10/14). Two weeks later at Carolina (10/28), he tallied two tackles, three pass deflections and an interception, which he returned 22 yards to set up John Hall's 34-yard game-winning field goal. He picked off a pass and forced a fumble at New Orleans (11/4), then opened the scoring for the Jets at Miami (11/18) when he picked off a first quarter pass and returned the theft 60 yards for a touchdown. The theft marked the 24th interception of his career and tied him for third on the Jets all-time interception list. He suffered a sprained knee early in the second quarter against New England (12/2) and missed the remainder of the game, as well as the next three contests. He returned to the playing field against Buffalo (12/30) as a nickel back, missing the first start of his NFL career. He returned to the starting lineup the following week at Oakland (1/6/02), posting a season-high 10 tackles. He then tallied five tackles in New York's wild card playoff loss to Oakland (1/12/02).

2000: Glenn recorded 37 tackles, 14 passes defended and four interceptions while starting all 16 games for the Jets and was named first alternate to the AFC Pro Bowl squad. He picked off his first pass of the season at Tampa Bay (9/24), then recorded a season-high seven tackles against Pittsburgh (10/8). At Indianapolis (11/12), he helped hold Marvin Harrison to four catches for 34 yards. He opened the season against New England (9/12) by recording five tackles and three kickoff returns for 96 yards (32.0 avg.). He accumulated three stops and recovered a fumble at Buffalo (9/19) before picking off a fourth quarter pass at Denver (10/2) to set up the game-winning touchdown for the Jets. He then held Harrison to a season-low 40 receiving yards on six receptions against Indianapolis (10/17). He registered a season-high seven tackles and an interception at Oakland (10/24) before posting two tackles, two pass deflections and an interception at Miami (12/27). In the Jets season-ending win against Seattle (1/2/00), he held Seahawks receiver Joey Galloway to one catch.

1998: Glenn earned his second consecutive Pro Bowl selection after registering 48 tackles, 11 passes defended and a career-high six interceptions. He also returned 24 kickoffs for 585 yards (24.4 avg.). He led the team with eight tackles while recording his first interception of the season against Baltimore (9/13). He posted four stops and an interception in the end zone at New England (10/19), then picked off his third pass of the season against Atlanta (10/25). At Kansas City (11/1), Glenn returned a kickoff 62 yards, and two plays later, Vinny Testaverde hit Kyle Brady with the game-tying touchdown. At Indianapolis (11/15), he tallied a team-high nine tackles, three pass deflections and an interception while earning AFC Special Teams Player of the Week honors after returning a missed field goal 104-yards for a touchdown. His return marked the longest play in Jets history. He picked off his fifth pass of the season and posted two tackles against Carolina (11/29). The following week against Seattle (12/6), he injured his right ankle while intercepting a pass and did not return to action. His ankle injury forced him to miss the remaining three games of the regular season. He returned to action in a divisional play-off game against Jacksonville (1/10/99) as the Jets nickel back and posted a single tackle. He then collected two stops in the AFC Championship Game at Denver (1/17/99).

1997: After recording 65 tackles, 12 pass deflections and an interception, Glenn earned his first Pro Bowl selection and became the first Jet to earn a starting nod in the all-star game. He also finished the season first in the AFC, second in the NFL, with a 26.5-yard average and a touchdown on 28 kickoff returns (741 yards). He started the season with a bang, returning a kickoff 96 yards for a score while adding five tackles and two passes defended against Buffalo (9/7). His touchdown return marked the first return for a score by a Jet since Bobby Humphrey accomplished the feat at Cincinnati on Dec. 21, 1986 – a span of almost 11 years. Glenn recorded his lone interception of the season at Indianapolis (10/5).

and four interceptions – two of which he returned for touchdowns. At Miami (9/15), he stepped in front of a Marino fourth-and-goal pass and returned it a then club record 100 yards for a touchdown. 1994: After being selected with the 12th overall pick by the Jets in the NFL Draft, Glenn started 15 games at left corner and totaled 69 tackles, 13 passes defended and two forced fumbles to earn All-Rookie honors from Football News and College & Pro Football Newsweekly. He also ranked ninth in the AFC in kickoff return average (21.6). His only missed start of the season came at Green Bay (11/13) when he was suffering from turf toe. He racked up a career-high 10 tackles against San Diego (12/18). In order to draft Glenn, the Jets traded first (13th overall) and fifth-round draft choices to New Orleans to move up to the 12th overall position.

Upon graduating, he held Aggie school records for passes defended in a season (20), single-season punt return average (19.9) and most punt return yards in a single game (131). He earned first-team All-America honors and was a consensus All-SWC pick as a senior after recording 27 tackles, 13 pass deflections and three interceptions while also leading the nation in punt return average (19.9), which broke the school record of 16.1 set in 1951. As a junior, he earned second-team All-America, first-team All-SWC and SWC Newcomer of the Year honors after posting six interceptions. He also set a conference and school record with 20 pass break-ups. During the season, he put together a streak of eight consecutive games without allowing a pass reception. Glenn transferred to Texas A&M from Navarro, Texas, Junior College, where he earned All-America and All-Conference honors as a sophomore after recording 60 tackles, 15 pass deflections and two interceptions despite being thrown at only 15 times.

PERSONAL: As a senior at Nimitz High School in Humble, Texas, Glenn rushed for over 1,000 yards, chalked up over 200 yards receiving and picked off seven passes to earn all-state honors. COWBOYS

PRO: An explosive and fluid playmaker, Terry Glenn has been a dangerous deep threat in the Cowboys offense since coming to Dallas in a trade with Green Bay prior to the start of the 2003 season. Since arriving in Dallas, he has averaged 16.6 yards-per-catch, while 65 of his 86 catches as a Cowboy have covered the necessary distance for a first down. In 2006, he will be part of a one-two punch with Terrell Owens that will offer one of the NFL's most accomplished pair of starting receivers. Heading into the upcoming season, Glenn and Owens have combined career totals of 1,239 receptions, 18,311 receiving yards and 139 career touchdown receptions. In 2005,

Glenn led the NFC, and was second in the NFL, in yards-per-reception with an average of 18.3 yards. He also topped the 500 career reception barrier while tying his single-season best mark of four 100-yard receiving games. It is no coincidence that Glenn's stock continued to rise in 2005 after he was reunited with Drew Bledsoe who was his quarterback in New England when he first entered the NFL. The 2006 season will also mark the first year in Dallas in which Glenn has worked with the same starting quarterback for consecutive years. After joining Dallas in 2003, Glenn's impact was immediate as he led the Cowboys in receiving yards (754) and touchdown receptions (five). His second season in Dallas was headed in the same direction until a sprained foot sidelined him for the season. At the time of his injury in Week Six, he was averaging 16.7 yards-per-reception. Glenn arrived in Dallas in exchange for a sixth-round choice that went to Green Bay on Feb. 28, 2003. The trade reunited Glenn with Bill Parcells, New England's head coach when the Patriots drafted Glenn in the first round (seventh overall) in the 1996 NFL Draft. After being selected by the Patriots, Glenn earned All-Rookie honors after catching an NFL rookie record 90 passes from Bledsoe. While working with Bledsoe in New England, he finished his career as a Patriot ranked fifth on the club's all-time receptions list and fourth on the all-time receiving yards list. During his 10-year career, he has amassed 523 receptions for 7,776 yards and 38 touchdowns and has notched 21 100-yard receiving games - including six contests of 148 yards-or-more.

2005: In turning out one of the most productive seasons in a solid NFL career, Glenn finished the year ranked first in the NFC, and second in the NFL, in the yards-per-catch category with a career-high average of 18.3 yards-per-reception. His team leading 1,136 receiving yards were ninth best in the NFC and 11th in the NFL. He also tied for eighth in the NFC (15th in the NFL) with a career-high seven touchdown receptions. His 62 receptions were 18th best in the NFC, and his 1,000-yard receiving season was the first by a Dallas receiver since Raghbi Ismail had 1,097 yards in 1999. The 2005 season was the third 1,000-yard receiving year of Glenn's career and just 11 yards shy of his career-high of 1,147 in 1999. All three of his 1,000-yard seasons have come with Bledsoe at quarterback. Glenn's 1,136 receiving yards for the season was the ninth best single-season total in Cowboys club history. He also had four 100-yard receiving games in 2005, tying the most by a Cowboys receiver since Michael Irvin had four in 1997. Those four 100-yard games also tied Glenn's single-season career best of four in 1998 and 1999. His 62 receptions in 2005 enabled him to have seven 50-catch seasons in his 10 years in the NFL. For the year, he led the team with 49 first downs on his 62 receptions, including 18 on third downs. In the season opening win at San Diego (9/11), he recorded three catches for 42 yards, and all three catches went for first downs. In the Monday night loss to Washington (9/19), Glenn led the Cowboys with six receptions for a season-high 157 yards and a touchdown. His scoring catch was a 70-yarder from Bledsoe off a flea-flicker, and, at the time, it marked the second longest reception of his career behind an 86-yard touchdown catch at Pittsburgh on Dec. 6, 1998 (topped by a 71-yard touchdown later in the 2005 season). The 157-yard performance against Washington was his fourth best receiving day ever. It marked the 22nd time Bledsoe and Glenn had connected on a scoring pass, but their first since Dec. 24, 2000 when they were both members of the Patriots. In the fourth quarter, come-from-behind win at San Francisco (9/25), Glenn led the team with 137 yards on five receptions, including grabs of 58 and 44 yards. It was his second consecutive 100-yard game. It was also the first time he had posted back-to-back 100-yard games since the first two weeks of the 1999 season. In the loss at Oakland (10/2) Glenn posted a catch of over 50 yards for the third straight week. He finished the day with two receptions for 64 yards, including a 57-yard catch on third-and-13 to get Dallas to the Raiders 26-yard line with 3:28 remaining. In the following week's blowout win over Philadelphia (10/9), Glenn had a season-high seven receptions for 118 yards and two touchdowns. He registered three catches for 50 yards and a touchdown on the game's opening drive and then hauled in a 38-yard touchdown catch later in the quarter. He closed out the first quarter with five catches for 94 yards and two touchdowns. It marked his third 100-yard receiving game of the season. In the overtime win over the N.Y. Giants (10/16), he recorded six catches for 64 yards, and five of his six catches gave Dallas a first down, including two on third downs. Four of his six receptions against the Giants came on Dallas scoring drives, including both of his third down conversion catches. In the last-minute loss at Seattle (10/23), he tied for the team lead with four catches for 35 yards. He continued to make big plays in the win over Arizona (10/30) with three catches for 65 yards, including a 32-yard grab. All three catches picked up a first down and all came on Dallas scoring drives. In the Monday night win at Philadelphia (11/14), he recorded two catches for 31 yards and a touchdown. Both receptions, including the 20-yard touchdown catch, came on the Cowboys 72-yard touchdown drive late in the fourth quarter to pull Dallas to within six points at 20-14. The following week's win against Detroit (11/20) saw Glenn record the 500th reception of his career with his first catch of the afternoon. He finished that outing with three receptions for 35 yards. In the overtime loss to Denver on Thanksgiving Day (11/24), Glenn had four receptions for 56 yards, including a 39-yard catch on the Cowboys second quarter touchdown drive. In the loss at the N.Y. Giants (12/4), he was second on the team with three receptions for 37 yards, including a seven-yard touchdown catch in the third quarter that pulled Dallas to within seven at 17-10. In the last-minute win over Kansas City (12/11), Glenn led the team with six receptions for 138 yards and a touchdown. The performance against the Chiefs was his fourth 100-yard receiving game of the season and the 21st of his career. It was his second best receiving day of the season and included a season-long 71-yard touchdown catch off a flea-flicker from Bledsoe, which became the second longest reception of his career. He also recorded the first rushing touchdown of his career with a six-yard run on an end-around in the fourth quarter. With the rushing touchdown, he logged a career-high seven touchdowns for the year. In the loss at Washington (12/18), he had two catches for 25 yards, putting him over the 1,000-yard mark for the season. In the Christmas Eve win at Carolina (12/24), Glenn was second on the team with four receptions for 88 yards and a touchdown. He opened the game with a 51-yard catch in the first quarter to help set up Dallas's first touchdown of the afternoon. He had a 20-yard grab to get Dallas to the Panthers 26-yard line in the second quarter, setting up a 24-yard field goal that tied the game at 10-10. He then kicked-started the Cowboys final game-winning drive with a 15-yard catch on first down and ended it with a two-yard touchdown catch on third down that provided the winning points in a 24-20 come-from-behind win. He played the entire game with a right thumb that he dislocated early in the game. In the season ending loss to St. Louis (1/1/06), he had two catches for 44 yards, including a 28-yard grab on the Cowboys only touchdown drive of the night.

2004: Glenn was off to another impressive start – averaging 16.7 yards-per-catch – when he suffered a sprained right foot at Green Bay (10/24) that required season-ending surgery and landed him on the injured reserve list. Up to the point of his injury, he had a team-high 400 receiving yards and two touchdowns on 24 catches. He opened the season at Minnesota (9/12) in strong fashion, catching five passes for 84 yards, including a diving 32-yard touchdown grab just before the first half expired. The following week against Cleveland (9/19), he led the team with six receptions for 90 yards, including a game-long 37-yarder at the two-minute warning of the fourth quarter that allowed Dallas to run the clock down to 22 seconds in the 19-12 victory. He tied for the team lead with three catches for 56 yards and a touchdown at Washington (9/27). His scoring catch against the Redskins was a diving grab at the back of the end zone on a halfback pass from Richie Anderson. Glenn also drew a pass interference penalty against Washington in the end zone to set up another Cowboys touchdown. He recorded a season-high seven receptions for a season-high 140 yards against Pittsburgh (10/17). At Green Bay (10/24) he posted a six-yard catch and threw an incompleteness in the end zone on a wide receiver pass before suffering a sprained right foot late in the first quarter. He did not return to action and was placed on injured reserve six days later (Oct. 30), missing the remainder of the season.

2003: After being acquired by the Cowboys in an offseason trade with Green Bay, Glenn led the team in receiving yards (754) while finishing second on the team in receptions (52) – the sixth 50-reception season of his career. He also tied for the club lead in touchdowns with five, and 37 of his 52 catches picked up a first down, including a team-high tying 11 on third down. Glenn was one of the Cowboys offensive heroes in the win at the N.Y. Giants (9/15), recording season highs for catches (eight) and receiving yards (113). Six of his eight catches went for first downs, including two on third down (the last of those on the game-winning drive in overtime). He was the Cowboys leading receiver in the win over Arizona (10/5) with four catches for 104 yards, including his first touchdown catch as a Cowboy on a 51-yard flea-flicker. In the win over Philadelphia (10/12), Glenn led the team with five catches for 41 yards. His third catch of the day was the 400th of his career. At Detroit (10/19), Glenn registered his first career multiple-touchdown reception game with three scoring catches. In doing so, he became the 12th player in club history to record three scoring catches in a game (club record is four). His first three receptions were for 20-, 19- and eight-yard scores in a 10-minute span of the late first and early second quarters. He finished the day with a team-high six receptions for 75 yards. The last Dallas receiver with three touchdown catches in a game was Michael Irvin against Arizona on Sept. 20, 1992. At Tampa Bay (10/26), Glenn led all Dallas receivers with three catches for 26 yards. In the win over Washington (11/2), he led all receivers with six catches for 73 yards. He also had the longest gain of his career on a running play with a 47-yard reverse that helped the Cowboys run out the clock and secure the victory. Against Buffalo (11/9), he threw an incomplete pass on his first career pass attempt. In the win over Carolina (11/23), he caught five passes for a team-high 74 yards to move past the 6,000 career receiving yard mark. In the loss to Miami (11/27), he led both teams in receiving yards with 97 on four catches, including a 45-yarder. In Dallas's playoff-clinching victory over the N.Y. Giants (12/21), Glenn caught a team-high five passes for 64 yards, all resulting in first downs. In Dallas's NFC Wild Card Playoff Game at Carolina (1/3/04), Glenn caught four passes for 38 yards.

2002: Glenn became the Packers starter at flanker following his March 11 trade from New England. He was acquired in exchange for Green Bay's fourth-round selection in the 2002 NFL Draft (Jarvis Green) and a conditional fourth-round choice in 2003 (later traded to Denver – Bryant McNeal). He went on to finish third among Green Bay receivers with 56 catches (for 817 yards and two touchdowns). Of his 56 receptions, 43 were for a first down (76.8%) – the third-best percentage in the NFC, behind the Cardinals David Boston (87.5%) and the Seahawks Bobby Engram (86.0%). In his Packers debut, he pulled in a 42-yard pass on the Packers opening play of the second half against Atlanta (9/8), jump-starting a scoring drive that pulled Green Bay to within 21-20 in the Packers 37-34 overtime victory. He finished the Falcons game with two receptions for 60 yards. At New Orleans (9/15), Glenn caught a game-high nine passes for 81 yards, including a leaping 14-yard touchdown grab just before halftime for his initial touchdown wearing the Green and Gold. He totaled four catches for 55 yards, including three third-down receptions that he converted into first downs, at Detroit (9/22). Bothered by post-traumatic migraine headaches that kept him out of practice except for Saturday, he still played the first half of the win over Carolina (9/29) as the club's third receiver, making a nifty 17-yard grab along the right sideline before he was unable to continue after halftime. Glenn enjoyed his first 100-yard receiving effort with the Packers at Chicago (10/7), making a team-high eight catches for 154 yards (his top yardage performance since having a career-best 214 yards on Oct. 3, 1999 at Cleveland), and passing the 5,000-yard plateau for career receiving yards in the process. He had a terrific 46-yard catch-and-run to the one-yard line just before halftime of the win over Detroit (11/10). The play was initially ruled a touchdown after he dove into the end zone, but replay review ruled him down just shy of the goal line. He finished the day with three catches for 82 yards. The following week at Minnesota (11/17), he got a downfield block on the Vikings Corey Chavous to help finish off Driver's 84-yard touchdown reception, along with contributing four catches for 61 yards. Glenn tied for the team lead with four receptions for 61 yards at Tampa Bay (11/24). He had a pair of diving grabs in the rematch with Chicago (12/1), including a 23-yarder during the Packers 90-yard drive for a go-ahead field goal (16-14) in the eventual 30-20 win. Late in the second half against the Bears, he suffered a bruised tailbone, causing him to be inactive the next week against Minnesota (12/8). Glenn returned to the lineup at San Francisco (12/15), catching three passes for 46 yards, including a key 22-yarder to help set up a touchdown on the Packers opening drive of the second half. He followed that up with a four-catch performance against Buffalo (12/22). Glenn filled the void when Donald Driver left the game at the N.Y. Jets (12/29) early in the second quarter due to a shoulder injury, catching a team-high five passes for 76 yards – including a laser-like, 14-yard touchdown throw from Brett Favre just before halftime to pull Green Bay to within 14-10. Glenn recorded one catch for 11 yards in the wild card game against Atlanta (1/4/03) before leaving the game at halftime due to a mild concussion.

2001: Glenn played in four games, with one start, in his final season in New England. Of the remaining 12 games, he was inactive for seven, served an NFL suspension for four and a team suspension for one. He finished the season with 14 receptions for 204 yards and a touchdown. Glenn made his debut against San Diego (10/14) after serving a four-game league suspension and notched a season-high seven receptions for 110 yards and a score. After suffering a hamstring injury in practice the following week, he was inactive Weeks 6-11 and then placed under a team suspension for the contest at the N.Y. Jets (12/2). He returned to action against Cleveland (12/9) and had four receptions for 67 yards, moving into fifth place on New England's all-time receiving yardage list. He added three receptions at Buffalo (12/16), including a 19-yarder that contributed to a field-goal scoring drive. He saw action against Miami (12/22) but was then inactive for the season finale at Carolina (1/6/02). During the Patriots postseason run to the Super Bowl title, Glenn was under a team suspension.

2000: Glenn started all 16 games for the first time in his career and finished with 79 receptions for 963 yards and six touchdowns. He finished 10th in the AFC in both receptions and yards. He also added four rushes for 39 yards. Glenn opened the season with a 39-yard touchdown reception among his four catches for 56 yards against Tampa Bay (9/3). The following week at the N.Y. Jets (9/11), he led the team with 81 receiving yards on six catches. He pulled in a game-high eight throws, including an eight-yard touchdown, for 69 yards against Minnesota (9/17) and again led the team with five receptions for 65 yards at Miami (9/24). In back-to-back games at Denver (10/1) and against Indianapolis (10/8), Glenn hauled in scoring passes. With an 11-yard reception against Buffalo (11/5), Glenn became just the sixth Patriot to go over the 4,000 receiving yard mark for his career. Against Cincinnati (11/19), he registered a season-high 11 catches for 129 yards. In New England's 30-24 victory over Kansas City (12/4), Glenn broke free on a career-long 35-yard rush. He shared team high honors in receptions (five) and led the club in receiving yards (63) at Chicago (12/10), registering a touchdown in the process. His key 16-yard reception in overtime helped the club to a 13-10 victory at Buffalo (12/17), and he finished the day with a team-leading six catches for 70 yards. Glenn had a touchdown reception among his two catches against Miami (12/24).

1999: With a career-high 1,147 receiving yards on a team-leading 69 receptions, Glenn had one of the most outstanding seasons of his career despite missing two games. He posted a 16.6 yard-per-catch average and was selected as a Pro Bowl alternate – later taking part in the all-star contest when Tim Brown withdrew due to injury. Nine times during the season he led the club in receptions, and eight times he led the team in receiving yards. Glenn started the season averaging 7.4 receptions for more than 127 yards-per-game through the first five contests. He opened the season with two key receptions on the game-winning scoring drive in a 30-28 victory over the N.Y. Jets (9/12), part of a seven-reception, 113-yard effort. The following week against Indianapolis (9/19), he led the team with seven receptions for 122 yards. He hauled in a crucial, 18-yard pass to convert a third down on the drive that resulted in a game-winning, 41-yard field goal in a 16-14 victory over the N.Y. Giants (9/26) and finished with five receptions for 95 yards in the contest. Glenn authored his signature game at Cleveland (10/3) when he set club records with 13 receptions for 214 yards, including 11 receptions for 145 yards by halftime. The next week at Kansas City (10/10), he hauled in a 49-yard touchdown among his five receptions for 92 yards. His five-game streak to start the season came to a halt against Miami (10/17) when he did not record a catch, just the third such game of his career. Glenn bounced back the next week in the win over Denver (10/24) with two receptions, including a 67-yarder, for 80 yards. He registered a 36-yard touchdown among his four receptions for 63 yards at Arizona (10/31). Glenn posted a 45-yard touchdown among his three catches for 69 yards at Buffalo (11/28) despite not starting. He then notched a game-high 148 yards on nine receptions, including a 52-yarder, at Indianapolis (12/12). Glenn was then inactive for the club's final two contests against Buffalo (12/26) because of illness, and then against Baltimore (1/2/00) due to a team suspension.

1998: Glenn posted a team-leading 792 yards on 50 receptions despite playing in just 10 games, missing four games with a hamstring injury and then finishing the season on injured reserve with a broken ankle. Glenn earned Player of the Game honors with 102 yards on just four receptions (25.5 avg.) against Tennessee (9/20), including a 51-yard touchdown grab. He topped the 100-yard mark again the ensuing week with 105 yards on four catches in a 30-27 win at New Orleans (10/4). Glenn led the team with seven receptions for 78 yards in the win over the Chiefs (10/11). After suffering a pulled hamstring against the N.Y. Jets (10/19), he missed the next four games. He returned to register seven receptions for 66 yards in a 26-23 victory over Miami (11/23) and then went over the 100-yard mark (104 on eight receptions) against Buffalo (11/29). His fourth 100-yard game of the season came at Pittsburgh (12/6) when he had a season-high 193 yards on nine receptions. His totals included a career long 86-yard touchdown grab. His season came to an end the following week at St. Louis (12/13), when he suffered a broken ankle that would land him on injured reserve Dec. 18.

1997: Glenn's sophomore season was marred by injury and limited to just nine games. He was inactive for six contests due to injury and suited up, but did not play, in a seventh. He was able to start both of New England's playoff contests. He finished the season with 27 receptions for 431 yards and two touchdowns. He had three receptions for 74 yards in the season opener against San Diego (8/31), but suffered an ankle injury that forced him to miss the next two games. He returned to the lineup for a Week Four matchup against Chicago (9/21), but left after the first series without making a reception. The following week at Denver (10/6), he made two receptions. On the Monday night stage against Green Bay

(10/27), Glenn hauled in seven passes for a season-high 163 yards, including 50- and 49-yard receptions. Despite being poked in the eye at Minnesota (11/2), Glenn returned to the contest in the fourth quarter with a protective shield on his helmet and finished the game with five receptions for 45 yards and a touchdown. He had three receptions for 59 yards at Buffalo (11/9) but had to leave the contest with a hamstring injury. He subsequently sat out the next five games before returning to the lineup at Miami (12/12), but aggravated the injury early in the contest and did not finish. He led the team with four catches for 57 yards in the AFC Wild Card playoff win over Miami (12/28). Glenn contributed postseason career-bests with five receptions for 96 yards in the following week's divisional playoff game at Pittsburgh (1/3/98) before suffering a broken collarbone that ended his season.

1996: Glenn exploded onto the scene as a rookie, finishing the season with an NFL rookie-record and team-leading 90 receptions for 1,132 yards and six touchdowns. His 90 catches ranked second in the AFC, seventh in the NFL, and was the second best single-season total in club history (96 by Ben Coates in 1994). He went on to earn AFC Rookie of the Year honors from United Press International, was an All-Pro selection by USA Today, was named to the All-Rookie Team of Pro Football Weekly/Pro Football Writers of America, was runner-up to Eddie George for Associated Press Rookie of the Year honors, was an All-AFC selection by UPI and was the second alternate for the 1997 Pro Bowl. Glenn missed most of training camp and the season opener at Miami (9/1) with a strained hamstring suffered in practice July 31. After missing the season opener, Glenn went on to start the next 18 games, including postseason, and led the team in receptions and receiving yards in nine-of-15 regular season games. He also posted two 100-yard outings. Glenn made his first NFL start at Buffalo (9/8) and finished with six receptions for 76 yards and a touchdown. In that game, he recorded his first career reception (nine yards from Bledsoe) and first career receiving touchdown (a 37-yard strike from Bledsoe). He tied for the team lead with six catches for 89 yards in a 28-25 overtime victory against Jacksonville (9/22), including a 32-yard reception that set up the game-winning field goal. Glenn posted a season-high 10 receptions for 112 yards against Miami (11/3) and collected his third touchdown of the year and rushed for 26 yards on an end-around in a 31-27 win over the N.Y. Jets (11/10). He had to leave the game against Denver (11/17) with a concussion, but he returned the following week to post a game-high seven receptions for 82 yards and a touchdown against Indianapolis (11/24). In the season finale at the N.Y. Giants (12/21), he had a game-high eight receptions for a season-high 124 yards and a touchdown. Glenn paced the Patriots in the play-offs with 12 receptions for 164 yards. He hauled in a postseason career-best 53-yard reception to set up a two-yard Curtis Martin touchdown run in the Divisional play-offs against Pittsburgh (1/5/97) and had a team-high five receptions for 33 yards in the AFC Championship victory over Jacksonville (1/12/97). In Super Bowl XXXI against Green Bay (1/26/97), Glenn recorded four receptions for 62 yards, including a memorable, diving grab of 44 yards to set up a touchdown.

COLLEGE: A three-year letter winner at Ohio State (1993-95), Glenn played in 32 career games with the Buckeyes, making 12 starts, and finished with 79 receptions for 1,677 yards (21.2 avg.) and 17 touchdowns. He also had six career carries for 31 yards and contributed to the return game with 18 kickoff returns for 399 yards (22.2 avg.) and five punt returns for 28 yards (5.6 avg.). He enjoyed a standout season as a junior, his final campaign in Columbus, receiving the Fred Biletnikoff Award, given annually to the country's top wide receiver, and earning All-America recognition. A unanimous All-Big Ten selection, he set school receiving records with 1,411 yards and 17 touchdowns on 64 receptions. Glenn averaged 22.0 yards-per-reception, the highest figure among career Buckeyes with more than 20 catches in a season and started 12 of the Buckeyes 13 games, sitting out the Minnesota contest with a shoulder separation. His top collegiate game came against Pittsburgh when he set a school record with nine receptions for 253 yards (28.1 avg.) and four touchdowns. He also posted 17 rushing yards, 16 yards on punt returns and 29 yards on a kickoff return to rack up 315 total yards in a 54-14 victory over the Panthers. He saw action in 10 contests as a backup to future NFL pass catchers Joey Galloway and Chris Sanders in 1994, hauling in seven passes for 110 yards. Glenn saw limited action in 10 games during 1993 behind Sanders at flanker and recorded eight catches for 156 yards (19.5 avg.). After redshirting in 1992 as a walk-on – despite scholarship offers from other schools – Glenn earned a scholarship in spring drills.

PERSONAL: Terry Tyree Glenn was born in Columbus, Ohio, and later became a three-year letter winner as a wide receiver and cornerback at Brookhaven High School in Columbus. He served as team co-captain as a senior, finishing with 14 receptions for 416 yards (29.7 avg.) and four touchdowns and earning second-team all-district honors in the process. He also starred as a kick returner, helping the team advance to the playoffs his junior and senior years. Glenn also lettered three years in basketball and track, plus two years in tennis. He grew up admiring Buckeyes football, selling sodas at Ohio State football games as a youth. Raised by Charles and Mary Henley during his teenage years (they served as legal guardians), the Henley's son, June, was drafted by the Kansas City Chiefs in 1997 after playing running back collegiately at Kansas. In Green Bay, Glenn was active with the local D.A.R.E. program, as well as taping a public service announcement for the American Red Cross. He also participated in the Brett Favre Celebrity Softball Game in June of 2002. While in New England, Glenn was active in a Thanksgiving "Adopt a Family" program. Since becoming a Dallas Cowboy, Glenn has made two Christmas surprise gift donations to the children at Texas Scottish Rite Hospital to enjoy during their hospital stay during the holidays. He majored in history while at Ohio State. Glenn has a son, Terry Jr. (5/4/96), and a daughter, Natalie (9/10/02).

COWBOYS

COLLEGE: After finishing his collegiate career at the top of LSU's record books for punt returns for touchdowns (four) and second in punt return yards (1,064), Skyler Green was drafted by Dallas in the fourth round (125th overall) of the 2006 NFL Draft as a return specialist. Green, a dynamic kick and punt returner, reached the end zone three different ways in his career with LSU, with nine receiving scores, four punt returns and one rushing while amassing 3,243 career all-purpose yards.

2005: Following an impressive senior season, Green was named the SEC Special Teams Player of the Year and ranked third in the SEC in punt return yards with a 13.3-yard average. He was also selected first-team All-America by Rivals.com and third-team All-America by the Associated Press. He finished the year with 32 receptions for 268 yards and 16 rushes for 126 yards. He also handled kickoff return duties for the Tigers, returning 18 kicks for 355 yards (19.7 yards-per-return). Green played in 13 games and logged four starts. In the season-opener against Arizona State, Green posted a career-long 41-yard run while catching three passes for 34 yards. Against Tennessee, he returned five punts for 90 yards and two kickoffs for 47 yards. Green earned SEC Special Teams Player of the Week at Mississippi State after returning five punts for 78 yards, including a 37-yarder that set-up a touchdown while also leading the team with nine catches for a team-high 63 yards. Against Auburn, Green led the squad with five receptions for 27 yards while returning a punt 66 yards for a touchdown to give him the school record for career punt returns (four). He had two kickoff returns for 62 yards including a 40-yader against Arkansas. Green closed out his collegiate career in LSU's 40-3 win over Miami in the Chick-fil-A Peach Bowl. He returned both punts and kicks against the Hurricanes, played a handful of snaps at quarterback and his usual position of wide receiver, finishing with 15 rushing yards and 46 punt return yards.

2004: As a junior, Green played in 10 games with four starts for the Tigers. He suffered a high ankle sprain in LSU's second scrimmage of fall camp and then re-injured the ankle in the season-opener against Oregon State and played most of the season with the nagging injury, but still managed to catch 24 passes for 219 yards and three touchdowns. As a punt returner, he ranked fourth in the SEC with 9.7 yards-per-punt return and finished the season with 25 punt returns for 243 yards and one score. Green also added 11 kickoff returns for 249 yards. In the season opener against Oregon State, he had one receiving score on a 16-yard pass from JaMarcus Russell. Green added five catches for 44 yards at Florida before hauling in six passes for 72 yards against Troy. He returned a punt 65 yards for a touchdown against Vanderbilt, the third punt return for a touchdown of his career, while averaging 22.5 yards on four returns. In the Tigers loss to Iowa in the Capital One Bowl, Green, caught six passes for 59 yards and two touchdowns. His first touchdown came on a 22-yard grab midway through the fourth quarter to pull LSU to within 24-19 while his second was good for the go-ahead score with 0:46 seconds left on a three-yard reception from Russell.

nation's most dangerous kick returners in 2003 and was a first-team All-America selection as a return specialist by both ESPN.com and SI.com. He led the nation in punt returns with an 18.5 average on 25 returns. In all, he had 462 punt return yards, which included an 80-yard touchdown return against Florida and a 62-yard touchdown return against Arizona – the first punt return for a touchdown of his career. His 436 punt return yards ranked as the fifth-highest single-season total in school history. He was just as dangerous from his receiver position, ranking third on the team with 48 catches for 519 yards and five touchdowns, and he had at least two receptions in every game in 2003. Green hauled in two touchdown receptions against Western Illinois and caught the game-winning touchdown pass on a 34-yard toss from Matt Mauck with just over one minute remaining in the fourth quarter for a 17-10 win over Georgia. He recorded a team-high nine catches for 103 yards against Louisiana Tech. Green scored LSU's first touchdown on a 24-yard run against Oklahoma in the national championship game.

2002: He played in seven games as a freshman posting seven catches for 123 yards and a touchdown. He was forced into action when wide receiver Devery Henderson went down with a broken arm against Ole Miss and made an immediate impact for the Tigers. Green caught his first career pass in the second half of the Ole Miss game that helped set up LSU's game-winning touchdown late in the fourth quarter. He followed the Ole Miss game with three catches for 92 yards and a score against Arkansas – taking a screen pass 67-yards for a first quarter touchdown – and also rushed twice for 17 yards against the Razorbacks. He capped his freshman season with three catches for 24 yards against Texas in the Cotton Bowl.

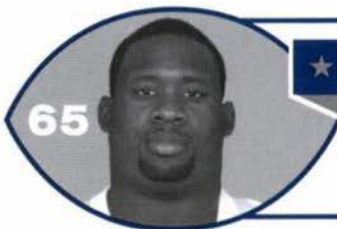

PERSONAL: Green played high school ball at Higgins High School in Harvey, La., where he rushed for 2,174 yards on 194 carries as a senior quarterback. In the Class 5A playoffs, Green rushed for 224 yards and threw for 124 yards in a first round loss to Catholic High School. He is the cousin of former LSU defensive line standouts and current NFL players Jarvis Green (New England Patriots) and Howard Green (New Orleans Saints).

COWBOYS

PRO: After an outstanding collegiate career allowed Andre Gurode (pronounced ger-ODD) to be selected by Dallas in the second round of the 2002 NFL Draft, the former Colorado Buffalo went on to start 42 of his first 44 NFL games. He has spent much of that time moving between the center and guard positions, and it is that experience and versatility that has made him a valuable piece of the offensive line depth chart. Possessing size, power and solid athletic ability, Gurode made six starts at center as a rookie in 2002 and 39 starts at right guard over the last 57 games, including postseason. His 42 regular season starts – between 2002 and 2004 – were the second most for any Dallas offensive lineman over that span. As the 37th overall selection in the 2002 NFL Draft, Gurode was the highest offensive lineman taken by Dallas since 1981 (Howard Richards – 25th overall). Gurode is expected to figure in the mix at either guard or center in 2006.

2005: Gurode spent the majority of his playing time in a rotation with starting center Al Johnson for most of the 2005 season before an injury to Marco Rivera pushed him into the starting lineup at right guard for the final two games of the season. In the season-opening win at San Diego (9/11), Gurode saw action at center in the third and early fourth quarter, and he was in the lineup for the Cowboys third quarter touchdown drive. In the following week's loss to Washington (9/19), he again took over at center in the third quarter for Johnson on a couple of possessions. The offensive line did not allow a sack in 36 pass plays on the night, marking the first time Dallas shut out an opposing defense in the sack category since Dec. 8, 2002 against San Francisco. While in the line rotation at center in the win at San Francisco (9/25), Gurode contributed to a line performance that rolled up 443 yards of total offense. Quarterback Drew Bledsoe was given the time to throw for 363 yards – the eighth best performance in club history. In the following week's loss at Oakland (10/2), Gurode took over at center to start the second quarter and stayed in the lineup until the final drive of the game. Gurode was on the field for all three Dallas scoring drives against the Raiders. In the last-minute loss at Seattle (10/23), he saw action on a third of the snaps in the center rotation with Johnson as the running game racked up 164 yards. Gurode's game action in the next four games was limited to special teams work only. In the loss at the N.Y. Giants (12/4), he replaced Johnson (who was coming off knee surgery 10 days earlier) at center with 2:00 remaining in the first half and stayed in for the remainder of the game. He again rotated with Johnson in the win over Kansas City (12/11) as the line allowed Bledsoe time to throw for 332 yards and three touchdowns while the running game picked up 129 yards and a score. The 445 yards of total offense against the Chiefs was the second-best output of the season. In the loss at Washington

(12/18), Gurode replaced Rivera at right guard on the final drive after Rivera suffered a strained neck. Gurode then drew the starting assignment, in place of Rivera, at Carolina (12/24), marking his first starting call of the season. He responded by helping Julius Jones run for 194 yards, the fourth best performance in club history. The Dallas offense racked up 22 first downs, 394 total yards and 24 points in the come-from-behind win over the Panthers. In the season ending loss against St. Louis (1/1/06), he again started at right guard in place of the injured Rivera.

2004: Gurode started 13 of the 14 games he played at right guard, helping Vinny Testaverde throw for the then third most yards in club history (3,532). Gurode's season got off to a difficult start as he suffered a sprained left knee in the third quarter of the opener at Minnesota (9/12). Although he did not return after the injury, he helped the Dallas offense rack up 423 yards of total offense, the team's best showing since Jan. 2, 2000 (437 total yards). The sprained knee kept Gurode out of action the following two weeks. He returned to the starting lineup in the home loss to the N.Y. Giants (10/10) and helped the running game rack up 166 yards on the day (5.5 yards-per-carry). In the loss at Green Bay (10/24), the line allowed just two sacks in 38 pass plays as Testaverde threw for 308 yards, his club-record tying third 300-yard passing game of the season. In the victory over Detroit (10/31), the line allowed Eddie George to rush for 99 yards on the day, his top rushing total of the season. Also against the Lions, Testaverde completed 79.2% of his passes (19-of-24) for 235 yards and was sacked just once in 25 pass plays. The Lions entered the game with the NFL's top ranked defensive unit in sacks-per-pass play. In the Monday night loss to Philadelphia (11/15), Gurode's blocking allowed Testaverde to complete 21-of-30 passes for 254 yards while allowing just one sack to the third ranked defense in the NFL in sacks-per-pass play. In the Thanksgiving Day win over Chicago (11/25), Gurode suffered a sprained left knee on the second play of the game and did not return. He returned to the lineup in the thrilling Monday night win at Seattle (12/6), helping to open holes for Jones to run for 198 yards – the third best rushing day in club history and the second best ever by a Dallas rookie. In the narrow loss at Philadelphia (12/19), Gurode started at right guard but then gave way to Matt Lehr in the second quarter, returning to the lineup late in the first half. In the season finale at the N.Y. Giants, (1/2/05), he saw limited action on special teams as Ben Noll started in his right guard spot.

2003: After making the switch from center to guard midway through the 2002 season, Gurode remained the Cowboys starting right guard throughout his sophomore season. In the season opener against Atlanta (9/7), he was part of a line that guided Dallas to 149 rushing yards while allowing Quincy Carter time to throw for 268 yards as the club rolled up 403 total yards. He was part of a line at the N.Y. Giants (9/15) that was instrumental in Carter having time to throw for a career-high 321 yards in the Cowboys come-from-behind, overtime victory. The line opened holes for Dallas to rush for 202 yards on 41 carries (4.9 avg.) at the N.Y. Jets (9/28). Against Arizona (10/5), Gurode – despite suffering a sprained ankle in the third quarter – helped the Cowboys pick up 365 total yards while controlling the clock for 36:28. The offensive line allowed just one sack in 28 pass plays at Detroit (10/19) while opening holes for Dallas backs to rush for 134 yards. The Cowboys also controlled the clock for 37:21 against the Lions. Against Washington (11/2), the Dallas offense racked up 400 yards of total offense, including 208 on the ground, while allowing only one sack in 34 pass plays. Gurode and the line allowed just one sack in 34 pass plays against Buffalo (11/9) and one sack in 37 pass plays at New England (11/16). The Cowboys offensive line allowed one sack for 0 yards against Carolina (11/23), and Gurode helped hold defensive tackle Kris Jenkins without a tackle. Gurode did not start and saw limited special teams action at Philadelphia (12/7) but returned to his right guard spot at Washington (12/14) and was instrumental in helping lead Troy Hambrick to 189 rushing yards – the fourth best single-game rushing performance in club history – despite suffering a strained groin late in the third quarter. Against the N.Y. Giants (12/21), he helped Dallas rush for 104 yards, the 10th 100-yard day of the season, despite missing some third and fourth quarter action after suffering cramps. Gurode's pass blocking in the regular season finale at New Orleans (12/28) allowed Carter to throw a career-high 47 passes for 290 yards.

2002: As the first Cowboys rookie to ever start the season at center, Gurode also became the first rookie starter at the center position since Mark Stepnoski in 1989. In his NFL debut at Houston (9/8), Gurode was part of a Dallas line that led the way to 155 rushing yards. Despite numerous changes and injuries on the offensive line at St. Louis (9/29), Gurode was a constant force for a unit that allowed just two sacks in 38 pass plays and helped Dallas rush for 122 yards on 27 carries (4.5 avg.). He missed the next two games – against the N.Y. Giants (10/6) and Carolina (10/13) – after suffering a sprained great toe on his left foot in practice on Oct. 2. He returned to the lineup at Arizona (10/20) and helped Dallas rush for 148 yards. He then became part of history against Seattle (10/27) as the starting center on the Dallas line that helped Emmitt Smith eclipse Walter Payton as the NFL's all-time leading rusher. Smith earned his first 100-yard rushing day of the season against the Seahawks with 109 yards. Gurode made the move to the starting right guard spot at Detroit (11/3). Against Jacksonville (11/24), the line provided time for Chad Hutchinson to throw for 301 yards and opened holes for the running game to rush for 118 yards. The 405 net yards was a season-high. Gurode personally helped limit Jaguars defensive tackles John Henderson and Marcus Stroud to two tackles and no sacks on the day. In the Thanksgiving Day win over Washington (11/28), Gurode suffered a strained groin on the extra point following the first Dallas touchdown and missed the rest of the game. Despite suffering a bruised jaw in the second quarter against San Francisco (12/8), he returned to action and helped hold the 49ers without a sack in 28 pass plays.

COLLEGE: Gurode allowed just 7.5 sacks in 2,653 plays over three-plus years as a starter for the Buffaloes. He started his first two and a half seasons at center for Colorado before moving to guard in the middle of his junior year. As a senior, Gurode earned All-America honors after starting every game at right guard, and he was also a unanimous All-Big 12 selection. As a junior, Gurode earned All-Big 12 honors and the John Mack Award, as selected by the coaches for being CU's most outstanding offensive player. Gurode started the first six games of the year at center and the final five games at guard. As a sophomore, he earned honorable mention All-Big 12 honors while helping the Buffaloes to a 7-5 record and a win over Boston College in the Insight.com Bowl. He was the starter all season at center, playing the second-most snaps from scrimmage on the team. As a freshman, he tore cartilage in his right knee the second week of the season that forced him to miss the next six games. Gurode returned to start the final three regular season games and the 51-43 win over Oregon in the Aloha Bowl.

PERSONAL: As a senior at North Shore High School in Houston, Texas, Gurode was a PrepStar and SuperPrep All-America, while USA Today selected him as an honorable mention All-America. COWBOYS

PRO: With the importance of a powerful blocking tight end in the Cowboys offense, Ryan Hannam was seen as a critical offseason acquisition to replace the departed Dan Campbell. Hannam was an integral part of a Seattle Seahawks offense that opened holes for 2005 NFL MVP Shaun Alexander, who has run for 3,576 yards and 43 touchdowns over the last two seasons. Alexander topped the 1,000-yard rushing mark and scored 14-or-more touchdowns in each of Hannam's four seasons in Seattle. In Dallas he will bring that same kind of blocking prowess to an offense that utilizes two tight ends a considerable amount of the time. Hannam was originally selected in the fifth-round (169th overall) by the Seahawks in the 2002 NFL Draft.

2005: Hannam started five of 16 regular season games when the Seahawks opened in two-tight end sets. Along the way he set a career-high with 13 receptions totaling 89 yards and a touchdown. He also saw action in all three playoff games as Seattle marched to Super Bowl XL, recording four postseason receptions for 20 yards. His run blocking was a key component of NFL MVP Alexander's league-high 1,880 rushing yards and NFL record 27 rushing touchdowns. Hannam recorded his first career start when Seattle opened with a two-tight end set against Arizona (9/25) and recorded a five-yard reception – his first catch of the year. At Washington (10/2), he again was in the starting lineup and responded with a career-high three receptions for 23 yards, including a season-long of 20 yards. The following week he added two more catches for 12 yards at St. Louis (10/9). Hannam started in the rain against Dallas (10/23) and caught two passes for six yards, including his first touchdown of the season. His one-yard scoring catch, the second of his career, tied the game at 10 with 0:40 remaining. He added a 12-yard catch against San Francisco (12/11) and a nine-yard grab in the Seahawks win against Indianapolis (12/24). Hannam had receptions in all three playoff games for Seattle, including a postseason high two grabs for 12 yards in Super Bowl XL against Pittsburgh (2/5/06). He also threw a key block in the end zone on Matt Hasselbeck's six-yard touchdown run against Washington (1/14/06).

2004: Hannam saw action in all 16 games mostly on special teams the first half of the season before hauling in eight catches for 110 yards later in the season. He totaled two receptions for 44 yards at Minnesota (12/12) with a career-long 36-yard reception that helped set up a Seahawks touchdown. Against Miami (11/21) he recorded his first career punt return, good for six yards. He also caught two passes in the season finale versus Atlanta (1/2/05). He saw time at tight end and on special teams in the postseason against St. Louis (1/8/05).

2003: Hannam saw action in five games before being placed on injured reserve with a torn ACL in his right knee. He was inactive in the opener against New Orleans (9/7). Against San Francisco (10/12) he returned his first career kickoff 17 yards. He injured his knee against Chicago (10/19) and was inactive at Cincinnati (10/26) before landing on injured reserve on Oct. 31.

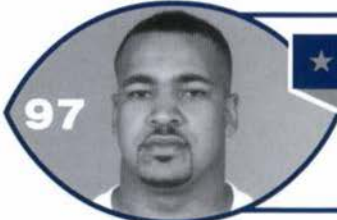

2002: As a rookie, Hannam saw action in 15 games on special teams and worked into the lineup at tight end in eight contests. He finished the year with six special teams tackles. His only reception of the season was a 16-yard touchdown catch at Arizona (11/10). He was inactive with the flu at Dallas (10/27).

COLLEGE: A three-year starter at Northern Iowa, Hannam collected 86 catches for 957 yards and seven touchdowns in 47 career games. He was named All-Gateway Conference after finishing second on the team with a career-high 43 receptions for 404 yards as a senior. He closed his career with four catches for 22 yards against Montana in the Division I-AA Championship Game. As a junior, Hannam earned All-Gateway Conference honorable mention and was an All-Academic pick. He first earned honorable mention academic all-conference as a sophomore when he was the team's fifth-leading receiver with 23 catches for 253 yards and five touchdowns.

PERSONAL: Hannam earned four letters in football, baseball, and track, and three in basketball at St. Ansgar, Iowa, High School. He was a three-time all-district pick on the defensive line and a National Honor Society Member.

NFL: Rookie ★ Cowboys: Rookie

COLLEGE: With the thought of bolstering their defensive front with big-bodied trench fighters, the Cowboys selected Jason Hatcher in the third round (92nd overall) of the 2006 NFL Draft. Hatcher is a raw talent that has displayed the innate ability to become a physical end in the 3-4 scheme, despite playing end for just over two seasons – he started his collegiate career at tight end. In addition to his physical ability and speed, Hatcher has displayed the maturity of a seasoned veteran. He finished his career at Grambling with 111 tackles, 31.5 stops behind the line of scrimmage and 18.5 sacks. He also added three passes defended, 14 quarterback pressures and blocked three kicks.

2005: Hatcher had an impressive senior season, helping lead the Tigers to a 10-1 record while racking up 65 tackles – with a season-high eight stops coming in three different contests. In the season opener against Alabama A&M, he posted seven stops, four tackles for losses and a season-high three sacks. At Washington State, he recorded five tackles, two tackles for a loss and one pass defended. He tallied five tackles and another tackle for a loss and sack against Mississippi Valley State and then added six more stops and one tackle behind the line of scrimmage at Arkansas-Pine Bluff. He notched a season-high eight tackles and one tackle for a loss along with recovering a fumble at Jackson State. He scooped up another fumble against Texas Southern while registering five tackles. At Alabama State, he matched his season-high eight stops and recorded two tackles behind the line and one sack along with blocking a kick. Against Concordia, he posted four tackles and 1.5 tackles for a loss and 1.5 sacks. At Southern, he added eight more stops and three tackles behind the line and two sacks before closing out the season at Alcorn State with six stops, 1.5 tackles for a loss and one sack.

2004: As a junior, Hatcher played his first full season at defensive end and finished the year with 33 tackles, 10 stops behind the line of scrimmage and five sacks. Hatcher also contributed two blocked kicks and broke up one pass. Against Prairie View A&M, he had his best game of the year, recording eight stops, two tackles for a loss and a sack. Against Alcorn State, he had five tackles to go along with a sack before posting another five stops, including one for a loss against Alabama A&M. He had five more tackles, two stops behind the line and one sack against Mississippi Valley State.

2003: Hatcher started his sophomore year at tight end before making the switch to the defensive side of the ball. He earned the starting nod at tight end and caught one pass for 14 yards and a two-point conversion before moving to defensive end midway through the year. He finished the season with 13 tackles, three sacks and broke up one pass while eventually taking over the starting role.

2002: Hatcher was looking to make his collegiate debut but was granted a medical redshirt after rupturing the ACL in his right knee.

2001: Hatcher was ineligible as a true freshman due to NCAA academic requirements.

PERSONAL: Jason Dewayne Hatcher attended Jena, La., High School, where he lettered in both football and basketball. As a senior, he helped lead his team to a 10-3 record and earned All-State honors while catching 28 passes for 1,028 yards as a tight end. Against Belle Chase, he had his best game of his prep career, catching six passes for 211 yards. Hatcher was a physical education major at Grambling with hopes of becoming a head football coach. Hatcher and his wife, Natasha, have a son, DiCarlos (12/17/99) and a daughter, Tamia (5/14/03).

COWBOYS

PRO: A key signing in the opening hours of free agency in 2005, Anthony Henry spent the first eight games of last season displaying the play-making ability that made the Cowboys front office so eager to bring him aboard. Ranked among the leaders in tackles, interceptions and passes defended through eight games, Henry was a difference maker on the Cowboys defense. A serious groin injury at the end of October triggered physical problems – including an abdominal strain – that forced Henry to play sporadically for the remainder of the year. Henry and fellow corner Terence Newman form one of the most talented and productive starting cornerback duos in the NFL. With the free agency addition of veteran Aaron Glenn – who provided a solid replacement for Henry after his struggles with injuries began – the Cowboys will again enter the upcoming season with three proven veterans who can perform at a Pro Bowl level. Henry brings size, toughness and a physical style of play to the Dallas secondary which is rapidly emerging as one of the best young defensive backfields in the NFL. Henry signed with Dallas on March 3, 2005 after four very productive seasons with the Cleveland Browns. He was a three-year starter for the Browns after being drafted in the fourth round (97th overall) in the 2001 NFL Draft. As a rookie, Henry ranked first in the AFC and tied for first in the NFL with a club record-tying 10 interceptions. In the last 21 years (1985-2005) the NFL has had players record at least 10 interceptions in a single season just seven times. Those players are Ronnie Lott (10 for S.F. in 1986), Scott Case (10 for Atlanta in 1988), Mark Carrier (10 for Chicago in 1990), Henry (10 for Cleveland in 2001), Ronde Barber (10 for T.B. in 2001), Ty Law (10 for the Jets in 2005) and Deltha O'Neal (10 for Cincinnati in 2005). Henry became the first player in Browns history to have three interceptions in two different games in the same season. His 97-yard interception return for a touchdown against Jacksonville on Dec. 16, 2001 tied a franchise record. He followed that stellar rookie season with three years in the starting lineup for a Browns defense that finished in the top 10 in the NFL in pass defense in both 2003 and 2004.

2005: Henry's initial contributions to the Cowboys defense made a very visible and positive impact on the team's overall production through the first half of the season. Before a right groin injury felled him in the closing moments of a Week Eight win over Arizona, Henry was making a solid case for Pro Bowl recognition as the starting right corner on a 5-3 Cowboys team. At the time of his injury, he was tied for the team lead in tackles with 42, 39 of which were solo. He was also the team leader in interceptions with three, while topping the Dallas charts in pass break-ups with 11. The right groin injury eventually led to a lower abdominal strain and the combination of the two conditions kept Henry on the bench or fighting to return to the action for the second half of the season. In his debut performance as a Dallas Cowboy, Henry surfaced as a playmaker and a difference maker. In the Cowboys season opening win at San Diego (9/11), Henry turned in single-game career-highs for tackles (13) and passes defended (five), while also producing a second quarter interception that led directly to a Dallas touchdown drive. One of his deflected passes came on a first-and-goal situation with the Chargers looking to score the game-winning touchdown in the final minute of play. The interception was the 18th of Henry's career. In the Monday night loss to Washington (9/19), he was second on the team with six tackles and also broke up a pass. In the Cowboys key win over division rival Philadelphia (10/9), Henry recorded three tackles to lead a Dallas secondary that gave up just 110 net passing yards. During the following week's 16-13 overtime win over the Giants (10/16), Henry was a one-man wrecking machine and earned NFC Defensive Player of the Week honors, leading the team with six tackles and two passes defended. Henry's third quarter interception of Eli Manning ended a Giants scoring threat at the Dallas one-yard line. On the next drive, he forced a Plaxico Burress fumble that was recovered by Jason Ferguson. Henry helped limit the Giants to a one-of-11 day on third down conversions and their lowest scoring output of the season. In the following week's last-minute loss at Seattle (10/23), he tied for third on the team with five tackles while also breaking up two passes. He helped limit the NFL's top ranked offense entering the game to 289 total yards, 118 below their season average to date, and one touchdown. In the win over Arizona (10/30), he tied for second on the team with seven tackles and also picked off his third pass of the season – returning it 58 yards for a touchdown. That touchdown marked the first defensive score by the Cowboys since Oct. 19, 2003. It was also his second career interception return for a score. Henry's effort helped limit the Cardinals to 142 net passing yards on the day and a 10.1 yard-per-catch average. Unfortunately, Henry's performance was overshadowed by the right groin injury he suffered on the final series of the game. The injury held him out of the Monday night win at Philadelphia (11/14). He worked his way back onto the field against Detroit (11/20) and had four tackles while operating primarily in a limited role in the nickel package. Glenn picked up the starting call at right corner against the Lions as Detroit was held to 169 passing yards. The continued complications of the groin and abdominal ailments kept Henry off the field for the next two games against Denver (11/24) and at the N.Y. Giants (12/4). He returned to the starting lineup for the come-from-behind win over Kansas City (12/11) and had four tackles while breaking up one pass. In the loss at Washington (12/18), he started but was limited due to the groin strain, so he rotated with Glenn and Jacques Reeves. While in the game, Henry helped limit the Redskins wide receivers to two catches for the day. The effects of the ongoing injury situation kept Henry from playing at Carolina (12/24). In the season ending loss to St. Louis (1/1/06), he didn't start but saw action in the nickel after Reeves suffered an ankle injury. He helped limit the Rams to 147 net passing yards, including just five catches for 48 yards total by Tory Holt and Isaac Bruce. After recording 42 tackles through the first eight games of the year, Henry finished the season ranked seventh on the Dallas defense in tackles with 50. He tied for second on the team with three interceptions and was second on the club in passes defended with 12.

2004: Henry started 14-of-15 games for the Browns and led the team with four interceptions and 11 passes defended. His career-high 85 tackles ranked fourth on the team, and twice during the season he matched his career-high with eight tackles in a game (at Baltimore 11/7 and at Cincinnati 11/28). His overall play helped the Browns pass defense allow just 181.3 passing yards-per-game, ranking fourth in the AFC and fifth in the NFL. He recorded his first interception of the season in the opener against Baltimore (9/12), adding four tackles as well. He did not start the game because the Browns opened with four linebackers. Early in the fourth quarter, he intercepted a pass from Ravens quarterback Kyle Boller intended for Kevin Johnson at the Cleveland seven-yard line to thwart a potential Baltimore scoring opportunity. The following week at Dallas (9/19), he started at left cornerback, recording seven tackles and his second interception of the young season. He picked off a Vinny Testaverde pass intended for Terry Glenn and returned the theft 51 yards to the Dallas 22-yard line. Late in the game he recovered an onside kick to give the Browns one last chance in a 19-12 loss. After missing the N.Y. Giants (9/26) game with vertigo, Henry returned to action and tied for second on the club with seven tackles against Washington (10/3). He was part of a defensive unit that limited the Redskins to 265 net yards of offense and held Clinton Portis to 58 yards on 20 carries (2.9 avg.). Henry tied for third on the team with seven tackles at Pittsburgh (10/10). He recorded his third interception of the year with a third quarter pick of Carson Palmer at the Browns nine-yard line against Cincinnati (10/17). For the game, the Bengals were limited to 189 net yards of offense, including just 58 rushing yards. He matched a career-high with eight tackles at Baltimore (11/7) as the Browns defense limited Jamal Lewis to 81 rushing yards on 22 carries (3.7 avg.) and the Ravens to 240 yards of total offense. After a seven-tackle showing against Pittsburgh (11/14), Henry was part of a defensive effort that limited the N.Y. Jets (11/21) to 235 net yards of offense, including only 78 net yards passing. He matched his career-high for tackles with eight at Cincinnati (11/28), while also adding his fourth interception of the season on a first quarter pass from Carson Palmer intended for Chad Johnson at the Cincinnati 39-yard line. He returned the interception 32 yards to the Bengals seven-yard line, and on the next play, Kelly Holcomb connected with Steve Heiden on a seven-yard touchdown pass for a 7-0 lead. His five-tackle showing at Miami (12/26) was part of a defensive effort that limited the Dolphins to 280 net yards of offense. In the season finale, the Browns defense allowed just 102 net passing yards at Houston (1/2/05).

2003: Henry emerged in his third season as the starting left corner and appeared in 14 games, including 13 starts, with 56 tackles, one interception for 19 yards and a team-high 12 passes defended. Teamed with right corner Daylon McCutcheon, the duo consistently contained many of the NFL's top wide receivers, and the Browns passing defense allowed only 177.9 passing yards-per-game to rank fifth in the AFC and seventh in the NFL in pass defense. In the season opener against Indianapolis (9/7), Henry was part of a defensive effort that limited the Colts to 271 yards of total offense, including only 67 net yards rushing. The following week, he recorded seven tackles at Baltimore (9/14). He then established a career-high with eight tackles at San Francisco (9/21), along with his only interception of the season, in the Browns 13-12 road victory. At Pittsburgh (10/5), Henry and McCutcheon teamed up to limit the Steelers receiving duo of Hines Ward and Plaxico Burress to a combined three receptions for 74 yards and was part of a defensive effort that forced three turnovers (two interceptions and one fumble), recorded three sacks and limited the Steelers to 208 net yards of offense, including 60 net yards rushing. His six tackles and stellar play against Oakland (10/12) helped limit Jerry Rice and Tim Brown to a combined four catches for 33 yards. As a unit, the Browns allowed Oakland just 164 passing yards on the day. The following week against San Diego (10/19), he was directly responsible for helping hold Tim Dwight and David Boston to a combined three receptions for 27 yards. Henry logged five tackles at New England (10/26) and at Kansas City (11/9). Against Arizona (11/16), Henry and the Browns defense allowed just 187 total yards of offense – including only 41 rushing yards – and forced four turnovers in a 44-6 win. Against Pittsburgh (11/23), the Browns secondary allowed just 59 passing yards. Against St. Louis (12/8) and their high-powered passing attack, Henry recorded five tackles and helped hold the Rams receiving duo of Tory Holt (4-31) and Isaac Bruce (3-31) to a combined seven receptions for 62 yards. Henry was limited to playing corner in nickel defensive package due to a nagging knee injury at Denver (12/14), and then he was inactive the final two weeks of the season because of continued pain in the knee.

2002: In his second season in Cleveland, Henry appeared in all 16 regular season games, seeing work in the nickel and dime defensive packages as well as filling in for injured teammates. He started 10 games on the year, six at right corner filling in for the injured McCutcheon, two at left corner for the injured Corey Fuller and two when the Browns defense opened in the nickel defensive package. He finished the season with 69 tackles and led the club with 12 passes defended. He also had two interceptions and two forced fumbles. As a standout special teams performer, Henry recorded 11 special teams tackles and blocked a field goal during the season. He recorded six tackles, forced a fumble and led the club with three special teams tackles at Pittsburgh (9/29). The following week he earned his first start of the season, replacing the injured Fuller (hamstring) against Baltimore (10/6) and recorded six tackles. Still in the starting lineup a week later at Tampa Bay (10/13), Henry tied for the team lead with a season-high seven tackles and also made a key play on special teams as he partially deflected a 45-yard field goal attempt by Martin Gramatica that was also deflected by Alvin McKinley. He replaced McCutcheon at right cornerback against Houston (10/20) and recorded six tackles while leading the team with four special teams stops. He was second on the club when he matched his season-high of seven tackles at the N.Y. Jets (10/27) while also forcing a fumble. Still replacing McCutcheon at right cornerback, Henry logged six tackles against Pittsburgh (11/3). Henry recorded two interceptions at New Orleans (11/24). He then finished the season in-and-out of the starting lineup for McCutcheon, recording five tackles against Carolina (12/1) and six tackles at Baltimore (12/22). In the AFC Wild Card Game at Pittsburgh (1/5/03), he saw action as a reserve in the nickel package and recorded three tackles while leading the club with three passes defended.

2001: Henry had a breakout year as a fourth-round draft choice, ranking first in the AFC and tied for first in the NFL with 10 interceptions. In doing so, he became the first NFL rookie to lead the league in interceptions since 1995 (safety Orlando Thomas, Minnesota, nine). Henry saw action in 16 regular-season games with two starts and totaled 44 tackles, 10 interceptions for 177 yards and ranked second on the club with 10 passes defended. He became the first player in club history to have three interceptions in two different games in the same season (vs. Detroit on Sept. 23 and at Baltimore on Nov. 18), and his 10 interceptions on the season tied a club record (10, Thom Darden, 1978) and set a club rookie mark (eight, Bobby Franklin, 1960). He also added 10 tackles as a key contributor on special teams. Henry saw action at corner in the nickel package in his NFL debut against Seattle (9/9). In the Browns 24-14 win over Detroit (9/23) in just his second NFL game, Henry tied the club's rookie record with three interceptions (Bobby Franklin, 12/11/60 vs. Chicago), returning the three thefts for 58 yards. He recorded five tackles and broke up a pass at Cincinnati (10/14). Against Baltimore (10/21), Henry recorded a season-high seven tackles and added his fourth interception of the season, intercepting Elvis Grbac and returning it 22 yards in a 24-14 win. He matched his season-high with seven tackles at Chicago (11/4). With three interceptions and two tackles at Baltimore (11/18), Henry garnered AFC Defensive Player of the Week honors. It was the second time in 2001 he had recorded three picks in the same game, the first time that had been accomplished in the NFL in the same season since Cincinnati's David Fulcher in 1989 and the first NFL rookie to accomplish the feat since Bobby Ply of the 1962 Dallas Texans. In the Browns 18-0 shutout of Cincinnati (11/25), Henry logged two tackles. When the Browns opened in their nickel defensive package at New England (12/9), Henry earned his first NFL start and responded with six tackles. The following week he earned a start at right cornerback against Jacksonville (12/16) and matched his season-high with seven tackles, while also adding two interceptions. Late in the third quarter, he recorded a 97-yard interception return for a touchdown on a pass from Mark Brunel, tying a franchise record for the longest interception return in club history (Najee Mustafa, vs. Miami, Oct. 10, 1993). In the regular season finale at Pittsburgh (1/6/02), Henry added his 10th interception of the year.

COLLEGE: A four-year starter for South Florida, Henry spent his first three years at free safety before moving to cornerback his senior year. His position coach at USF was former Eagles safety Andre Waters. Henry finished his career with 256 tackles, nine tackles for a loss, six fumble recoveries and 22 passes defended. He also had 10 interceptions for 126 yards in returns, breaking the school career-record. As a senior, he started all year at cornerback, but also saw action at free safety and as a receiver, finishing with 40 tackles and a school season-record tying five interceptions for 88 yards in returns. He also had a team-high eight passes defended and caught one pass for an eight-yard gain. As a junior, he started at free safety and finished fourth on the team with 62 tackles. He also intercepted three passes and recovered two fumbles. As a sophomore, he started at free safety but also saw action as a quarterback for one series against Valparaiso. He ranked third on the team with 79 tackles. As a freshman, he earned second-team All-Independent honors at free safety, recording 73 tackles, two fumble recoveries and two interceptions. He did not play in 1996 under NCAA Proposition 48 rules and still had a year of eligibility in 2000 upon his graduation. In the 2001 NFL Draft, he was one-of-three South Florida players drafted consecutively with the first three picks of the fourth round: guard Kenyatta Jones (New England), Henry and kicker Bill Gramatica (Arizona).

PERSONAL: Anthony Daniel Henry was named Lee County Athlete of the Year and District Player of the Year as a senior at Estero High School in Fort Myers, Fla. In the spring of 2004, he had his jersey, #3, retired by the school, where he lettered as a free safety, cornerback, quarterback and punter. On offense he threw for 821 yards and seven touchdowns while gaining 650 yards with seven scores rushing, and on defense, he totaled 60 tackles with three interceptions in his final year. Henry was also the team MVP in basketball and the District Most Valuable Player in track, setting school records in the high jump (6'6") and triple jump (44'1"). He earned his B.A. in communications from South Florida. PRO: After being out of football for three years, Drew Henson made his return to the gridiron in 2004 as a member of the Dallas Cowboys. The Cowboys acquired Henson from the Houston Texans on March 19, 2004 for a 2005 third round draft choice. He quickly made the transition back to football and spent his rookie season moving between the second and third spots on Dallas's quarterback depth chart - making his NFL debut in the process. Prior to his return to the football field, he spent three years playing full-time baseball in the New York Yankees farm system. Originally a third-round selection of the Yankees in 1998, he turned down a baseball-only contract in order to play football at the University of Michigan while also playing in the Yankees farm system. After three years at Michigan, he signed a baseball-only deal with the Yankees on March 25, 2001. He moved through the New York farm system over the next three years, even being called up to the big league roster twice (2002 and 2003). In February, 2004, he notified the Yankees of his desire to return to football. His NFL rights were held by the Houston Texans, who originally drafted Henson in the sixth round (192nd overall) of the 2003 NFL Draft, but he was soon traded to the Cowboys. With two years of NFL seasoning under his belt, Henson will only improve as he continues to work for more playing time and, ultimately, the Cowboys top quarterback position.

2006: Henson was given the opportunity to play in NFL Europe in the spring and gained valuable experience and a chance to make game time decisions and reactions. After getting the Rhein Fire off to a hot start, a knee injury in Week Seven kept him out of one game. As the starting quarterback for Rhein, Henson finished the NFL season as the league's second rated signal caller (84.2 rating), also finishing second in attempts (203), completions (109) and yards (1,321), while tying for the second most touchdowns (10) and second fewest interceptions (three).

2005: Henson was inactive for all 16 games as the club's third quarterback.

2004: Henson spent his first professional football season bouncing between the second and third quarterback positions, making two appearances under center and completing 10-of-18 passes for 78 yards, a touchdown and an interception. After being acquired from the Texans, Henson completed 21-of-33 passes for 216 yards and two interceptions in preseason action. He then began the season as the Cowboys third quarterback, serving in that capacity for the first six games of the season. He was promoted to the second quarterback spot against Detroit (10/31) and saw his only action against the Lions, at Cincinnati (11/7) and against Philadelphia (11/15) as the holder on PATs and field goals. At Baltimore (11/21), he made his NFL quarterbacking debut when he replaced the injured Vinny Testaverde in the fourth quarter and completed all six of his passes for 47 yards and a score while leading the Cowboys to their only touchdown of the day. Four days later against Chicago (11/25) on Thanksgiving Day, Henson earned his first NFL start in place of the injured Testaverde, becoming the eighth rookie in franchise history to start at quarterback. Henson completed four-of-12 passes for 31 yards and an interception and drove Dallas 62 yards for a touchdown on the Cowboys first possession. Henson was replaced by Testaverde to start the third quarter and did not see any more action. He returned to holding duties at Seattle (12/6) and against New Orleans (12/12) before being inactive as the third quarterback at Philadelphia (12/19) and against Washington (12/26). He returned to the second position on the depth chart for the season finale at the N.Y. Giants (1/2/05) but did not see any action.

BASEBALL: Originally a third-round selection of the New York Yankees in the Major League Baseball Draft in June 1998, Henson was traded to the Cincinnati Reds in July of 2000, but he was re-acquired by the Yankees on March 21, 2001 and signed a long-term, baseball-only contract four days later. Henson spent six years playing third base in the Yankees farm system, the last two-plus seasons at their AAA team in Columbus, Ohio. For his career, he hit .248 in 501 minor league games with 67 home runs and 274 RBI. He made two September appearances (2002 and 2003) with the Yankees, seeing action in eight games and recording one hit in nine at bats. He spent his second full season (2003) with the Yankees AAA affiliate in Columbus and hit .234 with 78 RBI and 14 home runs. He was called up to the major league roster on Sept. 6 and saw action in five games, going one-for-eight and logging his first big league hit (single) along the way. In his first full season in Columbus (2002), he hit .240 with 65 RBI and a team-high 18 home runs. He was selected to play in the 2002 Futures Game in Milwaukee as the starting third baseman. He made his Major League debut Sept. 5 against Detroit, pinch-running for Bernie Williams. The Yankees re-acquired Henson on March 21, 2001 from Cincinnati (along with Michael Coleman in exchange for Wily Mo Pena), and he left Michigan prior to his senior year after signing a six-year, $17 million deal with New York on March 25. He started the season at Class A Tampa but was placed on the disabled list April 15 with a broken left wrist after being hit by a pitch. He was activated June 16 and reported to AA Norwich, where he played in five games before moving to AAA Columbus, where he hit .222 with 11 home runs. In 2000, Henson hit .266 with 49 RBI and nine home runs. He started the season with the Yankees A Tampa affiliate. He then moved up to AA Norwich. He played in the Futures Game in Atlanta, then was traded to the Cincinnati Reds (along with Jackson Melian, Brian Reith and Ed Yarnall in exchange for Denny Neagle and Mike Frank) on July 12. He finished the summer with the Reds AA affiliate in Chattanooga before returning for football practice at Michigan. He spent the entire 1999 season with the Yankees A club in Tampa, batting .280 with 37 RBI and 13 home runs. In his first professional season (1998), he played 10 games for the Gulf Coast League Yankees, hitting .316 (12-for-38).

COLLEGE: He spent three years playing football for the Wolverines – completing 214-of-374 passes for 2,946 yards and 24 touchdowns and setting the school record for lowest career interception percentage (1.87). In his final, junior campaign (2000), Henson earned honorable mention

All-Big Ten honors after completing 146-of-237 passes for 2,146 yards, 18 touchdowns and four interceptions. He led the conference in pass efficiency rating (159.4) and finished second in passing (238.4 yards-per-game). His 159.4 passer rating was the fifth best in school history, and his 18 scoring tosses were fourth most in Michigan history. After missing the first three games following right foot surgery, he returned to the field to start eight of the next nine games, guiding the Wolverines to a 9-3 record, a share of the Big Ten title and a #11 ranking in the final Associated Press poll. He also led Michigan over Auburn in the Florida Citrus Bowl to close out his collegiate campaign, completing 15-of-20 passes for 294 yards and two touchdowns. Henson earned academic All-Big Ten and U-M Athletic Academic Achievement honors as a sophomore while seeing action in 10-of-12 games backing up current New England Patriots and two-time Super Bowl MVP quarterback Tom Brady. The duo guided Michigan to a 10-2 record and a #5 ranking in the final AP poll. Henson completed 47-of-90 passes for 546 yards, three touchdowns and two interceptions while also scoring a rushing touchdown and catching a 23-yard pass. As a freshman, Henson saw action in eight games and completed 21-of-47 passes for 254 yards, three scores and an interception in helping lead the Wolverines to a 10-3 record and a #12 ranking in the final AP poll.

PERSONAL: Drew Daniel Henson graduated from Brighton, Mich., High School in 1998, where he was co-valedictorian, a member of the National Honor Society and a speaker for the D.A.R.E. program. A top all-around athlete, Henson earned all-state honors in baseball, basketball and football. He is second all-time in Michigan high school annals in career passing yards (5,662), career touchdown passes (52) and single-season touchdown passes (26 in 1997). He also owns the state record for touchdown passes in a game with six. He averaged 45.7 yards-per-punt for his prep career. As a senior, he was a Parade All-America at quarterback as well as a USA Today All-America selection at punter. On the diamond, he was named the USA Today Player of the Year and the Baseball America 1998 High School Player of the Year. He was a four-year all-state selection in baseball, and he left Brighton as the national high school record holder in career home runs (70), RBI (290) and runs scored (259). As a pitcher, he struck out 163 hitters in 72 1/3 innings of work as a junior. As a senior, he was 14-1 with a 0.86 ERA and 174 strikeouts in 82 innings. After joining the Cowboys, Henson was introduced to Dallas Cowboys fans at the team's annual NFL Draft Day party, where he spoke to the crowd and signed autographs. He has kept active in the Dallas-Ft. Worth community participating in the Cowboys annual NFL United Way Hometown Huddle serving an early Thanksgiving feast to 300 deserving men and women at The Salvation Army and in the 2005 offseason, participating in the Lymphoma and Leukemia Society fundraising style show. Henson also attended the MDA Muscle Team Bash hosted by former Cowboys fullback and FOX Sports announcer Daryl Johnston and participates in The Salvation Army Angel Tree program – donating Christmas gifts for underprivileged children. Henson was a general studies major at Michigan. Drew's father, Dan, is a former offensive coordinator at Eastern Michigan.

PRO: In 2005, the mantle of leadership and tackle production was passed from the recently retired Dat Nguyen to the rising star of Bradie James. While making a name for himself as a stellar special teams performer in his first three years with Dallas, James stepped into a starting middle linebacker role in the 3-4 scheme and made a visible impact on the overall production of the Cowboys defense in 2005. Possessing size, strength and the ability to bring a big hit to any play, James led Dallas in tackles last season (109 stops) and posted the type of performance that should signal stability and consistency at the inside linebacker spot for the future. While working primarily as a backup to Pro Bowl outside linebacker Dexter Coakley in the 4-3 scheme during his first two NFL seasons, James showed the natural instincts and football savvy that warranted his fourth round (103rd overall) selection. With the switch to the 3-4 in 2005, James figured to be a key figure in one of the NFL's youngest and more promising defenses for many years. A serious and dedicated professional, James will take on a leadership role on the club in 2006.

2005: James enjoyed the type of break-out year in 2005 that fulfills the transformation of moving forward from the ranks of being a solid special teams performer to one of the more productive starting middle linebackers in the NFL. He led the Cowboys in tackles with a career-high 109 stops. He was the team's leading tackler in seven of the 16 regular season games and finished the year third in tackles for losses with four. He also registered the first sacks of his career with 2.5, a figure good enough to be ranked fourth on the club. In the season opener at San Diego (9/11), James recorded five tackles and a quarterback pressure in his first start at inside linebacker in the 3-4 defense. In the following week's Monday night loss to Washington (9/19), he had three tackles and helped hold Clinton Portis to 52 yards on 17 carries. On the two-week west coast swing, he was third on the club in tackles at San Francisco (9/25) with five and led the squad with nine tackles at Oakland (10/2). In the key division win over Philadelphia (10/9), James led the team with five tackles and broke up a pass in the end zone to prevent a score as the Eagles were limited to 129 total yards, including just 19 on the ground – the fourth lowest rushing total in Dallas history. With Nguyen ruled out of the N.Y. Giants game (10/16), James took on the additional responsibilities of calling the defensive signals in the Dallas huddle. He finished the overtime win against the Giants third on the team with four tackles and also broke up a pass intended for Jeremy Shockey. James's effort helped Dallas limit the Giants to a one-for-11 day on third down conversions. In the last-minute loss at Seattle (10/23), he recorded his first career sack with a seven-yard trap of Matt Hasselbeck in the second quarter to end a Seahawks drive. He also tipped a pass that turned into a Terence Newman interception on the game's opening drive. James finished the day with four tackles as the Dallas defense limited the NFL's top ranked offense entering the game to 289 total yards, 118 below their season average, and one touchdown. Shaun Alexander, the NFL leading rusher was limited to 61 yards on 21 carries (2.9 avg.). James had an outstanding day in the win over Arizona (10/30), helping the Dallas defense limit the Cardinals to 213 total yards, including just 71 on the ground. He tied for second on the team with seven tackles, while adding half a sack, a tackle for a loss and a pressure. His half sack (shared with Greg Ellis) ended the Cards opening drive and forced them to settle for a field goal. In the thrilling Monday night win at Philadelphia (11/14), James led the team with a career-high 15 tackles, the highest single-game total of the season by a Dallas defender. He also added a red zone sack in the fourth quarter on a drive that ended in a field goal. On the game's pivotal play, James threw a block on Donovan McNabb that cleared the path for Roy Williams's touchdown return of the McNabb interception that provided the deciding points for Dallas. In the following week's win over Detroit (11/20), James led the team in tackles for the second straight week with eight. He also had a tackle behind the line on a screen pass to Kevin Jones. James's effort against Detroit helped limit the Lions to 227 total yards, including just 57 yards on the ground. On special teams he recorded his second tackle of the season on punt coverage when he hauled down Eddie Drummond for a six-yard loss on his only punt return of the game. At the N.Y. Giants (12/4), he led the team with 10 tackles en route to his second double-figure tackle game of the season. He also had a tackle for a loss as the Giants were held to 150 net passing yards and one offensive touchdown on the day. In the come-from-behind win over Kansas City (12/11), he had five tackles and broke up a pass. In the next week's loss at Washington (12/18), he led the team with 12 tackles, his second best performance of the season and his third double-digit tackle game in six weeks. He was again the team leader in tackles in the Christmas Eve win at Carolina (12/24) with nine, as the Dallas defense limited the Panthers to 71 rushing yards on 24 carries (3.0 avg.). Carolina's longest run of the day was nine yards.

2004: Following his solid rookie campaign in 2003, James used 2004 to showcase his abilities on the defensive side of the ball while continuing his impressive special teams play. Splitting time at weakside linebacker with Coakley, James finished the year with 38 defensive tackles, two pressures and a pass deflection. He also posted a career- and team-high 24 special teams stops – the most by a Cowboy since Charlie Williams tallied 26 in 1997 – while helping Dallas's kickoff coverage unit limit opponents to a league-low 17.5 yards-per-return. Splitting time with Coakley in the season opener at Minnesota (9/12), James finished second on the team with a season-high eight tackles. The following week against Cleveland (9/19), he tallied three special teams tackles as the Browns averaged 7.0 yards on three kickoff returns. He recorded three tackles and tied for the team lead with two special teams stops at Washington (9/27). He earned his first NFL start at Green Bay (10/24) when the Packers opened in a two-tight end formation. He finished the day with seven tackles. Against Detroit (10/31), he tallied a special teams tackle as Eddie Drummond – the NFL's third ranked kickoff returner entering the game at 29.0 yards-per-return – was limited to a 16.8-yard average. James finished third on the team with five defensive stops against Philadelphia (11/15) before starting his second career game and totaling three tackles at Baltimore (11/21). He also tied for the team lead with three special teams stops against the Ravens. He helped limit the Ravens to a 14.0-yard average on three kickoff returns. Against Chicago (11/25) on Thanksgiving Day, he totaled three special teams tackles as the Bears were limited to a 15.5-yard average on four kickoff returns. In Dallas's come-from-behind, Monday night victory at Seattle (12/6), he was second on the team with three special teams stops. He also recorded his first career pass deflection against the Seahawks. Against New Orleans (12/12), he tallied two special teams tackles in helping limit the Saints to a 16.5-yard average on four kickoff returns. One of his tackles came when he helped stop a fake punt attempt by the Saints, giving Dallas the ball at the New Orleans 38-yard line. He tied for the team lead with two special teams tackles at the N.Y. Giants (1/2/05). The Giants, who entered the game with a league-best 25.1-yard kickoff return average, were limited to a 16.0-yard average on five returns.

2003: James put his rookie season to productive use, learning the Cowboys defensive scheme as a backup linebacker and becoming one of the team's more prominent special teams players. He closed the year fourth on the squad in special teams tackles with 16. Inactive the first two games of the year, James made his NFL debut at the N.Y. Jets (9/28), recording two kicking game tackles. At Detroit (10/19), James saw his first action on defense and recorded a fourth quarter tackle. In the key victory over Carolina (11/23), he forced a fumble on the opening kickoff that Roy Williams recovered to set up Dallas at the Panthers 18-yard line. That turnover led to a Dallas field goal and the first points in the 24-20 win. James tied for the team lead with two special teams tackles as the Panthers were limited to two punt returns for -1 yard. In the Thanksgiving Day loss to Miami (11/27), James was third on the team with two special teams tackles as Miami was limited to a 4.0 average on four punt returns and a 17.8-yard mark on four kickoff returns. In the loss at Philadelphia (12/7), he tied for the team lead with two special teams tackles as the Eagles were limited to 7.0 yards on two punt returns and a 16.5-yard average on four kickoff returns. He led all Cowboys in special teams stops with three – one of those coming on a Redskins fake punt – at Washington (12/14).

COLLEGE: James was a two-time All-SEC selection on the football field and a National Scholar Athlete as selected by the National Football Foundation and a member of the SEC Academic Honor Roll in the classroom. James finished his playing days as the school's second leading tackler with 418 career stops – 33 of which were for lost yardage – while also recording 29 quarterback pressures, 14 sacks, eight pass deflections, four forced fumbles, two fumble recoveries and two interceptions. He spent his first three seasons with the Tigers playing weakside linebacker before moving to middle linebacker as a senior and earning All-America and All-SEC honors. James set the LSU single-season tackle record with 154 as a senior. As a junior, he earned All-SEC honors after finishing second on the team with 113 tackles. LSU posted a 10-3 record, captured the SEC title and a Sugar Bowl win along the way. As a sophomore, James earned second-team All-SEC honors after closing the season second on the team (third in the conference) with 110 tackles. He was the team leader with five sacks.

PERSONAL: Bradie Gene James earned Parade All-America, all-state, class 5A defensive MVP and district defensive MVP honors after totaling 136 tackles, five sacks and three fumble recoveries as a senior at West Monroe, La., High School. His play helped lead West Monroe to a state championship while earning him selection to the Louisiana Football Magazine's All-Louisiana team, the New Orleans Times Picayune's Top 20 blue chip list and the Atlanta Journal-Constitution's super southern 100 list. James graduated from LSU with a degree in criminology. After his senior year in college, he was named a National Scholar Athlete (as selected by the National Football Foundation) and member of the SEC Academic Honor Roll in the classroom. As a member of the Cowboys 2003 Rookie Club – a program designed to introduce rookie team members to community service in the Dallas area – James participated in charity visits to various non-profit organizations serving children and adults. Visits included work with the ChildCareGroup, The Salvation Army, Children's Medical Center Dallas and Kid's Cafe at The Voice of Hope Ministries. In 2004 and 2005, James participated in The Salvation Army Angel Tree program - donating Christmas gifts for underprivileged children. Early during the 2006 offseason, he served as a celebrity reader for a National Read Across America event to celebrate Dr. Seuss' birthday at an Arlington Boys & Girls Club. James also signed autographs and interacted with loyal Dallas Cowboys fans at the team's annual NFL Draft Day party hosted in appreciation for their support. He also had the opportunity to address

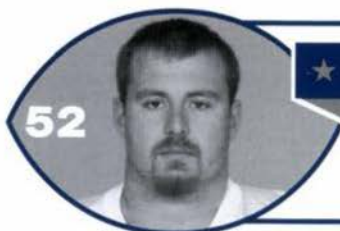

1,000 participants from across all spectrums of society to discuss and collaborate on the issue of childhood obesity. James continued keeping busy throughout the 2006 offseason serving as a guest speaker at a local elementary school Career Day and hosting a Bradie James Football camp for youth in his hometown of Monroe, La. PRO: After being drafted in the second round (38th overall) of the 2003 NFL Draft, Al Johnson was penciled in as the club's starting center entering Dallas's 2003 training camp. A knee injury one week into his first camp brought an end to his rookie season, but after a year of hard work rehabilitating the knee he has now started 31 consecutive games at center for the Cowboys. At 31 consecutive games, Johnson and Jason Witten have the longest active start streak on the offensive side of the ball for Dallas. With his intelligence and gritty play in the trenches, he is emerging as Dallas's long-term answer at center. Entering his third year as the starting center, Johnson is poised to continue his dominance of opposing defensive tackles.

2005: After beating out Andre Gurode in a training camp battle, Johnson started every game at center. Behind the work of the offensive line, the Cowboys offense was one of the best at controlling the clock, finishing second in the NFL in time of possession at 32:24. Johnson earned the start at San Diego (9/11) but handed over duties to Gurode during the second half on two offensive series. Against Washington (9/19) the offensive line did not allow a sack in 36 pass plays - the first time since Dec. 8, 2002 that an opponent had been shut out. At San Francisco (9/25) Johnson and the line gave Drew Bledsoe enough protection to throw for 363 yards - the eighth best performance in club history - while racking up 443 yards of total offense. At Oakland (10/2) he saw limited action playing in only the first quarter and on the final drive of the game. Against Philadelphia (10/9) the offense gained 456 total yards - the most since gaining 541 yards on Sept. 12, 1999. Against the Giants (10/16) Johnson's blocking allowed Bledsoe to complete 26-of-37 attempts for 312 yards. At Seattle (10/23) he again split time with Gurode as the running game racked up 164 yards. Johnson played his second complete game of the season against Arizona (10/30), helping lead the way for Marion Barber who rushed for 127 yards and two scores - the first 100-yard rusher of the season for Dallas. Behind the line's protection, Bledsoe was able to post a career-best 79.2 completion percentage against the Cardinals on 19-of-24 passing. At Philadelphia (11/14) the offensive line provided Bledsoe with time to complete 70.8% of his passes and allowed only one sack while generating 149 rushing yards against Detroit (11/20). Against Denver (11/24) Bledsoe completed a season-high 29-of-44 passes for 232 yards while only being sacked once. He started at the N.Y. Giants (12/4) just days after undergoing knee surgery following the Denver game to clean up loose cartilage, but gave way to Gurode in the second quarter and did not return. Against Kansas City (12/11) Johnson split time with Gurode as the line helped the offense gain 445 yards of total offense – the second-best total of the season. At Carolina (12/24) his blocking helped spring Julius Jones free to rush for 194 yards – the fourth best performance in club history.

2004: Johnson made his NFL debut in the second quarter at Minnesota (9/12) after starting center Tyson Walter sprained his knee. With Johnson's help, the Cowboys offense racked up 423 yards of total offense. Against Cleveland (9/19), Johnson got the starting nod in place of Walter (knee) and helped Dallas rack up 441 yards of total offense. He settled into the role as the starting center at Washington (9/27) and the line surrendered just one sack in 30 pass plays. Johnson once again started, but alternated quarters with Walter against the N.Y. Giants (10/10) as the Dallas run game racked up 166 yards and a 5.5 yard-per-carry average. His protection of Vinny Testaverde at Green Bay (10/24) allowed the team to rack up 308 passing yards, the club's record-tying third 300-yard passing day of the season. Against Detroit (10/31), Johnson & Co. allowed just one sack in 25 pass plays against the league's top ranked defensive unit in sacks-per-pass play. Johnson's work against Philadelphia (11/15) helped limit Corey Simon to just one tackle while allowing just one sack. On Thanksgiving Day against Chicago (11/25), Johnson was part of a line that led the way for Julius Jones to rush for 150 yards – the first 100-yard rushing performance of the season by a Dallas back and tied for the third best mark ever by a Dallas rookie. In the Cowboys come-from-behind victory Monday night at Seattle (12/6), the line's blocking opened holes for Jones to run for 198 yards, the third best rushing day in club history and the second best ever by a Cowboys rookie. At Philadelphia (12/19), Johnson's work helped Jones pick up 80 rushing yards, his fifth consecutive game with over 80 yards on the ground. In the season finale at the N.Y. Giants (1/2/05), the line opened holes for Jones to rush for 149 yards on 29 carries (5.1 avg.) and a touchdown and offered enough protection for Testaverde to finish with a season-high 109.2 quarterback rating. Over the final seven games of the season, Johnson's work in the trenches helped Jones average 115.7 yards-per-game rushing and finish the season as the NFL's second leading rookie rusher.

2003: Johnson moved into the starting lineup at center at the beginning of training camp but then suffered cartilage damage in his right knee during practice against Houston on Aug. 2. He underwent microfracture surgery on Aug. 8 and was placed on injured reserve, ending his season before it began, on Aug. 26.

COLLEGE: A three-year starter at Wisconsin, Johnson was part of a team that won 32 games and posted a 3-0 record in bowl games during his time in Madison. As a senior captain, Johnson was a consensus All-Big Ten second-team choice while garnering third-team All-America honors from The Sporting News and honorable mention from CNN/SI. Johnson started every game at center as a junior and earned honorable mention All-Big Ten honors. He originally took over the starting center duties in the second game of his sophomore season and proceeded to earn honorable mention All-Big Ten honors. Johnson's play in the middle of the Badgers offensive line helped the team average 196.1 rushing yards-per-game while leading the way for Michael Bennett to rush for 1,598 yards on 294 carries (5.4 avg.). Bennett's 159.8 rushing yards-per-game was the third best average in the country.

PERSONAL: Johnson, a sociology major at Wisconsin, was a standout two-way player at Southern Door High School in Brussels, Wis., earning second-team All-America honors from Prep Football Report and all-state honors from the Milwaukee Journal Sentinel while being named a national top 20 lineman by SuperPrep, the state of Wisconsin's top player by Street & Smith's and the Packerland Conference player of the year. He was also named to PrepStar's All-America "Dream Team" and played in the Wisconsin Shrine Game. He was also a member of the Southern Door track and basketball teams, winning the state track title in the shot put and being named conference player of the year in basketball. Despite the 2003 season ending knee injury and intense rehabilitation schedule, Johnson kept busy in the community. As a member of the Cowboys 2003 Rookie Club – a program designed to introduce rookie team members to community service in the Dallas area – Johnson participated in charity visits to various non-profit organizations serving children and adults. Visits included work with the ChildCareGroup, The Salvation Army, Children's Medical Center Dallas and Kid's Cafe at The Voice of Hope Ministries. Johnson also served as the team's spokesman for the Dallas Cowboys High School Coach of the Week program making visits and check presentations to the winning coach at their respective high schools. In 2004 and 2005, Johnson participated in The Salvation Army Angel Tree program – donating Christmas gifts for underprivileged children. He also participated in the 2006 Stars of Texas...Racing Against the Odds event hosted by local newspaper columnist and radio personality Randy Galloway that raised over $300,000 for the American Diabetes Association.

PRO: Thomas Johnson was one-of-two rookie free agents to make the team out of training camp and remain on the roster all year (running back Tyson Thompson was the other). His play in training camp made the coaching staff take notice of this small college unknown. With a year of NFL experience under his belt, he will look to battle for a spot along the defensive line and make an even bigger impact in 2006.

2005: Johnson was inactive the first 13 games of the season, and then made his NFL debut at Washington (12/18), recording three stops. He was inactive at Carolina (12/24) before seeing action in the season finale against St. Louis (1/1/06), where he recorded one quarterback pressure.

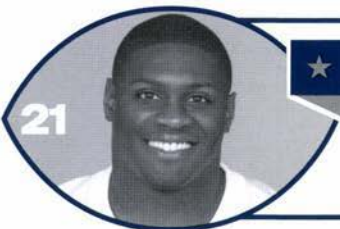

COLLEGE: As a senior, Johnson finished the year with a career-high 47 tackles, and, for the second straight season, tallied eight tackles for losses and four sacks. He saw action in all 11 games as a junior, earning eight starts and compling 33 tackles, eight tackles for losses and four sacks. As a sophomore, he played in 10 games, including four as a starter, and collected 14 tackles, a sack and a blocked punt. He began his playing career in 2001, seeing action in 10 games, with four starts, and registering 19 tackles and a sack after sitting out to fulfill academic requirements in 2000.

PERSONAL: A graduate of Hamilton, Tenn., High School, Johnson led the team in tackles and sacks his final two years. Playing tight end, defensive line and linebacker, he was voted all-state, all-metro and all-city as a senior. He earned his degree in education in May 2004. As a rookie last year, Johnson was a member of the Cowboys 2005 Rookie Club – a program designed to introduce rookie team members to community service in the Dallas area which included work with The Salvation Army, Children's Medical Center Dallas and Meals on Wheels for the team's annual NFL/United Way Hometown Huddle event.

COWBOYS

PRO: Despite missing 11 games in his first two NFL seasons, Julius Jones has proven himself to be one of the NFL's most productive players and brightest young stars. In his first two seasons Jones has provided the Cowboys with historic rushing performances that were unprecedented in the annals of Cowboys runners. With that kind of ability, he has captured the eye of the nation and pumped hope into the hearts of Dallas fans everywhere. After trading their first round pick in the 2004 NFL Draft to Buffalo, the Cowboys chose Jones in the second round with the 43rd selection overall. It marked the highest Dallas draft choice to be spent on a running back since the club selected Emmitt Smith with the 17th overall pick in the 1990 NFL Draft. For a franchise that has been blessed with excellence at the running back position for its entire existence – Don Perkins, Dan Reeves, Calvin Hill, Duane Thomas, Robert Newhouse, Tony Dorsett, Herschel Walker and the NFL's all-time leading rusher, Emmitt Smith – Jones's emergence has been a breath of fresh air and a vivid reminder of how much success the Cowboys have enjoyed through the years on the strength of a solid running game. Jones brings excellent vision and balance to the Dallas ground game while also possessing the toughness and cutback ability to be effective between the tackles and the speed and acceleration to get around the outside. In 21 career games, with 19 career starts, he has run for 1,812 yards (86.3 yards-per-game), including 1,780 in the 19 starts (93.7 yards-per game). In those 19 career starts he has rushed for over 70 yards 14 times. Along the way, he established individual game rushing performances that equaled, eclipsed or drew near to previous standards established by NFL greats such as Hill, Earl Campbell, Dorsett and Smith.

2005: Despite missing three games, Jones finished eighth in the NFC, 17th in the NFL, with 993 rushing yards. He picked up a first down on nine of 16 carries (56.0%) on third or fourth down, including six-of-10 (60.0%) from under five yards. In the opener at San Diego (9/11), Jones ran for 93 yards and a touchdown on 26 carries while adding three receptions for 18 yards. The following week against Washington (9/19) he ran 22 times for 81 yards. He topped the 80-yard mark for the third consecutive game with 85 yards and two touchdowns on 26 carries in the 34-31 win at San Francisco (9/25). He also caught four passes for 24 yards against the 49ers. Jones was held to 76 yards on 22 carries at Oakland (10/2), just the second time in 11 career starts that he has failed to rush for at least 80 yards. Against Philadelphia (10/9), Jones was off to an outstanding start with 16 carries for 72 yards as Dallas ran out to a 27-3 lead in the first half. However, just before halftime he suffered a high sprain on his left ankle and did not return. He sat out the next three contests because of the injury, returning to limited action at Philadelphia (11/14) with eight carries for 16 yards and a three-yard reception. He returned to the starting lineup against Detroit (11/20) and rushed for 92 yards on 21 carries. On the game's opening drive, he ran seven times for 37 yards as the Cowboys marched 84 yards in 14 plays to open the game with a touchdown. On Thanksgiving Day against Denver (11/24), Jones led the team with 20 carries for 55 yards and also hauled in five catches for nine yards. The following week at the N.Y. Giants (12/4), Jones again led the team with 74 yards on 23 carries and had career bests with nine receptions for 88 yards, also tops on the team. He was limited to 41 yards on 12 carries against Kansas City (12/11). At Washington (12/18) Jones ran 12 times for 79 yards, including a season-long 51-yard burst to set up the only Dallas touchdown of the afternoon. Jones had his biggest game of the season in one of the Cowboys biggest wins of the year. In a 24-20 win at Carolina (12/24), Jones posted a season-high 194 rushing yards and two touchdowns on a career-high 34 carries. The 194 yards was the second best total of his career and the fourth best day in club history. His 34 carries tied Smith for the second most in a game in club history, one shy of Smith's record of 35. It ended up as Jones's only 100-yard game of the season. His eight-yard touchdown run in the first quarter got Dallas on the scoreboard at 10-7, and then he added a 43-yard scoring run in the third quarter to put Dallas on top for the first time all day at 17-13.

2004: Although he didn't burst into the spotlight until late November, Jones enjoyed one of the most memorable and productive rookie seasons of any player – at any position – in team history. Saddled with injuries (bruised rib and fractured scapula) that held him out of eight of the first nine games of the year, Jones left an indelible mark on the Cowboys record book when his health returned. While starting the final seven games of the season, Jones finished the year with 819 rushing yards, a 4.2-yard average and seven rushing touchdowns. In eight games, Jones averaged 102.4 yards-per-game – a figure that was fifth best in the NFL. Jones finished the year as the NFL's second leading rookie rusher ranked 14th overall in the NFC (28th in the NFL). He also finished third among NFC rookies in scoring with 42 points, and his seven rushing touchdowns led all NFL rookies. Jones compiled three of the top 36 rushing performances in the NFL and three of the top five rookie rushing games. Seattle's Shaun Alexander was the only runner in the NFL with more rushing games of 149-plus yards (four). As a pass receiver, Jones finished with 17 catches for 109 yards. After not playing in the season opener at Minnesota (9/12) due to a pre-season rib injury, Jones made his Cowboys debut in the win over Cleveland (9/19), carrying the ball five times for 16 yards and catching two passes for 14 yards. Jones suffered a fractured scapula in the Cleveland game and missed the next eight weeks as a result. He returned to action, and earned his first NFL starting assignment, at Baltimore (11/21), where he carried the ball 30 times for 81 yards. Jones had a breakout day in front of a national television audience against Chicago (11/25) on Thanksgiving Day, rushing for 150 yards and two touchdowns on 33 carries. His 150 rushing yards tied the then second best total by a rookie in club history (Dorsett, 206 and Hill, 150). His 33 carries were the most by a Dallas rookie and tied for the third most in club history. His performance against the Bears marked the first 100-yard rushing day by a Dallas back in 2004, and his 33-yard touchdown run was the longest scoring run of the season for Dallas. While playing in just two games in the month of November, Jones earned the NFL's Offensive Rookie of the Month award by rushing 63 times for 231 yards and two touchdowns. In the come-from-behind Monday night victory at Seattle (12/6), Jones carried the ball 30 times for a career-high 198 yards and a career-high three touchdowns. His 198 rushing yards marked the second best effort by a rookie in club history (Dorsett, 206), the top effort by a rookie in the league for 2004 and the third best performance in the NFL in 2004. He scored the game winning touchdown on a 17-yard scamper with 32 seconds remaining to cap a Dallas comeback that featured 14 unanswered Cowboys points in the final 1:45. Jones carried the ball four times for 44 yards on the game winning drive that covered 57 yards in eight plays in 1:13. His three rushing touchdowns were the most by a Dallas runner since Smith had three against Minnesota on Nov. 26, 1998. Included in his record rushing outing was a season-best 53-yard run in the first quarter. His performance against the Seahawks garnered Jones NFC Offensive Player of the Week honors and Fed Ex Air and Ground honors and his 17-yard game-winning touchdown run was recognized as the Levitra Play of the Week. His 30 carries at Seattle allowed him to become the first player in team history – and only the second player in NFL history (Campbell) – to carry the ball at least 30 times in three consecutive games. His two-game outburst against Chicago (150 yards) and Seattle (198) enabled Jones to become the first Dallas back to post back-to-back 100-yard rushing days since December of 2001. Jones also became the first Dallas rookie runner to have consecutive 100-yard rushing games since 1969 when Hill had 109 against New Orleans (11/9) and 150 at Washington (11/16). His two-game push marked just the fifth time in club history that a Cowboys back had back-to-back 150-yard rushing games and the first time since Smith did so in 1995. His 348 rushing yards in two games marked the second best performance in team history – Smith had 354 yards in consecutive games against Philadelphia (237) and New York (117) in 1993. In the loss to New Orleans (12/12), Jones had 23 carries for 88 yards and scored the Cowboys only touchdown on a one-yard run in the first quarter. By virtue of his 88 yards rushing against New Orleans, Jones posted a three-game rushing total of 436 yards, the third best mark in club history. In the following week's narrow loss at Philadelphia (12/19), Jones ran 25 times for 80 yards, marking his fifth straight game with 80 rushing yards-or-more. In the Cowboys last-minute 13-10 win over Washington (12/26), Jones carried 22 times for 57 yards, helping Dallas control the clock for 32:42. In the season finale at the N.Y. Giants (1/2/05) in front of a national television audience, he ran 29 times for 149 yards (5.1 avg.) while catching five passes for 46 yards. It was his third 148+ yard rushing game in the last six games. He accounted for 195 total yards and edged the NFL's yards-from-scrimmage leader Tiki Barber by a 195 to 116 margin. Jones also scored on a one-yard touchdown run with 1:49 remaining in the game to put Dallas ahead 24-21. New York eventually pulled out the win with their own last-minute touchdown drive. He also posted season-highs with five receptions for 46 yards, including a 37-yard screen pass.

COLLEGE: Jones was one of just four running backs in school history to rush for over 3,000 yards in his Notre Dame career. Jones started 17-of-45 games for the Irish, carrying 634 times for 3,018 yards (4.8 avg.) and 26 touchdowns, becoming the fourth player in school history to gain over 3,000 rushing yards in a career. A gifted return man, Jones had 38 career punt returns for an 11.2 average and a touchdown to go along with 72 kickoff returns for a 23.3-yard average and a score. His kickoff return efforts broke the Irish all-time record of 1,613 yards that was held by Tim Brown. His total kick return yards of 2,104 also broke Brown's school record. Jones's 5,372 all-purpose yards was a Notre Dame record. In his final collegiate season, Jones returned from an inactive 2002 season to earn honorable mention All-America honors after setting a school record by running for more than 200 yards in three separate games. He closed his final collegiate campaign by rushing for 1,268 yards and 10 touchdowns on 229 carries, the fourth highest total in school history. His 1,568 all purpose yards were the most by a Notre Dame player since former Cowboy Raghbi Ismail had 1,723 yards in 1990. In 2002, Jones sat out what would have been his fourth year of eligibility after being ruled academically ineligible. In 2001, Jones gained 718 yards on 168 carries (4.3 avg.) and six touchdowns. Jones brought back 18 punts for 192 yards (10.6 avg.) and 18 kickoffs for 405 yards (22.5 avg.). As a sophomore, Jones led the Irish in rushing attempts (162), rushing yards (657) and rushing touchdowns (seven), as well as all-purpose yards (1,169). He enjoyed a stellar year in returning kickoffs with a 28.4-yard average on 15 attempts. As a true freshman, Jones set a Notre Dame single-season record with 26 kickoff returns. His 603 kickoff return yards ranked behind only Heisman trophy winner Brown's 698 in 1986. His 798 combined kick return yards (195 punt, 603 kickoff) ranked second all-time in a season behind Brown's 857 in 1987. As a backup running back, Jones averaged 5.0 yards-per-carry while gaining 375 yards with three touchdowns.

PERSONAL: Jones attended Powell Valley High School in Big Stone Gap, Va., where he was an honorable mention USA Today All-America. While earning four letters in football, he captained his team as a senior and rushed for 2,564 yards and 36 touchdowns in his final prep campaign. He was named the Virginia Group A Offensive Player of the Year in 1997 and 1998 by the Associated Press and Virginia High School Coaches Association. He was also the Virginia Region D and Lonesome Pine District Player of the Year as a junior and senior. Jones's career totals include 614 carries for 5,803 yards and 86 touchdowns. As a safety on defense, he also intercepted 10 career passes. He helped Powell Valley to 28 straight victories and the Virginia Group A-Division 2 state title in 1997 and 1998. Along the way, he set a Virginia high school record with 321 rushing yards in one state playoff game (on 19 carries) while also scoring five touchdowns. Jones won four letters in basketball, serving as a senior captain and leading the team to league titles as a sophomore and junior. He also added four letters in track, captaining the team as a senior and earning all-state honors his last three seasons while competing in hurdle and jumping events. He set a state record with a time of 38.7 in the 300 intermediate hurdles in 1998 and also turned in a 14.2 in the 110 high hurdles. His older brother, Thomas, was the sixth pick in the first round of the 2000 NFL Draft by the Arizona Cardinals, played for Tampa Bay in 2003 and Chicago in 2004-05. As a rookie, he was part of the Cowboys 2004 Rookie Club - a program designed to introduce rookie team members to community service in the Dallas area. He and his fellow rookie teammates participated in visits to various non-profit organizations serving children and adults, including the NFL Play It Smart program at Dallas's Lincoln High School, ChildCareGroup, NFL United Way Hometown Huddle and The Salvation Army. Julius Andre Maurice Jones majored in sociology at Notre Dame in the College of Arts and Letters.

PRO: Nate Jones has evolved into a solid nickel corner and outstanding special teams player in just two seasons in the NFL after being selected in the seventh round (205th overall) of the 2004 NFL Draft. Jones has accumulated 14 special teams tackles over the last two seasons as Dallas coverage teams have excelled in both punt and kickoff coverage. He also has the ability to return kicks when called on, having averaged 23.2 yards-per-return during his career at Rutgers. His ability to contribute in multiple facets of the game will continue to make Jones a key contributor for the Cowboys in 2006.

2005: Jones saw action in all 16 games for Dallas, primarily on special teams where he finished second on the team with 12 special teams tackles. He recorded special teams tackles at San Francisco (9/25), at Seattle (10/23) and against Arizona (10/30) early in the season. He stepped up his play in the second half of the season, leading the team with a career-high three special teams tackles at Philadelphia (11/14) as the Eagles were limited to a 22.3-yard average on four kickoff returns, with a long of 28 yards. The following week against Detroit (11/20), he recorded one special teams tackle as Eddie Drummond was limited to a 19.8-yard average on four kickoff returns. Working as the gunner on punt coverage at the N.Y. Giants (12/4), he recorded a special teams tackle while limiting the Giants to two returns for six yards on seven punts — three punts were fair caught inside the Giants 20-yard line and two others were downed. At Washington (12/18) he recorded a special teams tackle when he brought down punt returner Antonio Brown for no gain. He recorded two special teams tackles at Carolina (12/24). In the season finale against St. Louis (1/1/06), Jones saw considerable action in the nickel with injuries slowing Jacques Reeves and Anthony Henry. He recorded two tackles and a quarterback pressure as the Rams were limited to 147 net passing yards on the night.

2004: Jones saw action in all 16 games — with one start — during his rookie campaign and recorded 31 tackles, three pressures, a sack and a tackle for a loss while returning two kickoffs for 43 yards. He made his professional debut in the season opener at Minnesota (9/12) on special teams, then saw considerable action in nickel packages against Cleveland (9/19), posting a career-high four stops, a tackle for a loss and a pressure while helping limit the Browns to 66 net passing yards. The following week at Washington (9/27), he recorded two stops working in the nickel package after Pete Hunter was lost to a knee injury. After Bruce Thornton sprained his knee against the N.Y. Giants (10/10), Jones returned his first two career kickoffs, averaging 21.5 yards-per-return. He also posted his first special teams tackle against the Giants. He registered three tackles from the slot at Green Bay (10/24) before tying his career-high with four tackles and his first career sack against Detroit (10/31). He also forced two incomplete passes with quarterback pressures against the Lions while seeing considerable action at right corner after Tyrone Williams went down with a hamstring strain on the game's opening drive. He made his first NFL start against Philadelphia (11/15) when the Cowboys opened in their nickel defense and registered two stops. Against Chicago (11/25) on Thanksgiving Day, he again totaled a career-high four tackles as the Bears were limited to 91 net passing yards. He tied his career-high once again with four tackles from the slot at Seattle (12/6). Two weeks later at Philadelphia (12/19), he posted two stops while helping limit Eagles wide receivers Todd Pinkston and Terrell Owens to four catches for 58 yards. He also helped limit Donovan McNabb — the league's third ranked passer (107.2 rating) entering the game — to a 62.0 rating. Jones closed out his initial campaign with three tackles in the nickel package at the N.Y. Giants (1/2/05) while helping limit the Giants to 137 net passing yards.

COLLEGE: As a senior, Jones started all 10 games and recorded 73 tackles, seven pass deflections, two interceptions and a blocked punt. He also returned 19 kickoffs for 489 yards (25.7 avg.) and a touchdown. As a junior, he became the first player in Rutgers history to earn Big East Conference co-Special Teams Player of the Year honors as he ranked sixth in the nation with 26 kickoff returns for 736 yards (28.3 avg.). He became just the second player in Big East history to have two 100-yard kickoff returns for touchdowns in a season. Jones also posted a career-high 84 tackles while adding two interceptions and seven pass break-ups. He saw time in 11 games as a reserve during his sophomore campaign, registering 55 stops, four passes defended, a forced fumble and an interception he returned 70 yards for a touchdown. He also added 677 yards on 37 kickoff returns (18.3 avg.). As a redshirt freshman, he tallied seven tackles in 10 games while seeing mostly special teams duty.

PERSONAL: Jones was a first-team all-state selection and was one of 13 players from New Jersey honored by the MSG Network as a Tri-State Heisman All-Star following a senior season at Scotch Plains, N.J., Fanwood High School in which he rushed for 2,474 yards and 33 touchdowns while catching 10 passes for 227 yards. He was also named the Union County Offensive Player of the Year, the all-area Offensive Player of the Year and the recipient of the Lou Reltino Award as the best player in the conference. On the defensive side of the ball, he contributed 85 tackles, six interceptions and two fumble recoveries. In a North Jersey 2 Group III quarterfinal playoff game, he rushed for 362 yards and six touchdowns. As a junior, he accounted for more than 1,600 rushing yards and 14 touchdowns. The education major lettered for the Rutgers track team in 2001 as a sprinter, posting a 10.8-second time in the 100 meters. As part of an NFL-NFLPA initiative to assist players in preparing for their post-playing careers, Jones took part in the NFL Business Management and Entrepreneurial Program at the Harvard Business School during the 2006 offseason. As a rookie, he was part of the Cowboys 2004 Rookie Club — a program designed to introduce rookie team members to community service in the Dallas area. He and his fellow rookie teammates participated in visits to various non-profit organizations serving children and adults, including the NFL Play It Smart program at Dallas's Lincoln High School, ChildCareGroup, NFL United Way Hometown Huddle and The Salvation Army. Jones also participated in The Salvation Army Angel Tree program — donating Christmas gifts for underprivileged children. Jones worked in financial management with Merrill Lynch during the spring of 2005.

COWBOYS

PRO: Kyle Kosier (KO-zar) was a key addition to the Dallas Cowboys offensive line this spring as an unrestricted free agent from the Detroit Lions. A versatile player with the ability and experience of playing multiple positions along the offensive line, Kosier will immediately step into the line-up at left guard to fill the spot of the departed Larry Allen. Kosier, originally drafted in the seventh round (248th overall) by San Francisco in 2002, played his first three seasons as a 49er before moving to Detroit in 2005. He has played in 63 games over his four-year career, starting 40 of those, and during that time has continued to grow and mature as a player. He should help solidify the interior of the Cowboys offensive line for the next few years.

2005: Kosier played in all 16 games at left guard for the Lions, starting 11 contests. He moved into the starting line-up against Cleveland (10/23), and in his first start, he helped the offense gain 329 yards – 210 through the air and 119 on the ground, their second highest offensive total of the season. Against the Bears (10/30), his blocking allowed quarterback Jeff Garcia enough time to complete 23-of-35 (65.7%) passes. Behind Kosier the following week at Minnesota (11/6), quarterback Joey Harrington threw for 263 yards – the highest passing yardage of the season – completing 28-of-48 passes. Kosier's blocking helped the Lions rack up a season-high 383 yards against Arizona (11/13) – 157 rushing and 226 passing and while allowing no sacks for the first time all season. Against the Falcons (11/24), Kosier and Co. held the defense to zero sacks for the second time in the 2005 season.

2004: Kosier started all 16 games with the 49ers, six at right guard and 10 at left guard. In his third start at left guard he helped the San Francisco offense roll up 448 yards against Arizona (10/10). At Arizona (12/12), he started at right guard and the 49ers offense topped 350 yards, gaining 352 on the day.

2003: Kosier saw action in all 16 games earning

2002: As a rookie, Kosier managed one start and saw action in all 15 games, as well as the two playoff games. He saw considerable action on special teams and returned a kickoff 10 yards against Kansas City (11/10). He also contributed on special teams in the NFC Wild Card game against the N.Y. Giants (1/5/03) and again at Tampa Bay (1/12/03) in the NFC Divisional Playoff game. He notched his first career start at right guard at St. Louis (12/30) and also played some at left tackle.

COLLEGE: Kosier started his final 23 games at Arizona State, earning All-Pac 10 honorable mention as a senior while starting 11 games at right tackle. He helped the Sun Devil offense gain 426.4 yards-per-game. As a junior, he started at right guard, helping the Sun Devil offense gain 379.3 yards-per-game. Kosier started the final two games of his sophomore campaign at right guard and saw time in 10 games. As a freshman he made the move from the defensive line to the offensive line and saw action in one game at left tackle.

PERSONAL: Kyle Blaine Kosier attended Cactus High in Peoria, Ariz., where he lettered in football, baseball, basketball and track. He was named to the all-Arizona football team by The Arizona Republic and recorded 634 tackles during his career. He was captain of both his football and baseball teams. He earned his degree in interdisciplinary studies.

COWBOYS

PRO: With inconsistent deep snaps through the first three games of 2005, the Dallas Cowboys signed Louis-Philippe Ladouceur (pronounced LA-doo-sahr) to help cure the special teams snapping woes. He stepped into the line-up and provided Dallas an immediate upgrade the final 13 weeks of the season. Ladouceur originally signed with the New Orleans Saints as a rookie free agent following the 2005 NFL Draft.

2005: Ladouceur made his NFL debut at Oakland (10/2) and provided clean snaps on five punts and two field goals. He continued to snap cleanly after arriving with the club in late September and finished the season with clean snaps on 70 punts, 25 field goals and 28 PATs. He finished the preseason with the Saints seeing limited time at defensive end and as the team's long snapper. He posted two tackles, one sack, a forced fumble and a special teams tackle but was released at the end of camp.

COLLEGE: As a senior, Ladouceur saw time in all 12 games as Cal's deep snapper and was a key piece to the Bears special teams units that did not allow a kick to be blocked for the second consecutive season. In 12 games as a junior, Ladouceur was the team's deep snapper. His work helped allow the Bears special teams units to not allow a kick or punt to be blocked. Ladouceur played in just two games for Cal as a sophomore, but did not record any statistics. As a redshirt freshman, Ladouceur appeared in three games for the Bears.

PERSONAL: Ladouceur was born in Montreal, Canada and played at Notre Dame High School and John Abbott College in Pointe-Claire, Montreal, Canada. The defensive lineman had 48 tackles, seven sacks, three blocked field goals, one blocked punt and a fumble recovery he returned 35 yards for a touchdown as a senior. He earned his bachelor's degree in earth and planetary science and his masters in education from Cal. Ladouceur also speaks fluent French. As a rookie last year, he was a member of the Cowboys 2005 Rookie Club – a program designed to introduce rookie team members to community service in the Dallas area which included work with The Salvation Army, Children's Medical Center Dallas and Meals on Wheels.

COWBOYS

PRO: The Cowboys opened up the punting job during the 2004 training camp and invited free agent Mat McBriar to battle for the spot. McBriar won the job and steadily improved throughout his rookie season, finishing the year with the highest gross average by a Cowboys punter in four years (42.4). His second season in Dallas was more of the same as he continued to provide the club a consistently strong leg in the kicking game, posting a 37.1 net average in year two, the best by a Dallas punter in over 10 years. McBriar's upside is tremendous considering the fact that he just began kicking in the United States six years ago after playing football in Australia prior to college. He originally entered the NFL as a rookie free agent with the Denver Broncos in 2003, but was traded to Seattle during training camp. He punted in one preseason game for the Seahawks before being released prior to the start of the 2003 season.

2005: McBriar finished his second season in Dallas with a 42.5-yard average on 81 punts, good for eighth in the NFC, 20th in the NFL. His 37.1 net average was fourth best in the NFC, 12th in the NFL, and was the best by a Dallas punter since 1993. It was only the fourth time since 1969 that a Dallas punter had topped the 37-yard mark. One reason for McBriar's success was the fact that 18 of his 81 punts were downed without a return, the second best figure in the NFL. His length came despite McBriar's success at pinning opponents deep in their own territory. He tied for second in the NFC, fifth in the NFL, with 28 punts downed inside the 20-yard line – tying Mike Saxon for the second best total in club history. In the home opener against Washington (9/19), he recorded a 48.2-yard average on six punts with a 40.0 net. In that game he placed three of his six kicks at or inside the Redskins 10-yard line. The following week at San Francisco

(9/25) he finished with a 42.0-yard average on three kicks despite two low snaps and the coverage team's inability to down a ball inside the five-yard line. He averaged 44.8 yards on five punts with kicks of 56 and 55 yards at Oakland (10/2), including a 44-yard kick to the Oakland eight-yard line that was returned just one yard. Against the N.Y. Giants (10/16), he had a 40.3 net average on three punts with two downed inside the 20. His other punt was a 51-yarder from the Dallas one-yard line as he kicked out of its own end zone. McBriar tied the club record by downing five of his career-high tying nine punts at Seattle (10/23) inside the Seahawks 20-yard line. Against Arizona (10/30), he recorded a 53.3-yard average on three punts with kicks of 55, 53 and 52 yards on the afternoon. He also recorded his first special teams tackle of the season. At Philadelphia (11/14) he tied his career-high with nine punts for a 42.7-yard average, twice pinning the Eagles inside their 20-yard line. In the fourth quarter he got off kicks of 56, 62, and 52 yards as Dallas fought back for the 21-20 win. Against Detroit (11/20), he placed all three of his punts inside the Lions 20-yard line with a 34.3 net average. Eddie Drummond was limited to one return for -6 yards on the afternoon. He had a season-high 42.0 net average on five punts against Denver (11/24), including two downed inside the 20 - one at the two-yard line. He also had a 50-yard punt from the Cowboys end zone that was fair caught. At the N.Y. Giants (12/4), McBriar had a 39.1 net average with three of his seven punts downed inside the Giants 20-yard line. Against Kansas City (12/11), he had four punts for a 44.3-yard average including a 52-yard punt that was downed at the 12-yard line and a 51-yard boot to the 11-yard line that was returned to the Chiefs six-yard line for a five-yard loss. He averaged a season-best 48.6 yards on seven punts with kicks of 63 (season-long), 53, 52 and 51 yards at Carolina (12/24).

2004: After a slow start, McBriar came on strong over the final three months of his rookie campaign and finished with a 42.4 gross average - 35.1 net - on 75 punts with 22 downed inside the 20-yard line. His 42.4 gross average was the highest average by a Cowboys punter since Micah Knorr posted a 42.8-yard average in 2000. McBriar made his NFL debut in the season opener at Minnesota (9/12) and averaged 32.7 yards on three punts with two kicks downed inside the 20-yard line. The following week against Cleveland (9/19), he posted a 39.7-yard average on three punts while having two downed inside the 20, including one that was downed at the one-yard line, leading to a safety when the Browns were called for holding in the end zone. He punted eight times for a 39.3-yard average at Washington (9/27). He averaged a career-high 50.3 yards on four punts against Pittsburgh (10/17), with a career-high 45.0 net average. It was the best gross and net average by a Dallas punter since Toby Gowin averaged 53.3 gross and 45.3 net on Oct. 24, 1999. McBriar followed that career performance by averaging 36.4 net yards on five punts with two downed inside the 20 at Green Bay (10/24), where none of his five punts were returned. He downed two-of-four punts inside the 20-yard line at Cincinnati (11/7) while averaging 48.0 yards. He punted seven times against Philadelphia (11/15) for a 44.1-yard average, including a career-long 68-yarder as well as a 57-yarder. It was the longest punt since Gowin logged a 72-yard boot against Chicago on Sept. 28, 1997. He also pinned the Eagles inside their own 20-yard line three times. He booted a career-high nine punts against Chicago (11/25) on Thanksgiving Day for a 43.1-yard average. He kicked four consecutive 50+ yard punts in the first and second quarters against the Bears and finished the day with five punts over 50 yards. He opened the final month of the season by averaging 49.0 gross yards and 37.4 net yards on five punts against New Orleans (12/12). He also recorded his first career special teams tackle against the Saints. He recorded his second special teams tackle in three weeks against Washington (12/26) when he prevented a touchdown by forcing Antonio Brown out of bounds at the Cowboys 23-yard line. The defense then held the Redskins to a field goal in Dallas's 13-10 come-from-behind victory.

2003: McBriar signed with the Denver Broncos as a rookie free agent and recorded six punts for a 41.5-yard average during preseason action. He was traded by Denver to the Seattle Seahawks for a conditional draft pick on Aug. 22, and he averaged 44.8 yards on five punts in his lone preseason game with Seattle. He was released Aug. 31 and spent the fall out of football.

COLLEGE: McBriar was the Hawaii Rainbows punter for three years, averaging 42.2 yards on 131 career punts, with 32 punts downed inside the 20-yard line. He earned All-Western Athletic Conference honors as a senior after averaging 44.8 yards on 48 punts (2,148 yards) with 12 kicks downed inside the 20-yard line. As a junior, he earned second-team All-WAC honors after averaging 43.4 yards on 40 punts with 10 downed inside the 20-yard line. He began his collegiate football career in 2000 by punting 43 times for 1,647 yards (38.3 avg.) with 10 kicks downed inside the 20. He attended Deakin University in Australia for three semesters before venturing to Hawaii.

PERSONAL: McBriar graduated from Brighton Grammar School in Melbourne, Australia in 1997 where he earned full color (lettered) four times in football and rowing. The Melbourne, Australia, native credits former San Diego Chargers punter Darren Bennett for assisting him to pursue a college football career. Bennett introduced him to Hawaii head coach June Jones, and later McBriar stayed with Bennett in San Diego after being released by Seattle in 2003. McBriar is the second Australian to play for the Cowboys, joining former punter/kicker Colin Ridgway (1965), and is just the fourth player in NFL history from Down Under (Bennett, Ridgway and defensive tackle Colin Scotts with the St. Louis Cardinals in 1987). McBriar has become active in the Dallas-Fort Worth community since joining the team including attending the MDA Muscle Team Bash hosted by former Cowboy and FOX Sports announcer Daryl Johnston, participating in the Cowboys annual Draft Day Party hosted in appreciation of the team's loyal fans and attending the first annual Taste of the NFL: The Ultimate Dallas Cowboys Tailgate Party hosted by teammate La'Roi Glover and Abacus restaurant benefiting The North Texas Food Bank.

COLLEGE: Despite playing just two seasons of college football, Pat McQuistan was selected by the Dallas Cowboys in the seventh round (211th overall) of the 2006 NFL Draft. In his two seasons alongside his twin brother Paul at Weber State on the offensive line, the duo became the first two brothers ever selected in the same NFL Draft from Weber State – Paul was a third round selection by Oakland. Pat will get the opportunity to gain valuable experience while providing depth at tackle, something the Cowboys needed late last season. Having played just two years of college football after a short stint as a junior college pitcher, McQuistan is still a work in progress, but he will get the opportunity to learn from some of the best in Pro Bowl line mates Flozell Adams and Marco Rivera.

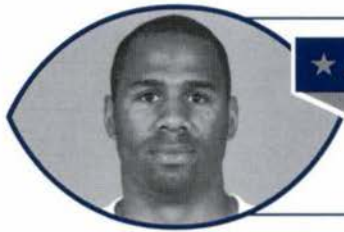

2005: McQuistan played in all 11 games, helping guide the Wildcats to a 6-5 record, a drastic turnaround from the 2004 season. On the season, the offense averaged 381.2 yards-per-game, with 2,466 yards through the air and 1,727 rushing yards. In the season opener against Western State, the offense racked up a season-high of 590 total yards, 341 rushing yards, eight total touchdowns (six rushing) and 61 points. At Montana, McQuistan and Co. provided quarterback Ian Pizarro enough time to throw for a season-high 373 yards. At Eastern Washington, the offensive line once again provided time for quarterback Pizarro to find his target receivers; this time completing a season-high four touchdown passes.

2004: McQuistan played in 10 games in his first season for Weber State at both tackle and guard. The Wildcats struggled through the year, finishing with a 1-10 record. McQuistan missed the season opener as the Wildcats suffered a tough loss to Southern Utah, 34-31. McQuistan and the Wildcats gained their only win of the season at Idaho State, 26-14. By the end of the season – running back Nick Chournos became Weber State's all-time leading rusher with 3,593 career yards behind the blocking of McQuistan and the offensive line.

2003: McQuistan enrolled in Weber State during the summer and sat out the 2003 season as an academic redshirt.

2002: He originally signed to play at Weber State in February of 2002 along with his brother Paul, but was declared academically ineligible. He enrolled at Edmonds Community College and played baseball for one season.

PERSONAL: McQuistan earned second team valley league defensive lineman and honorable mention All-Valley League as an offensive lineman and punter for Lebanon, Ore., High School. He was a business major at Weber State. His mirror-twin brother, Paul, was selected in the third round (69th overall) by the Oakland Raiders. Paul and Pat are the youngest of seven children. Their brother, David, is an airman who is stationed in Iraq.

PRO: In an effort to compliment their stable of big, possession receivers with an experienced speed receiver, the Dallas Cowboys re-signed Ahmad Merritt on January 10. Merritt, who first signed with Dallas leading up to the 2005 training camp, came into the league as a rookie free agent with the Chicago Bears in 2000. He can also provide the Cowboys with a solid special teams player with experience as a kick returner, punt returner and coverage specialist.

2005: Merritt, who signed with the Dallas Cowboys on April 5, was waived/injured on August 24 after training camp and was out of football for the season.

2004: Merritt re-signed with the Bears and finished the preseason with four receptions for 54 yards and five kickoff returns for 108 yards (36.0 avg.) but was released on the final cut. He was out of football for the remainder of the season.

2003: In his second full season on the active roster, Merritt shined on special teams, tying for third on the squad with 13 tackles and leading the team with three forced fumbles playing in a career-high 15 games. At San Francisco (9/7), he set a franchise record with nine kickoff returns for a career-high 170 yards before averaging 23.0 yards-per-return with a long of 35 at Minnesota (9/14). Against Green Bay (9/29), he totaled 110 yards on six kickoff returns and recovered a fourth quarter onside kick. At New Orleans (10/12), he recorded a 33-yard kick return and his first reception of the year – 22 yards – while forcing a fumble on special teams. Merritt was forced from the game in the first half at Seattle (10/19) with a strained neck which also caused him to miss the game against Detroit (10/26). He returned with a vengeance and posted stellar special teams figures in the next three contests including a forced fumble and two stops against San Diego (11/2), a forced fumble and four tackles against St. Louis (11/16) and three tackles at Denver (11/23). Against Washington (12/21), he caught his first pass in seven games, tying his career long of 25 yards.

2002: Merritt earned a roster spot with Chicago out of training camp for the first time in his career but was inactive Weeks One through Four with a left hand injury suffered in camp. In the 12 games he appeared – including two starts – Merritt was the Bears leading kickoff returner with 45 returns for 1,029 yards and a 22.9 yard-per-return average, good for fourth in Bears history. He added 14 catches for 100 yards and 10 punt returns for 71 yards. Merritt made his 2002 debut in a Monday night match up against Green Bay (10/7) seeing action on special teams. He posted his first career kickoff return for a season-high and personal-best 63 yards at Detroit (10/20) before adding four returns for 63 yards and two catches for 11 yards at Minnesota (10/27). He earned his first career start against Philadelphia (11/3) and caught two passes for 30 yards. He earned the starting nod once again against New England (11/10) and posted a 24.7-yard kick return average including a long of 44 yards. PRO: After selecting the Jim Thorpe award winner (Roy Williams) in the 2002 NFL Draft, the Dallas Cowboys helped solidify their young defensive backfield when they drafted Terence Newman - college football's 2002 Jim Thorpe award winner - with the fifth overall choice in the 2003 NFL Draft. Newman, the most decorated defensive player in Kansas State history, quickly established himself as one of the NFL's top young cornerbacks when he earned All-Rookie honors, tied for the league lead among rookies in interceptions and was named an alternate to the Pro Bowl all in his first professional season. After a solid second season that saw him become the first player since Everson Walls in 1981-82 to lead the team outright in interceptions in consecutive seasons, Newman turned in his most productive season as a professional player in 2005. The free agent additions of Anthony Henry and Aaron Glenn in '05 gives Dallas as fine a trio of talented and experienced corners as any NFL roster can boast. Newman's productivity and playmaking ability have him on the cusp of making a Pro Bowl run as he enters his fourth NFL season. He has proven himself as one of the NFL's top cover men with 11 career interceptions in three seasons. But covering receivers is not his only strength as he also plays the run well - as evidenced by his 11 career tackles for losses and his 216 career tackles. Blessed with tremendous athletic ability, Newman has outstanding speed (4.37 40-yard dash), that translated into two Big 12 Conference titles in the 100 meters (junior and senior seasons), as well as a Big 12 indoor title in the 60

2005: Newman finished his finest season as a pro third on the team in tackles with 70 stops. He also led the team in passes defended with a career high 15, while tying for second in interceptions with three. Newman was fifth on the club in tackles for losses with three. In the season opening win at San Diego (9/11), he recorded five tackles and had a season-best two tackles behind the line of scrimmage on Charger pass plays. He also broke up a pass as the Chargers were limited to 188 net passing yards. In the Monday night loss to Washington (9/19), Newman was second on the team with six tackles and broke up two passes. He also recorded an interception against Washington, marking his fifth career theft against Redskins quarterbacks in five career games against Washington. In the win at San Francisco (9/25), he was second on the team with six tackles while also breaking up two passes, including one on the 49ers final play that Dat Nguyen picked off to seal the Cowboys 34-31 win. In the loss at Oakland (10/2), he recorded three tackles and made the defensive play of the game by running down Randy Moss from behind at the Dallas seven-yard line to save a touchdown and force a Raiders field goal. In the key divisional win over Philadelphia (10/9), Newman tied for the lead in the secondary with three tackles while adding his only sack of the season and the second of his career. His effort helped limit the Eagles top ranked offense entering the day to 119 total yards, including just 110 net passing yards. In the following week's overtime win over the Giants (10/16), he recorded four tackles while helping limit the Giants to a one-of-11 success rate on third downs. In the last-minute loss at Seattle (10/23), he was second on the team with six tackles. He also broke up two passes, and recorded an interception of a Matt Hasselbeck pass at the Dallas seven-yard line on the Seahawks opening drive. Later in the first quarter, he forced a Joe Jurevicius fumble following a reception (ball went out of bounds). Newman helped limit the NFL's top ranked offense entering the game to 289 total yards, 118 below their season average, and one touchdown. In the win over Arizona (10/30), he recorded three tackles and broke up a pass as the Cardinals were held to 142 net passing yards. In the Monday night win at Philadelphia (11/14), Newman recorded five tackles while also breaking up a pass. The Eagles were limited to 178 net passing yards and an 8.7 yard-per-catch average. The Philadelphia wideouts had just one catch of over 10 yards (18-yard catch by Greg Lewis). In the victory over Detroit (11/20), he was second on the team with a season-high seven tackles and broke up a pass. His play helped limit the Lions to 169 net passing yards on the afternoon. In the overtime loss to Denver (11/24) on Thanksgiving, Newman was a major force on defense with one of his best outings of the season. He was involved in two takeaways that led to two Dallas touchdowns and had four tackles. His second quarter interception was the first off Jake Plummer in 230 pass attempts. His fourth quarter fumble recovery at the Broncos 10-yard line set up the game-tying touchdown. The Broncos were limited to 149 net passing yards and Denver wide receivers had just six catches for 64 yards – with just one catch, a 20-yarder, over 13 yards. In the following week's loss at the N.Y. Giants (12/4), he recorded one tackle and broke up a pass while helping limit Amani Toomer to one reception for eight yards. Eli Manning completed just 12-of-31 passes for 152 yards with two interceptions and no touchdowns – the first time all season he had not thrown for a score. Newman also applied pressure on a blitz that resulted in Glenn's end zone interception in the second quarter. On special teams Newman recorded a career-long 26-yard punt return – the club's best of the season. In the last-minute victory over Kansas City (12/11), he recorded five tackles and broke up a pass. He also lined up at wide receiver for a play to start the second quarter. In the loss at Washington (12/18), he recorded three tackles, a tackle for a loss and broke up a pass despite suffering a blow to the head early in the game. In the big win at Carolina (12/24), he shadowed Pro Bowler Steve Smith all across the field and helped limit him to one catch for 18 yards on the day before Smith was ejected midway through the third quarter. Newman finished the day with three tackles and two passes defended, giving him a career-high 15 for the season. In the season ending loss to St. Louis (1/1/06), he recorded his fourth six-tackle game of the season while helping limit the Rams to 147 net passing yards. For the night Tory Holt and Isaac Bruce were limited to five catches for 48 yards. Offensively he logged his first career carry, picking up four yards on an end around. As a returner he fielded three punts, returning them for a total of 13 yards.

out and finish the year in solid fashion. He closed out the season with a team-high 13 pass deflections while placing fourth with 66 tackles. He also became the first player since Everson Walls in 1981-82 to lead the team outright in interceptions in consecutive seasons with his four interceptions. He opened the season at Minnesota (9/12) by recording three tackles. The following week against Cleveland (9/19), he picked off his first pass of the season while helping limit the Browns passing game to 66 net yards and their starting receivers to four catches for 50 yards. He also recorded his first career punt return in the third quarter with a seven-yard pick up. He was second on the team at Washington (9/27) with 10 tackles. He totaled a team- and career-high 13 tackles the following week against Pittsburgh (10/17). He broke up a season-high two passes against Detroit (10/31) before matching that with four tackles and two pass deflections at Cincinnati (11/7). The following week against Philadelphia (11/15), Newman finished with five stops, including his first tackle for a loss. He totaled four tackles and forced his first career fumble to end a Ravens drive at the end of the first half at Baltimore (11/21). On Thanksgiving Day against Chicago (11/25), he recorded his second interception of the season when he picked off a Jonathan Quinn fourth quarter pass. He returned the theft 11 yards to the Bears 42-yard line, setting up the Cowboys final touchdown. For the game, the Bears were limited to 91 net passing yards. Newman kicked off the final month of the season by tallying eight tackles, breaking up a pass and forcing a fumble at Seattle (12/6). His second quarter forced fumble was recovered by Lynn Scott, who returned it 26 yards to set up Dallas on the Seattle 39-yard line. The ensuing drive resulted in a touchdown that got Dallas back in the game at 14-12. At Philadelphia (12/19), Newman totaled two tackles, broke up two passes and picked off his third pass of the season. He shadowed Eagles receiver Terrell Owens all over the field, limiting him to two catches for 24 yards prior to Owens' third quarter ankle injury. For the day, Eagles receivers were held to four catches for 58 yards, while Donovan McNabb – the NFL's third ranked passer (107.2) entering the game – was limited to a 62.0 rating with two interceptions. He posted three stops and intercepted his fourth pass of the season against Washington (12/26) while helping limit the Redskins to 149 passing yards. Newman closed out the season at the N.Y. Giants (1/2/05) with one tackle as the Giants threw away from his side of the field all night. The Giants ended the game with only 137 net passing yards.

2003: Newman became just the third rookie cornerback in club history to start a season-opener, and he went on to lead the team, finish tied for 10th in the NFC and tied for the lead among all NFL rookies with four interceptions. He was also second on the club with 14 passes defended. A solid force against the run as well, Newman was fifth on the team with 80 tackles, including six for losses (second best on the team). With 80 tackles, he became just the fifth cornerback in club history to record 80-or-more stops in a season since 1979 when the club began keeping tackle records. His play helped the Dallas defense jump from a ranking of 18th in 2002 to tops in the league with a 75 yard-per-game improvement in 2003. Dallas was the only team in the league that had an opponents' pass completion percentage under 50%. In the season opener against Atlanta (9/7), he recorded five tackles. Along with Mario Edwards, he helped limit the Falcons wide receivers to six catches for 89 yards, including just two catches for 30 yards by Peerless Price. Newman recorded his first career interception when he picked off a second quarter pass intended for Jeremy Shockey at the Cowboys 20-yard line to end a potential scoring drive at the N.Y. Giants (9/15). He also tied for second on the team with five tackles and broke up a season-high three passes. At the N.Y. Jets (9/28), he recorded four tackles and helped limit the Jets starting wide receivers (Curtis Conway and Wayne Chrebet) to six catches for 61 yards (10.2 avg.). Newman recorded his first career sack when he ran Jeff Blake out of bounds on a scramble against Arizona (10/5). The Cardinals were limited to 119 net passing yards, including just four catches for 39 yards by their starting wide receivers. With four tackles, he helped limit the Eagles to 115 net passing yards, including just four catches for 42 yards by their three wide receivers, in the Cowboys 23-21 win against Philadelphia (10/12). Newman then broke up two passes and helped hold the Lions to 74 net passing yards, including just two catches for 30 yards by the Lions wide receivers, at Detroit (10/19). At Tampa Bay (10/26), the Dallas defense limited the Bucs to 133 net passing yards. Newman's play against Washington (11/2) held starting wide receivers Coles and Gardner to five catches for 41 yards (8.2 avg.) and the Redskins to 124 net passing yards. Against Buffalo (11/9), Newman logged five tackles and broke up a pass. While the starting receiver duo of Eric Moulds and Josh Reed recorded nine catches, they were held to 62 yards (6.9 avg.) with a long of 11 yards as the Bills managed just 85 net passing yards on the day. Newman was second on the team with seven tackles and helped force Jake Delhomme into a nine-of-24 passing day (37.5%) in the Cowboys 24-20 win over NFC Champion Carolina (11/23). He topped that four days later with a season-high eight tackles against Miami (11/27) on Thanksgiving Day. Newman also recovered a Ricky Williams fumble at the Dallas 28-yard line to end a potential scoring drive. The following week at Philadelphia (12/7), he tied for the team lead with seven tackles. Newman's game continued to improve as the temperature dropped when he earned NFC Defensive Player of the Week honors for his play at Washington (12/14). In that game, he tied the club record and became the fourth player, and first rookie, to record three interceptions in a game. The first ended a Redskins scoring drive at the Dallas seven-yard line. He returned the second 25 yards to the Redskins nine-yard line to set up a Dallas touchdown, and the third led to a Dallas field goal. He also added six tackles as Washington was limited to 161 total yards, including just 55 through the air – the lowest total by an opponent since Nov. 11, 2001 at Atlanta. Washington wide receivers were held to four catches for 29 yards in the game, including none by Coles. At New Orleans (12/28) in the regular season finale, Newman recorded six tackles and a tackle of Deuce McAllister for a three-yard loss on third-and-goal from the three-yard line to force a field goal on the Saints opening possession. Newman added five tackles at Carolina (1/3/04) in his postseason debut.

The event, annually co-chaired by former Cowboys quarterbacks Roger Staubach and Troy Aikman, raises over $400,000 to help fund pediatric oncology research. Newman participated in the 2004 Rookie Club Alumni visit to ChildCareGroup where the alumni rookie club members joined the '04 rookies to carve pumpkins with 140 preschool children from low-income families. He kept very active in the community during the 2005 off-season participating in the St. Valentine's Leukemia and Lymphoma Society Style Show. For two consecutive years, Newman and teammate Lousaka Polite distributed bicycle helmets to underprivileged children in honor of Brain Awareness Week hosted by UT Dallas. He also attended Stars of Texas...Racing Against the Odds fundraiser hosted by local radio personality and newspaper columnist Randy Galloway at Lone Star Park for the American Diabetes Association in 2005 and 2006 – an event that helped raise over $300,000 in '06. Newman has also been a fan favorite at the Cowboys annual NFL Draft Day party as he attends to sign autographs for the team's loyal fans. PRO: One of the most prolific receivers in league history and one of the most entertaining players in all of sports, Terrell Owens brings his big-play ability and toughness to the Cowboys offense in 2006. A five-time Pro Bowl selection (2000-04) and five-time All-Pro honoree (1998, 2000-02, 2004), Owens has hauled in 716 receptions for 10,535 yards and 101 touchdowns in his first 10 NFL seasons. His 101 career touchdown receptions, ranks fourth on the NFL's all-time list behind Jerry Rice (197), Cris Carter (130) and Marvin Harrison (110). At 74.2 yards-per-game, Owens has the seventh best yards-per-game average in NFL history. He will begin the 2006 season 20th in NFL history with 10,535 receiving yards and 22nd in league annals with 716 career receptions. He will also enter the 2006 season with a streak of 136 consecutive regular season games with at least one reception, the third longest active streak in the NFL behind Harrison (155) and Keyshawn Johnson (151). Owens last failed to catch a pass in a game on Oct. 14, 1996 at Green Bay. With six career 1,000-yard receiving seasons and four seasons with 80-or-more receptions, Owens' career has been filled with incredible single-game performances and memorable milestones. On Dec. 17, 2000, Owens produced the most prolific receiving game in NFL history with an NFL record 20 receptions against Chicago. The 20 receptions broke a 50-year old record of 18 set by Tom Fears of the Rams. In 2004 Owens returned from a surgically-repaired ankle in just seven weeks to catch nine passes for 122 yards for the Eagles in Super Bowl XXXIX. Owens was the second player in NFL history to record five seasons with 13 or more touchdowns, joining Jerry Rice who did it eight times, and with 24 career multiple touchdown receiving games, he trails only Rice (44), Carter (29) and Don Hutson (28) in that category (Harrison also has 24). With 36 career 100-yard receiving games, Owens is tied with Andre Reed for 16th in NFL history and is fifth among active players behind Harrison (53), Randy Moss (45), Isaac Bruce (39) and Torry Holt (39). Since the beginning of the 2000 season, Owens has been one of the elite receivers in the NFL, ranking among the top five in receptions, receiving yards and touchdowns over that time:

Top NFL Receivers since 2000

Touchdowns
1. Marvin Harrison	77
2. Terrell Owens	71
3. Randy Moss	70

In addition to his pass catching ability, Owens is also one of league's best run blocking receivers, often seen providing downfield escorts for teammates. Owens signed with Dallas on March 18 after his release from Philadelphia, where he played for two seasons and helped guide the Eagles to the Super Bowl following the 2004 season. He was acquired by the Eagles in a highly-publicized three-way trade involving Baltimore and San Francisco on March 16, 2003. Originally a third round draft choice (98th overall) out of Tennessee-Chattanooga in 1996, Owens is a tenacious worker on and off the football field.

2005: Prior to his team imposed suspension following the seventh game of the season, Owens ranked third in the NFL in receptions (47), receiving yards (763) and was tied for second in the league with six receiving touchdowns. He recorded four 100-yard receiving games and scored in five-of-seven games to start the year. Owens opened the season with seven receptions for 112 yards at Atlanta (9/12). With five receptions for 143 yards and two touchdowns against his former team San Francisco (9/18), he became the first Eagle to start the season with two consecutive 100-yard receiving games since Harold Jackson in 1972. He also became the 24th player in NFL history to reach the 10,000-yard receiving plateau. Against Oakland (9/25), he had nine receptions for 80 yards and a touchdown, the 100th touchdown of his career. Owens set highs as an Eagle for receptions (11) and receiving yards (171) along with a touchdown at Kansas City (10/2). He was limited to five catches for 50 yards at Dallas (10/9). Against San Diego (10/23) he caught the 100th receiving touchdown of his career among his seven receptions. In his final game as an Eagle, Owens recorded the longest reception of his career, a 91-yard touchdown grab, and finished the day with 154 yards receiving. The touchdown was the 101st receiving score of his career, moving him into fourth all-time. The following week he was suspended by the team and then deactivated the final nine games of the season.

2004: In his first season as an Eagle, Owens had an outstanding year and posted a number of career-best totals despite missing the final two games of the season due to injury. He was selected a Pro Bowl starter for the NFC squad and also earned consensus first team All-Pro honors. He finished the season with 77 catches for 1,200 yards and 14 touchdowns (1.0 per-game). His 14 touchdowns was the third best total in the NFL and broke the team record. He also had a career-best seven 100-yard games, including five consecutive at one point, both of which were Philadelphia records. In his Eagles debut, Owens tied a career high with three touchdown receptions against the N.Y. Giants (9/12). Only two other players in NFL history have recorded three touchdowns in their first game with a new team: Bobby Mitchell, Was., 1962; and Anthony Allen, Was., 1987. He finished the day with a season-high eight catches for 68 yards. At Detroit (9/26) he recorded six receptions for 107 yards and a score, beginning a string of five straight games with over 100 yards receiving. The next week at Chicago (10/3), he tied his season-high with eight receptions for 110 yards and a score, his fourth consecutive game with a touchdown catch. He had 123 receiving yards on four receptions against Carolina (10/17). With four catches for 109 yards and two touchdowns at Cleveland (10/24), he and Todd Pinkston (6 catches for 100 yards) became the first Eagles to notch 100 yards receiving in the same game since Calvin Williams and Fred Barnett against Denver on Sept. 20, 1992. The following week against Baltimore (10/31) he set an Eagles record by posting his fifth consecutive 100-yard receiving game with 101 yards on eight receptions. This streak was the first time in his career he had recorded more than three straight 100-yard games. Since 1970, only Michael Irvin and Isaac Bruce (both in 1995) have held longer streaks. He also scored the game-winning touchdown on an 11-yard catch and run. With three touchdowns at Dallas (11/15), Owens became the first player to post a touchdown reception in seven-straight Monday Night Football games. With 15 touchdowns in 18 MNF games, he trails only Jerry Rice (33 TDs/44 games). He finished the Cowboys contest with six catches for 134 yards and the three scores. Owens had a season-high 161 receiving yards and a touchdown on a season-high tying eight receptions against Green Bay (12/5) and teamed with Brian Westbrook (11 receptions for 156 yards) to become just the second pair of Eagles to each gain over 150 yards receiving in the same game. Tommy McDonald (4-162) and Timmy Brown (5-199) accomplished the feat at St. Louis on Dec. 16, 1962. It was also his career-best seventh 100-yard receiving game of the season. Against Dallas (12/19) Owens had six receptions for 46 yards and suffered a fractured ankle in the third quarter on a tackle by Roy Williams. He missed the final two weeks of the season as well as the club's first two playoff games. He returned from the severe ankle injury in less than seven weeks to post nine receptions for 122 yards against New England (2/6/05) in Super Bowl XXXIX.

2003: In his final year in San Francisco, Owens recorded 80 receptions for 1,102 yards and nine touchdowns and made his fourth consecutive appearance in Hawaii as a member of the NFC Pro Bowl squad. He finished his 49ers career second only to Jerry Rice in total touchdowns (83), receptions (592), receiving yards (8,572), receiving touchdowns (81) and 100-yard receiving games (25). Owens opened the season with seven receptions for 112 yards against Chicago (9/7). He had a season-high eight receptions against Cleveland (9/21) for 90 yards. Two weeks later Owens registered a season-high 155 yards on a season-high tying eight receptions, including a 61-yard touchdown catch, against Pittsburgh (11/17) on Monday Night Football. At Cincinnati (12/14) he again had eight receptions, this time for 127 yards and a touchdown.

2002: Despite missing the final two weeks of the regular season with a groin injury, Owens finished the year with a career-high 100 receptions for 1,300 yards and 13 touchdowns. His 100 receptions tied him for fourth in the NFL, and he was eighth in the NFL in receiving yards. His 13 receiving touchdowns led the NFL. He caught six passes for 84 yards and two touchdowns, including the game-winning 37-yard score in the fourth quarter at Seattle (10/14). Against Arizona (10/27) he caught eight passes for 132 yards and two touchdowns, including a 61-yarder in the second quarter. Owens grabbed 12 passes for a season-high 191 yards – the second best receiving total of his career. Included in that total were three receptions on the game-winning drive in overtime. He led the team with seven catches for 51 yards against Kansas City (11/10) while also rushing twice for 23 yards. Owens continued to perform against the AFC West with seven receptions for 171 yards (24.4 avg.) and two touchdowns, including a season-long 76-yard score in the third quarter, at San Diego (11/17). A season-high 13 receptions against Philadelphia (11/25) went for 166 yards and two touchdowns. Owens had another double-digit reception performance at Dallas (12/8) with 12 catches for 123 yards and two touchdowns, including the game-winning eight-yard score with 12 seconds remaining. His 11-yard reception on third-and-10 with 23 seconds remaining set-up the winning score. The following week against Green Bay (12/15) Owens reached 100 receptions for the season when he caught eight passes for 75 yards, including a 45-yard third-quarter touchdown. A groin injury sidelined him the final two weeks of the regular season, but he returned to action with postseason career-highs of nine receptions for 177 yards (19.7 avg.) and two touchdowns against the N.Y. Giants (1/5/03). His first quarter 76-yard touchdown reception was the second-longest scoring play in team postseason history and a postseason career best. It was his second career 100-yard postseason receiving game. Owens also completed his first career pass with a 25-yard completion to Tai Streets. In the NFC Divisional Playoff Game at Tampa Bay (1/12/03) he had four receptions for 35 yards.

2001: For the first time in his career, Owens played and started in every game, including postseason. He finished with 93 receptions (fourth in the NFC, ninth in the NFL) for 1,412 yards (second in the NFC, third in the NFL) and a career-high 16 touchdowns, which led the NFL. Named to his second consecutive Pro Bowl roster and a consensus first-team All-Pro selection, Owens had six 100-yard receiving games on the year and posted five multi-touchdown performances. Owens caught a game-high seven passes for 93 yards, including a 40-yard reception during the 49ers game-tying drive at the close of regulation, against Atlanta (9/23). His diving touchdown grab at the N.Y. Jets (10/1) was San Francisco's lone touchdown drive of the day. He finished the game with four receptions for 38 yards and the score while also rushing once for four yards. His first 100-yard receiving game of the season was an eight-catch, 118-yard, two-touchdown performance against Carolina (10/7). In the game he surpassed the 5,000-yard mark for career receiving yards. At Atlanta (10/14) Owens posted season-highs with nine receptions for 183 yards and a career-high three touchdowns. He scored the game-tying touchdown with 17 seconds remaining in regulation and then followed with the game-winning touchdown reception of 52 yards in overtime. All nine receptions came in the second half. He had another nine-catch performance (125 yards) against Detroit (11/4) while also recording his third multi-touchdown game of season with two scores (30 and seven yards). He matched that the following week against New Orleans (11/11) with 25- and five-yard touchdown scores among his eight receptions for 100 yards. He caught seven passes for 99 yards, including a game-tying seven-yard touchdown pass from Jeff Garcia with one second remaining in regulation, at Carolina (11/18). He added four receptions for 64 yards, including a 32-yard touchdown reception, against Philadelphia (12/22). In the regular season finale at New Orleans (1/6/01), he caught two passes, 56 and 60-yard touchdown grabs for 116 yards. In the NFC Wild Card Game at Green Bay (1/13) Owens caught four passes for 40 yards.

2000: The 2000 season was a break-out year for Owens as he ranked fifth in NFL with 97 receptions for a career-high 1,451 yards (third in NFC). He was also third in the NFL with 13 touchdown receptions, including four multiple-touchdown games. Overall he had five 100-yard receiving games on the year and earned his first career Pro Bowl nomination. He was also named first-team All-Pro by the Associated Press. He then recorded 106 receiving yards and two touchdowns on a team-high six receptions at Dallas (9/24). An injured toe at New Orleans (11/5) did not prevent him from recording a team-high 97 receiving yards on six receptions. Because of the turf toe injury, Owens did not start against Kansas City (11/12) and was limited to one catch for six yards. The 49ers deactivated him with the toe injury against Atlanta (11/19). He came back with four receptions for a team-high 93 yards at San Diego (12/3) and then caught six passes for 129 yards, including a 69-yard touchdown catch against New Orleans (12/10). The ankle injury kept him sidelined the following two weeks, but he came back with five receptions for 56 yards at New Orleans (11/14). PERSONAL: Born Terrell Eldorado Owens in Alexander City, Ala., he was a four-time letterman in football and track at Benjamin Russell High in Alexander City. He added three letters in basketball and one in baseball. The son of Marilyn Heard and Tit Russell, Owens has two sisters, Sharmaine Stowes (23) and Latasha Scales (31), and a brother, Victor Stowes (21). He celebrated his first NFL touchdown by doing the "bank-head bounce" dance for his mother. He nearly quit football to concentrate on basketball in high school, but was influenced not to by his prep football coach. Owens's love for the game of basketball is very serious. So serious that he built a full-size basketball gymnasium in his home and uses it as part of his offseason conditioning. Owens won a celebrity slam dunk competition at the 2000 NBA All-Star game in Oakland and played five games with the Adirondack Wildcats of the United States Basketball League during the 2002 offseason, averaging 4.2 points and 1.2 rebounds-per-game. He won the 100-meter race at the Superstars competition two consecutive years (2000-01). On Sept. 6, 2005, Owens paid a visit to Houston and spent time with victims of Hurricane Katrina who had been relocated from New Orleans to the Astrodome. With the help of NFL Auctions, he also auctioned off his 2004 Philadelphia Eagles NFC Championship ring in order to raise money for hurricane relief. The winning bid was for $48,200. Owens holds one charity very near and dear to his heart, the Alzheimer's Association. His family is personally touched by Alzheimer's as his grandmother, Alice Black, is afflicted by the disease. In order to help find a cure, he has served as the celebrity chairperson for the Alzheimer's Association and addressed Congress in 2003 to request more funding for Alzheimer's research. In 2004, he hosted a charity weekend in Atlanta, "Stars with a Cause," that benefited the Atlanta Chapter of the National Alzheimer's Foundation. The weekend included a night of bowling, billiards, dominoes and cards. On Saturday, the stars made a visit to AG Rhodes Home, an Atlanta Alzheimer's care center to play bingo and sing karaoke. A celebrity basketball game also took place at Owens's home gym. Owens majored in merchandising at Tennessee-Chattanooga and was inducted into the school's Athletics Hall of Fame in 2003. He resides in suburban Atlanta in the offseason.

NFL: 3rd Year ★ Cowboys: 3rd Year

COWBOYS

PRO: Stephen Peterman was the anchor of an LSU offensive line that paved the way for the Tigers run to the Sugar Bowl game and a victory over Oklahoma to capture the national championship in 2003. He came to Dallas as the Cowboys third round pick (83rd overall) in the 2004 NFL Draft with high expectations but suffered torn knee ligaments in the club's final pre-season game, sidelining him for his entire rookie season. After a year of intense rehabilitation and time studying in the classroom, Peterman returned to the practice field in time for the club's 2005 training camp. With stability at the guard spot in 2005, Peterman was inactive for 11 games before seeing limited time on special teams through three of the final five contests.

2005: Peterman was on the practice field to start training camp after spending his rookie season rehabbing a torn ACL and MCL he suffered in his first training camp. He was inactive for the first 11 games of the season but cracked the game-day roster at the N.Y. Giants (12/4), making his NFL debut on special teams. He was inactive the next two weeks before playing on special teams at Carolina (12/24) and the season finale against St. Louis (1/1/06).

2004: Peterman tore the ACL and MCL in his right knee in the final preseason game against Kansas City (9/2) and was placed on injured reserve the next day. He underwent surgery on Sept. 7 to repair the injury and spent the entire season rehabilitating the injured knee.

COLLEGE: An All-America and All-Southeastern Conference first-team selection as a senior, Peterman was a team leader and anchor of an offensive line that helped lead the LSU Tigers to the SEC title and a win over Oklahoma in the Sugar Bowl to capture the 2003 national title. For his career, he appeared in 48 games at LSU, starting 35. He moved to right guard in his senior season, after starting 25 games over the previous two years at left guard, and allowed just one sack while playing a major role in leading an offense that averaged 418.4 yards-per-game. A first-team All-Southeastern Conference pick as a junior, Peterman started the entire season at left guard and allowed only one sack. The Tigers finished 8-5 overall, tying Arkansas for the SEC West Division title. Peterman started his collegiate career as a tight end and spent his freshman season at defensive end. He made the switch to offense as a sophomore and started all but one game at left guard during a very successful second season, allowing only one quarterback sack. He played a key role in the Tigers 10-3 season that featured a win over second ranked Tennessee in the SEC Championship Game and a 47-34 win over No. 7 Illinois in the Sugar Bowl.

PERSONAL: Peterman attended St. Stanislaus High School in Bay St. Louis, Miss. He was rated the 18th best player in Mississippi by SuperPrep Magazine and was a first-team all-state selection and a two-time all-district choice. As a senior, Peterman caught 14 passes for 150 yards and one touchdown and was rated the best tight end in the state. He was selected for the Mississippi All-Star Game. He also played basketball in high school. Peterman majored in general studies at LSU. Despite an intense rehabilitation schedule for his knee, Peterman got involved in the Dallas-Ft. Worth community. He attended a local Arlington high school football game to present the Bank of America/Dallas Cowboys Coach of the Week award and $2000 grant. He also set up the Stephen Peterman Foundation to provide aid to disadvantaged children and to enhance the lives of terminally ill children in Louisiana, Mississippi and Texas. In the spring of 2005 and 2006, Peterman joined forces with fellow Louisiana State University (LSU) alumnus David Toms to host the Stephen Peterman Foundation and David Toms Foundation Charity Dinner in Fort Worth, Texas. Proceeds from the fundraising dinner benefited Happy Hill Farm Academy/ Home - a residential school/farm where socially and academically disadvantaged youth are given a second chance to prepare for a productive future - and the David Toms Foundation. He is married to the former Colleen Scheyd, and the couple have two sons, Stephen Frederick Jr. (8/26/03) and Timothy Joseph (4/26/05).

COWBOYS

PRO: The Cowboys drafted Rob Petitti (pronounced puh-TEE-tee) with their second sixth round choice (209th overall) in the 2005 NFL Draft. Later round offensive linemen are not usually called up to see considerable action in their rookie seasons, but Petitti answered the bell with 16 straight starts in his first NFL campaign. While bringing obvious size and athleticism to the table, Petitti showed excellent poise in handling the pressure of being a rookie starter, and he made continual improvement as the season progressed. With additional strength added in the offseason, he should be an even more productive player for the future. As a four-year starter at left tackle at the University of Pittsburgh, Petitti displayed excellent flexibility and balance while being able to quickly get off the ball and onto his blocks. He became the first Pitt offensive lineman to earn All-Big East honors three times since Ruben Brown – an eight-time NFL Pro Bowler – accomplished the feat from 1992-94. Last fall, he made a smooth transition from his left tackle position at Pitt to the right side in Dallas. He started all four 2005 preseason games at right tackle and won the starting job after a battle with Jacob Rogers, Torrin Tucker and Kurt Vollers.

2005: As one of two offensive players (along with Larry Allen) to play every offensive snap for Dallas last year, Petitti was thrust into the fire as a rookie starter at right tackle. He handled the challenge with unusual poise for a first-year player and helped Dallas to a 9-7 record and the brink of a playoff berth. He made his first career NFL start in the season opening win at San Diego (9/11). In doing so, he became the first rookie since Dave Widell in 1988 to start an opener at the right tackle position for Dallas. He was also only the second rookie to start a season opener at the position in club history. The Dallas offense rolled up 301 yards on the day in coming from behind to defeat the Chargers. In the Monday night loss to Washington (9/19), the line did not allow a sack in 36 pass plays, marking the first time Dallas shut out an opposing defense in sacks since Dec. 8, 2002 against San Francisco. In the win at San Francisco (9/25), the line allowed just two sacks in 40 pass plays as the Cowboys rolled up 443 yards of total offense. Bledsoe's 363 yards passing – with two touchdowns – was the eighth best passing performance in club history. In the win over Philadelphia (10/9), the line did not allow a sack of Bledsoe for a second time. Petitti's effort helped the Dallas offense rack up 456 total yards, the most since gaining 541 yards at Washington on Sept. 12, 1999. In his first career outing against his hometown team, the N.Y. Giants (10/16), Petitti's blocking helped Bledsoe complete 26 passes (37 atts.) for 312 yards en route to his second 300-yard passing game of the season and 30th of his career. That game also marked the season ending injury of Pro Bowl left tackle Flozell Adams – a setback that hurt the Dallas front while also adding more pressure to Petitti as the year would progress. In the following week's last-minute loss at Seattle (10/23), the running game racked up 164 yards at a 4.2 yard-per-carry clip. In the win over Arizona (10/30), he helped lead the way as Marion Barber rushed for 127 yards and two touchdowns on 27 carries, the first 100-yard rushing game of the season for Dallas. He also assisted in giving Bledsoe the time to complete a career-best 79.2% of his passes (19-of-24) for 220 yards and a score. In the Monday night victory at Philadelphia (11/14), Bledsoe completed 70.8% (17-of-24) of his passes behind the O-line's protection. Petitti limited Jevon Kearse to two tackles on the night. In the win over Detroit (11/20), the line allowed just one sack in 24 pass plays and the running game generated 149 yards. In the overtime loss to Denver on Thanksgiving Day (11/24), Bledsoe was sacked just one time while completing a season-high 29-of-44 pass attempts for 232 yards and two touchdowns. In the last-minute win over Kansas City (12/11), Petitti and the line allowed Bledsoe time to throw for 332 yards and three touchdowns while the running game picked up 129 yards and a score on the ground. The 445 yards of total offense against the Chiefs was the second-best total of the season for Dallas. In the thrilling come-from-behind win at Carolina (12/24), Petitti's run blocking helped Julius Jones rush for 194 yards, the fourth best performance in club history. The Dallas offense also racked up 22 first downs, 394 total yards and 214 rushing.

COLLEGE: Petitti closed out his collegiate career at Pitt in solid fashion, earning second-team All-America honors from The Sports News and College Football News and third-team honors from the Associated Press while earning his third consecutive All-Big East selection. He became the first Panther offensive lineman to earn all-league honors for three straight years since Ruben Brown (1992-94). Pitt finished the regular season with an 8-3 record and earned the school's first January 1st bowl game appearance (Fiesta) since 1983. As an All-Big East performer as a junior in 2003, Petitti was part of a line that allowed the Panthers to average 405.7 total yards and 32 points-per-game. As a sophomore in 2002, Petitti started all 13 contests and earned second-team All-Big East honors. As a redshirt freshman in 2001, Petitti started all 12 games at left tackle and was selected the Panthers Most Valuable Offensive Lineman while being selected to the Football News All-Freshman Team and The Sporting News Freshman All-America second-team. Petitti was redshirted as a true freshman.

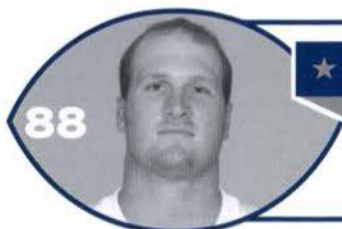

PERSONAL: Rob Christopher Petitti was a two-time all-division, all-shore, all-county and all-New Jersey Group 1 selection at Rumson-Fairhaven High School in Rumson, N.J. He was a three-year starter as a two-way lineman that recorded 90 tackles over his final two prep campaigns. As a sophomore, he helped lead Rumson-Fairhaven to the division championship, earning SuperPrep All-Northeast Region and PrepStar All-East Region accolades. Pettiti lettered three times in football and twice in basketball and was selected to play in the New Jersey against New York Governor's Bowl. As a rookie last year, Pettiti was a member of the Cowboys 2005 Rookie Club – a program designed to introduce rookie team members to community service in the Dallas area which included work with The Salvation Army, Children's Medical Center Dallas and Meals on Wheels. He also continued his involvement in the community into the 2006 offseason, including joining Cowboys Linebacker DeMarcus Ware and Defensive End Marcus Spears and a dozen other teammates in support of the Second Annual Taste of the NFL: The Ultimate Dallas Cowboys Tailgate Party which benefited the North Texas Food Bank. The event helped raise money that will provide over 330,000 meals to North Texans in need. Pettiti also attended Stars of Texas...Racing Against the Odds fundraiser hosted by local radio personality and newspaper columnist Randy Galloway at Lone Star Park for the American Diabetes Association – an event that helped raise over $300,000. In June, he traveled to Puerto Rico with teammate Marco Rivera to serve as a football coach in Rivera's eighth annual camp in San Juan. He majored in administration of justice at Pitt.

COWBOYS

PRO: Tight end Brett Pierce has filled a valuable role for the Cowboys the last two seasons, providing valuable depth and powerful blocking to the Dallas offense. Pierce, who is a solid blocker at the line of scrimmage, has contributed in two-tight end formations and on special teams in his first two seasons in Dallas. In addition to being able to hold a block, he has the athletic ability to beat linebackers and make plays in the passing game. This versatility – and his ability to contribute on special teams – are what earned him a roster spot. His second season in Dallas showed promise as he became a full-time contributor as a backup tight end and special teamer, however, his season came to an end after tearing the ACL in his left knee on kickoff coverage against Detroit (11/20). After spending the offseason rehabbing the injury, Pierce will look to make his return to the field as the Cowboys use more multiple tight end sets. Pierce originally joined the Cowboys as a free agent signed off the Baltimore Ravens practice squad Oct. 3, 2004.

2005: In his second NFL season, Pierce was making waves on special teams and finished with eight tackles before a torn ACL in Week 10 put an end to his sophomore campaign. He also added his first career catches before landing on injured reserve, Against Washington (9/19), Pierce recorded his first career NFL reception with a 10-yard snag from Drew Bledsoe to convert a third down. He also led the squad with three special teams tackles. He added a special teams tackle at San Francisco (9/25) and again against Philadelphia (10/9) – pinning the Eagles at the 12-yard line to open the second half. Pierce also recovered a Patrick Crayton fumble on a first quarter punt that allowed Dallas to keep possession and set up the team's second touchdown of the game. At Seattle (10/23), he had a special teams tackle and helped limit the Seahawks to an 18.0 return average on two returns. He added his second catch of the season – a five-yarder – a special teams tackle and a forced fumble that Arizona (10/30) recovered. He earned his first career start at Philadelphia (11/14) as the Cowboys opened in a three-tight end set and contributed a special teams stop. Pierce's season came to an end the next week against Detroit (11/20) when he tore the ACL in his left knee on kickoff coverage. He was placed on injured reserve Nov. 21 and underwent successful surgery to repair the knee on Dec. 16.

2004: Pierce signed with the Baltimore Ravens as a free agent following the NFL Draft and caught six passes for 53 yards during preseason play. He was released by Baltimore at the end of preseason and quickly signed to their practice squad, where he spent the first four weeks of the season. He signed to Dallas's active roster Oct. 3 and saw his first NFL action against the N.Y. Giants (10/10). His blocking against the Giants helped the Cowboys rush for 166 yards. He recorded his first career special teams tackle against Pittsburgh (10/17), then recorded another against Detroit (10/31). At Cincinnati (11/7), he returned his first career kickoff when he fielded a short kick at the Dallas 22-yard line and returned it 13 yards to set the offense up at the 35-yard line. He earned his first career start against Philadelphia (11/15) when the club opened in a two-tight end set. After being inactive against Chicago (11/25), at Seattle (12/6) and against New Orleans (12/12), he returned to the playing field at Philadelphia (12/19) and saw action in multiple tight end sets. He was inactive for the final two games of the season.

COLLEGE: After missing virtually all of his junior year rehabilitating from surgery to repair the ACL in his left knee, Pierce returned to the playing field for his senior season and caught 11 passes for 84 yards while starting 11 games. His junior season came to a halt when he tore the ACL in his left knee in the first quarter of the season opener, forcing him to miss the remainder of the season. He had one catch for eight yards before the injury. Pierce had a breakout sophomore campaign, posting 258 receiving yards and three touchdowns on 19 receptions, the most catches by a Cardinal tight end since Greg Clark caught 20 passes in 1996. Pierce also contributed 14 special teams tackles to earn the Phil Moffat Award as the team's top defensive special teams player. He started three of 11 games as a redshirt freshman and caught seven passes for 41 yards.

PERSONAL: Brett Clayton Pierce was a SuperPrep and PrepStar All-America and two-time all-state tight end at Columbia River High School in Vancouver, Wash. He was also a two-time Clark County Defensive Player of the Year as a defensive end, Clark County Player of the Year and County Athlete of the Year. He earned three letters each in football, basketball and baseball, earning all-league honors in baseball as a sophomore and junior and in basketball as a junior. Pierce had a double major at Stanford in Civil Engineering and Management Sciences and Engineering. In the offseason he had an internship in commercial real estate with the Staubach Company in Dallas. As part of an NFL-NFLPA initiative to assist players in preparing for their post-playing careers, Pierce took part in the NFL Business Management and Entrepreneurial Program at the Harvard Business School during the 2006 off-season. He was part of the Cowboys 2004 Rookie Club – a program designed to introduce rookie team members to community service in the Dallas area. He and his fellow rookie teammates participated in visits to various non-profit organizations serving children and adults, including the NFL Play It Smart program at Dallas's Lincoln High School, ChildCareGroup, NFL United Way Hometown Huddle and The Salvation Army.

COWBOYS

PRO: Lousaka Polite (pronounced LOO-socka Puh-LITE) is an undrafted free agent success story and a testament to the benefits of hard work and determination. As a rookie in 2004, he worked his way up from the practice squad to a late season call-up on the active roster. In his second NFL season he had an impressive training camp, won the starting fullback position and went on to enjoy a productive season as a regular in the Cowboys lineup. Noted as one of the team's most intelligent players, Polite's developing NFL career will take a new twist in 2006 as the Cowboys will use fewer formations that feature the traditional fullback position and more looks that employ two tight ends. His versatility and football instincts will again be put to the test as he takes on another challenge in his still young NFL career. A powerful blocker who has always displayed a thorough knowledge of his assignments, Polite has also proven to be a solid route runner and pass receiver while coming out of the backfield as a fullback as well as a solid special teams player.

2005: As the only fullback on the Dallas roster, Polite earned his first career NFL start in the Cowboys thrilling season opening win at San Diego (9/11). He finished the game as the Cowboys leader in special teams tackles with two. Two weeks later in the win at San Francisco (9/25), he recorded his first NFL carry, gaining two-yards on a third-and-one play to pick up a first down and keep alive a Dallas touchdown drive. In the Cowboys key division win over Philadelphia (10/9), he recorded his first career touchdown with a 12-yard reception from Drew Bledsoe in the second quarter that put Dallas up 24-3. It was also his first catch of the season. In the win over Arizona (10/30), Polite had a five-yard reception, but his blocking was instrumental in Marion Barber rushing for 127 yards and two touchdowns, the first 100-yard rushing performance by a Dallas running back on the season. He had a three-yard reception in the come-from-behind win at Philadelphia (11/14) on Monday Night Football. In the win over Detroit (11/20), he added a 10-yard reception to set up the Dallas offense with a first-and-goal from the Lions one-yard line. In the overtime loss to Denver (11/24) on Thanksgiving Day, he recorded a catch in his fourth straight game on an eight-yard reception. In the big win over Kansas City (12/11), Polite had a career-best three receptions for 33 yards, including a career-long 15-yarder. In the Christmas Eve win at Carolina (12/24), he added one reception for one yard, while his run blocking allowed Julius Jones to rush for 194 yards, the fourth best performance in club history. The Dallas offense racked up 22 first downs, 394 total yards and 24 points in the come-from-behind win.

2004: Polite joined the Cowboys as a rookie free agent after the NFL Draft. He was released at the end of training camp, and mid-way through the season, re-signed to the Dallas practice squad (Nov. 3). When fullback Richie Anderson was placed on injured reserve with a neck problem, Polite got the call to suit up, moving to the active roster on Dec. 28. He saw action in the season finale at the N.Y. Giants (1/2/05), getting time on special teams and at fullback. He recorded his first career reception, for a four-yard gain, and contributed the lead blocking that helped Jones rush for 148 yards and a touchdown on the night.

COLLEGE: Polite became the first three-time captain in Pitt history after starting at fullback through four seasons. He finished his collegiate campaign rushing 70 times for 258 yards and a touchdown while helping open holes for 1,528 rushing yards. As a junior in 2002, Polite posted 52 carries for 211 yards and two scores. He rushed for seven yards on 22 carries and nine receptions for 69 yards and a score as a sophomore. In his first active season, Polite started at fullback through every game, rushing for 109 yards and a touchdown on 36 carries. In 1999, he was not active and did not play in any games.

PERSONAL: Polite started at inside linebacker and fullback at Woodland Hills, Penn., High School. He earned first team all-conference honors as a senior carrying the ball 116 times for 1,022 yards (8.8 avg.) and 20 touchdowns. He also tallied 83 tackles on defense and participated on all special teams units. Besides lettering three times for the football team, Polite lettered three times in track and field and was a two-time finalist in the javelin. He earned his degree in psychology at Pitt. As a rookie, he was part of the Cowboys 2004 Rookie Club – a program designed to introduce rookie team members to community service in the Dallas area. He and his fellow rookie teammates participated in visits to various non-profit organizations serving children and adults, including the NFL Play It Smart program at Dallas's Lincoln High School, ChildCareGroup, NFL United Way Hometown Huddle and The Salvation Army. In the 2005 off-season, Polite kept involved in the community by participating in the annual Spina Bifida Bowl-a-thon – bowling with many of the children who are beneficiaries of the fundraising event. In 2005 and 2006, Polite joined teammate Terence Newman and UT Dallas to distribute bicycle helmets to underprivileged children, and he also signed autographs and interacted with fans at the team's annual NFL Draft Day Party hosted in appreciation for the club's loyal fans. During the holiday season, he annually volunteers to serve an early Thanksgiving Day meal provided by the team to over 300 deserving Salvation Army clients and he participates in the team's support of The Salvation Army Angel Tree program – providing Christmas gifts to children in need. Polite remained active in the community during the 2006 offseason as he attended Stars of Texas...Racing Against the Odds fundraiser hosted by local radio personality and newspaper columnist Randy Galloway at Lone Star Park for the American Diabetes Association – an event that helped raise over $300,000; the MDA Muscle Team Bash hosted by former Cowboy and FOX Sports announcer Daryl Johnston that raised over $200,000; and, he joined Cowboys Linebacker DeMarcus Ware and Defensive End Marcus Spears and a dozen other teammates in support of the Second Annual Taste of the NFL: The Ultimate Dallas Cowboys Tailgate Party which benefited the North Texas Food Bank – the event helped raise money that will provide over 330,000 meals to North Texans in need.

COWBOYS

PRO: Lost in the hoopla of first round draft choices DeMarcus Ware and Marcus Spears was the Cowboys drafting of Jay Ratliff in the seventh round (224th overall) of the 2005 NFL Draft to help shore up the inside of the line. A versatile athlete, Ratliff began his collegiate career as a tight end before spending two years as a defensive end and his final season as a defensive tackle. He has a blue-collar work ethic that allowed him to succeed at each position. He is a tough, aggressive lineman who has enough burst to collapse the pocket and an ability to knife into the backfield to flush out the quarterback. His versatility could come in handy as he battles for a spot in Dallas's defensive line rotation.

2005: Ratliff saw his first NFL action at Oakland (10/2) in the defensive line rotation and shared a sack with linebacker Scott Shanle. He earned his first start the next week against Philadelphia (10/9) as the Cowboys opened in their nickel package. He led all linemen with three stops and shared a sack with defensive end Greg Ellis – marking the second consecutive game he registered a sack. He was inactive against the Giants (10/16) before recording two tackles at Seattle (10/23). Against Arizona (10/30) he suffered a high right ankle sprain and was unable to return. He was placed on injured reserve on Nov. 1.

COLLEGE: After moving from defensive end to defensive tackle in his senior season, Ratliff started all 13 games and recorded a career-high tying 37 tackles, four stops for losses and a sack. He registered a career-high tying seven tackles at Alabama to earn SEC Defensive Lineman of the Week honors. He helped the Tigers finish a perfect 13-0 season against Virginia Tech in the Sugar Bowl by recording three tackles. Auburn finished 2004 second behind USC in the final Associated Press poll. Ratliff saw action in nine games as a junior reserve defensive end, totaling seven tackles, including one for a loss. Prior to his sophomore year, Ratliff moved from tight end to defensive end during spring drills, then proceeded to start eight-of-12 games and record a career-high 37 tackles, a career-high 10 stops for losses, two forced fumbles and a sack. As a freshman tight end, Ratliff saw action in all 12 games, earning one start and recorded three receptions for 38 yards.

PERSONAL: Jeremiah J. Ratliff earned all-state and honorable mention all-USA Today honors after catching 46 passes for 701 yards and seven touchdowns as a senior at Lowndes County High School in Valdosta, Ga. He finished his prep career rated as one of the top tight ends in the southeast. The health administration major also lettered in track and basketball for Lowndes, averaging 18 points and 18 rebounds-per-game for the basketball team as a junior. As a rookie, Ratliff was a member of the Cowboys 2005 Rookie Club – a program designed to introduce rookie team members to community service in the Dallas area which included work with The Salvation Army, Children's Medical Center Dallas and Meals on Wheels.

COWBOYS

PRO: Entering his third NFL season, Jacques Reeves has evolved from a seventh-round draft choice into a valuable component in the Cowboys pass defense and special teams coverage units. Reeves, who was a two-year starter at Purdue in the run-happy Big Ten, proved to be a solid acquisition as he immediately contributed in the team's nickel packages and on special teams. His versatility allowed him to see action in 15 games as a rookie. His progress and development continued in 2005, as he saw more extensive late-season action in the nickel after starting corner Anthony Henry suffered a groin injury that hobbled him for the second half of the season. Reeves's outstanding speed and solid athleticism should keep him in the mix for continued contributions in the future as valuable depth behind one of the NFL's top trios of cornerbacks in Henry, Terence Newman and Aaron Glenn. With each passing week in 2005, he gained more confidence and displayed improved playmaking ability. He also surfaced as a key contributor to the Cowboys special teams.

2005: In his second full season as a contributor in the Dallas secondary, Reeves finished the year with 11 tackles and four pass break-ups. He also ranked seventh on the club in special teams tackles with nine stops and recovered the Cowboys only opponents' fumble in the kicking game. In the Week Two Monday night loss to Washington (9/19), Reeves was second on the team with two special teams tackles. In the loss at Oakland (10/2), he led the team with a career-high four special teams tackles on punts, including one at the Raiders nine-yard line. It was the single-game high for special teams tackles by a Dallas player in 2005. In the last-minute loss at Seattle (10/23), he recovered a muffed punt at the Seattle nine-yard line to set up the Dallas offense in the red zone. In the thrilling Monday night win at Philadelphia (11/14), Reeves stepped up with a solid performance while taking over in the nickel package as Henry was sidelined with the groin injury. Reeves moved into the nickel lineup at right cornerback while Glenn moved to the left and Newman went into the slot. Reeves recorded two tackles and broke up two passes, including a last second pass to Reggie Brown that would have set up a potential game-winning field goal. That pass break-up was one of the biggest plays made by a Dallas defender all season long. His effort helped limit the Eagles to 178 net passing yards and an 8.7 yard-per-catch average. The Philadelphia wideouts had just one catch of over 10 yards (18-yard catch by Greg Lewis). In the overtime loss to Denver (11/24) on Thanksgiving Day, he recorded a tackle while playing right corner in the club's nickel with Henry again sidelined with the groin injury. The Broncos were limited to 149 net passing yards, and the Denver wide receivers had just six catches for 64 yards with just one catch – a 20-yarder – over 13 yards. In the following week's loss at the N.Y. Giants (12/4), he recorded one tackle while working at right corner in the club's nickel. Reeves helped limit New York to 150 net passing yards. In the come-from-behind win over Kansas City (12/11), he tackled Dante Hall at the Chiefs six-yard line for a five-yard loss on his only punt return. At Washington (12/18), he saw considerable action in the nickel as both Henry and Glenn were limited because of injuries. Reeves responded with a season-high four tackles and also added a tackle on punt coverage for no gain. In the Christmas Eve win at Carolina (12/24), he again saw considerable action in the nickel and recorded two tackles while breaking up two passes. He suffered a sprained ankle in the season ending loss to St. Louis (1/1/06) and recorded one tackle in limited action.

2004: Reeves saw action in 15 games as a rookie, contributing 14 tackles, four pass deflections and a fumble recovery on defense and six tackles and 13 kickoff returns for 199 yards on special teams. He made his NFL debut as the club's nickel corner in the season opener at Minnesota (9/12) and posted a single tackle. He also averaged 23.0 yards on two kickoff returns and led the team with two special teams tackles as the Vikings were limited to a 17.8-yard average on four kickoff returns. He posted a single tackle and broke up a pass in nickel work against Cleveland (9/19) as the Browns were limited to 66 net passing yards and converted just two-of-12 third downs. The following week at Washington (9/27), he saw extensive action after starter Pete Hunter tore the ACL in his left knee in the first quarter. Reeves responded with six stops and two pass deflections while returning two kickoffs for 41 yards. He made his first NFL start against the N.Y. Giants (10/10) and tied for third on the team with five tackles while breaking up a pass and recovering a fumble that led to a Dallas field goal. He turned over the starting cornerback duties to veteran Tyrone Williams against Pittsburgh (10/17) but saw action in the Cowboys nickel package while returning two kickoffs for 35 yards. After being inactive against Detroit (10/31), he returned to the field at Cincinnati (11/7). He saw spot duty at left cornerback against Philadelphia (11/15), then saw most of his action on special teams for the remainder of the season. He closed out the season at the N.Y. Giants (1/2/05) with a season-high three kickoff returns.

COLLEGE: Reeves saw action in every game during his Boilermaker career, recording 140 tackles, 17 pass deflections, seven interceptions, four forced fumbles, two tackles for losses and two fumble recoveries. He closed out his career as the weakside cornerback, totaling a career-high 64 stops while knocking away nine passes, intercepting two and recording one sack. He became a full-time starter as a junior and tied for the team lead with three interceptions while posting 33 tackles, a forced fumble and a fumble recovery. Reeves saw action in all 12 games – starting three – as a sophomore and tied for fifth in the Big Ten with three forced fumbles. He also totaled 32 tackles and two interceptions. As a true freshman, Reeves saw action in every game on special teams and recorded 11 special teams stops. Reeves was also a member of the Purdue track team. At the 2003 Big Ten Indoor Championships, he finished second in the 200 meters (21.47) and third in the 60 meters (6.78). He won the 100 meters (10.41) title and finished second in the 200 meters (20.83) at the 2002 Big Ten Outdoor Championships. He was named Big Ten Freshman of the Year in track after finishing second in the 60 meters (6.80) and 200 meters (21.04) at the 2001 Big Ten Indoor Championships.

PERSONAL: Jacques Dimitri Reeves was a standout defensive back for Lancaster, Texas, High School, where he intercepted four passes – returning two for touchdowns – and recovered five fumbles as a senior. As a rookie, he was part of the Cowboys 2004 Rookie Club, a program designed to introduce rookie team members to community service in the Dallas area. He and his fellow rookie teammates participated in visits to various non-profit organizations serving children and adults, including the NFL Play It Smart program at Dallas's Lincoln High School, ChildCare Group, NFL United Way Hometown Huddle and The Salvation Army. He annually participates in The Salvation Army Angel Tree program donating Christmas gifts for underprivileged children. During the 2006 offseason, he joined Cowboys Linebacker DeMarcus Ware and Defensive End Marcus Spears and a dozen other teammates in support of the Second Annual Taste of the NFL: The Ultimate Dallas Cowboys Tailgate Party which benefited the North Texas Food Bank. The event helped raise money that will provide over 330,000 meals to North Texans in need.

COWBOYS

PRO: In acquiring Marco Rivera in free agency on March 3, 2005, the Cowboys added a proven veteran with a strong leadership presence to help solidify the right side of the Dallas offensive line. Shortly after joining the Cowboys, Rivera underwent surgery to repair a lumbar disc herniation in his lower back. While he returned to the field in time for training camp, Rivera struggled through the first part of the season to regain his strength. Entering 2006, he is fit and ready for action. One of Brett Favre's most valued pass blockers from 1998-2004, Rivera earned his third consecutive Pro Bowl trip after the 2004 season. Noted for his durability, toughness and competitive spirit, Rivera is coming off his seventh straight season as a starting right guard, after serving as a starter on the left side in 1998. He came to Dallas having started 99 consecutive games (106 including playoffs), a streak that began on Dec. 13, 1998, but came to an end at 113 consecutive starts – the eighth longest active start streak in the NFL – as he missed the final two contests of 2005 after suffering a strained neck in the closing minutes of the game at Washington (12/18). Low sack figures and solid rushing numbers defined Rivera's tenure as the leader on the Packers line. Most recently, the Packers allowed just 14 sacks in 2004 – a club record figure that broke the team's previous low mark of 19 sacks in 2003. Rivera's hard working attitude and leadership is credited for much of that success. The Brooklyn, N.Y., native made the Green Bay roster as an unheralded sixth-round draft pick in 1996. He then worked his way into the starting lineup through two years as a backup and a season with the (then) World League's Scottish Claymores. With a strong performance in training camp in 1998, Rivera was able to hold off teammate Joe Andruzzi's challenge and claim the starting spot. He has now played in 139 career regular-season games, with 125 starts. In 2004, he became only the second Green Bay player to start seven consecutive seasons (1998-2004) at offensive guard in the last 45 years, joining Jerry Kramer (nine, 1958-66) as the only individuals to start at the position for seven straight years.

2005: After suffering the herniated disc in his back and subsequent surgery after signing with Dallas, Rivera rehabbed the injury in time to participate in the club's training camp. He made his Dallas debut in the season opener at San Diego (9/11) and helped lead the way to 301 total yards and 28 points in the win. Against Washington (9/19), the Dallas line did not allow a sack in 36 pass plays, the first time Dallas shut out an opposing defense in sacks since Dec. 8, 2002 against San Francisco. At San Francisco (6/25), Rivera and Co. allowed just two sacks in 40 pass plays as Dallas racked up 443 yards of total offense. Drew Bledsoe's 363 passing yards was the eighth best performance in club history. For the second time on the season, the line did not yield a sack while the offense racked up 456 yards – the most since 1999 – against Philadelphia (10/9). Rivera's blocking against the N.Y. Giants (10/16) helped Bledsoe complete 26 passes for 312 yards, his second 300-yard game of the season and 30th of his career. The running game racked up 164 yards at a 4.2 yard-per-carry clip at Seattle (10/23). Rivera helped lead the way against Arizona (10/30) as Marion Barber rushed for 127 yards and two touchdowns on 27 carries, the club's first 100-yard rushing game of the season. He also gave Bledsoe enough time to complete a career-best 79.2% of his passes (19-of-24) for 220 yards and a score. At Philadelphia (11/14), the line's work allowed Bledsoe to complete 70.8% of his passes for 196 yards and a touchdown. Bledsoe was sacked just once while completing a season-high 29-of-44 passes for 232 yards and two scores against Denver (11/24) on Thanksgiving Day. Rivera and the line allowed Bledsoe to throw for 332 yards and three scores while the ground game picked up 129 yards and a score for 445 yards of total offense – the second best of the season – in the come-from-behind win against Kansas City (12/11). At Washington (12/18), Rivera suffered a strained neck late in the fourth quarter which required an overnight stay in Washington for tests. He had a string of 113 consecutive starts snapped the next week as an inactive at Carolina (12/24). He also missed the season-finale against St. Louis (1/1/06) due to the neck strain.

2004: The anchor on the Green Bay offensive line, Rivera completed his seventh straight season as a starting guard. Since 1958, only one other Packers guard had started more consecutive years (Jerry Kramer, nine from 1958-66). In starting all 16 regular season games, plus the playoff contest against Minnesota, Rivera earned the starting guard spot on the NFC Pro Bowl squad and also was named to the All-NFC squad by Pro Football Weekly. Rivera was a leader on an offensive front that paved the way for the NFL's fourth-ranked offense, including team records for total first downs (354), net yards (6,357), net yards passing (4,449), completions (382) and fewest sacks allowed (14). In the season opener at Carolina (9/13), he sealed Brentson Buckner to the inside to allow Ahman Green to cut back on a six-yard touchdown run. Against Chicago (9/19), on a 25-yard Green run, Rivera pulled from his right guard position and came left, first blocking Alex Brown and then Lance Briggs. Against the N.Y. Giants (10/3), Rivera was part of an offensive line that held the Giants to no sacks. He helped the Packers gain 157 yards rushing against a tough Lions front in a win at Detroit (10/17), and he also was able to neutralize powerful Shaun Rogers for much of the contest. Against Dallas (10/24), he was part of Green Bay's 220-yard rushing performance. At Washington (10/31), he was part of an offensive line unit that helped rack up 361 yards of total offense and three touchdowns. Against Minnesota (11/14), Green Bay gained 206 yards on the ground. On Green Bay's final offensive play, Rivera opened a hole for Green, who barreled ahead for seven yards, setting up the game winning 33-yard field goal. At Houston (11/21), he aided the offensive line in providing excellent pass protection for Favre's 383-yard passing performance, allowing no sacks. In the Monday night contest against St. Louis (11/29), Rivera helped the Packers to a season-high 231 yards rushing. He assisted in the Packers 444 yards of total offense against Jacksonville (12/19). At Minnesota (12/24), Rivera helped provide pass protection for Favre's 363 yards passing in the come-from-behind win. In the season finale at Chicago (1/2/05), he was part of an offensive line that allowed no sacks and protected for a passing game that registered 327 yards and three touchdowns.

2003: Rivera battled through a knee injury that he suffered late in the preseason and went on to start all 16 games (and two playoff games) for the fifth straight year. He was named as a starter on the NFC Pro Bowl squad after serving as a backup for his initial appearance in the NFL's annual all-star game in 2002. He was also a second-team All-Pro selection of the Associated Press and Football Digest as well as being named to the All-NFC team as selected by Pro Football Weekly. Rivera sprained the medial collateral ligament in his left knee in the Packers second-to-last preseason contest against Carolina (8/23) but was ready for the regular-season opener against Minnesota (9/7). His playing time was scaled back somewhat over the first three games before he was able to return to nearly full health. In Week Three at Arizona (9/21), he was poked in the eye, causing bleeding, but he answered the bell for the following week's Monday night game at Chicago (9/29) eight days later. He played a big part in the November stretch where Green Bay rushed for 190-or-more yards in four straight games. He helped to neutralize the Buccaneers vaulted inside duo of Warren Sapp and Anthony McFarland in a win at Tampa Bay (11/16) as Green Bay snapped the Bucs NFL-record streak of 69 consecutive games with at least one sack. In that same game, he blocked Pro Bowler Derrick Brooks to the ground on Najeh Davenport's 27-yard run in the fourth quarter run – one of the key plays on the game-winning drive. In the season ending win against Denver, he threw a key block on Green's 98-yard touchdown run – the longest carry in Packers history.

2002: Rivera raised his game to a higher level in his fifth season as a starter with a performance that earned him his first career Pro Bowl selection. In doing so, he became the first Packer offensive lineman to reach the Pro Bowl since Larry McCaren made it in 1983. He started every game of the season – despite playing with torn medial collateral ligaments in both knees. Rivera injured the MCL in his left knee in the third quarter of a win at Detroit (9/22). He started in Week Four against Carolina (9/29) with the injury in his left knee and was forced out of the Panthers contest late in the third quarter when his left quadriceps fatigued in association with the knee injury. At Minnesota (11/17), he sprained the MCL in his right knee on the second series of the game, forcing him to sit out the majority of that outing. Rivera returned the next week at Tampa Bay (11/24) to help hold the Bucs Sapp without a tackle. Two weeks later at San Francisco (12/15), he helped limit the 49ers Bryant Young, a three-time Pro Bowl selection, to just two tackles and a half sack in the Packers 20-14 triumph over the eventual NFC West champions. Rivera underwent arthroscopic surgery on his right knee following the Pro Bowl (Feb. 5).

2001: In starting all 16 games at right guard for the third straight season, Rivera was a key factor in Green Bay allowing the third-fewest sacks in the league (22) and the fewest by a Packer team in 27 years (17 in 1974). Green also churned out 1,387 rushing yards, then the third-best total in team annals. He helped Green Bay to 179 yards rushing against Detroit (9/9) – tops in the NFL for Week One. Rivera was a major help in neutralizing the Ravens formidable inside duo of Tony Siragusa and Sam Adams in a Green Bay win over Baltimore (10/14). He also made the key block on the Bucs Derrick Brooks on Green's momentum-turning, 63-yard touchdown run late in the third quarter of a 21-20 win over division rival Tampa Bay (11/4). He held Sapp to one assist in that game. Rivera suffered a broken left hand in practice on Dec. 6, but remained in the lineup for a divisional showdown with Chicago (12/9) three days later, playing the first and third quarters with a club-like cast in the win. He continued to play with a cast in a similar rotation the final four games of the regular season. In Week 14, he helped pave the way for a season-best 222 rushing yards in a win at Cleveland (12/23). He switched to a smaller cast for postseason contests against San Francisco (1/13/02) and at St. Louis (1/20/02).

2000: A starter at guard for the third year in a row, he opened in all 16 games at right guard for the second consecutive season. The Packer line helped the offense average better than 100 yards rushing per contest (102.7) for the first time since 1997. Rivera graded out as the team's top lineman in 2000, according to coaches' reviews, and his effort helped Green Bay rush for 1,175 yards, the fifth-best one-season total in team annals. In two division match-ups against Tampa Bay – with one of the NFL's premier defensive fronts – Rivera helped Green Bay hold the Bucs to just one sack-per-game. He also made a big contribution to Green's season-high 161 rushing yards in an upset victory at Minnesota (12/17).

1999: Rivera started all 16 games for the first time in his career, playing the entire season at right guard after successfully making the transition from the left side where he had started the year before. His performance helped the Packers rank ninth in the league in total offense, including a seventh-place finish in the passing category. He was a key part of a unit that paved the way for running back Dorsey Levens' second career 1,000-yard season, as Levens totaled three 100-yard games in the process. In the Packers (12/5) win at Chicago, Rivera helped the offense produce a season-high 188 rushing yards (on 35 carries), as rookie De'Mond Parker picked up 113 yards and two touchdowns on 19 carries, marking the fifth-highest single-game rookie output in team history.

1998: Rivera started 15-of-16 regular season games at the left guard spot after winning the job in training camp over Joe Andruzzi. He also started the Packers NFC Wild Card playoff game at San Francisco (1/3/99), as the offensive line helped pave the way for Levens' 116 rushing yards (at the time, a Green Bay postseason record). He made his first NFL start in the season-opening win over Detroit (9/6). Rivera helped the offensive line allow Packer runners to rack up a season-high 178 yards in a win over Philadelphia (11/29), but he suffered a torn medial collateral ligament in his right knee during the third quarter. He subsequently dressed, but did not play, the following week at Tampa Bay (12/7) due to the injury. Rivera made it back to the starting lineup for a victory over Chicago (12/3).

1997: Rivera was allocated to the Scottish Claymores of the World League and started all 10 games, helping his team finish third in the league in total offense. He was named honorable mention All-World League by Pro Football Weekly. Rivera returned to Green Bay and saw action in 14 regular season games, primarily on special teams as a member of the field goal and extra point units and on kickoffs. Green Bay compiled a 13-3 record and a NFC West Division title before falling to Denver in Super Bowl XXXII. He was inactive for the Packers first two contests before seeing action in the club's final 14 games as well as all three playoff contests. He saw his first action with the offensive line as he stepped in at left guard in the fourth quarter of a 31-10 win at Carolina (12/14). He was the primary backup at center behind Jeff Dellenbach for three early-season games while regular starter Frank Winters was sidelined with a foot injury.

1996: Drafted in the sixth round, Rivera surfaced as one of the preseason's true success stories. He performed well throughout camp and earned a spot on the roster. Although he was inactive for all 16 regular season games, Rivera was a key practice contributor to the Packers run to their third world title in Super Bowl XXXI.

COLLEGE: Rivera was a three-year starter and four-time letter winner (1992-95) at Penn State. He played in 41 career games for the Nittany Lions, making 31 starts. His experience also included appearances in three bowl games – the Outback, Rose and Blockbuster. He started his collegiate career at guard but moved to tackle as a sophomore and then switched back to guard as a junior in 1994. He earned second-team All-Big Ten honors in both his junior and senior seasons. Rivera was a starter on the 1994 squad that led the nation in scoring (47.8 points-per-game) and total offense (520.2 yards-per-game), in addition to breaking 19 individual and 14 team records, on the way to Big Ten and Rose Bowl championships.

PERSONAL: Marco Anthony Rivera was born in Brooklyn, N.Y. Rivera was an all-New York and all-county selection in football at Elmont Memorial

High School in Long Island, N.Y. He also garnered All-America honorable mention from USA Today and SuperPrep. A four-year letterman, he played guard, defensive end and linebacker. He had 16 sacks among nearly 300 career tackles and also registered six interceptions as his team captured three conference titles. He was also an all-conference performer in basketball (three letters) and lacrosse (four letters). Rivera has put his bi-lingual language skills to work in his serious approach to community service. In eight of the past nine off-seasons, he has conducted youth football clinics in Puerto Rico (his mother is a native Puerto Rican and his grandmother still lives there), tutoring 500 participants (ages 8-16). He has also spent several hours visiting cancer patients at St. Jorge's Hospital and Centro Medico in San Juan. While in Puerto Rico in 2001, Rivera took part in 'Play with a Pro' contest, coaching the local winner and his team in a game of backyard football. The foundation is a recipient of a $4,000 matching grant from the NFL Youth Football Fund. The foundation also supported the Bay Area Humane Society (Green Bay) in 2003, co-sponsoring the annual Pet Walk. Rivera and his wife, Michelle, hosted a fund-raising tailgate party a day prior to the walk. He also served as one-of-five NFL player representatives in May of 2002 at a White House Cinco de Mayo celebration as a guest of President George W. Bush. In June of 2004, he joined Fox Sports analyst Brian Baldinger to visit U.S. troops in Kuwait and Qatar as part of an NFL-sponsored USO trip. In recent years, Rivera has been an active participant in Brett Favre's Celebrity Softball Game. He has also participated in the 2000, '02, '03 and '04 'Packerland Ride,' a motorcycle event that benefits the Muscular Dystrophy Association. As a member of the Packers, Rivera gave time to the American Red Cross, Big Brothers/Big Sisters and Prevent Blindness Wisconsin in the Green Bay area. While at Penn State, he worked with 'Second Mile,' an organization which helps needy kids. The Riveras enthusiastically got involved in the Dallas/Fort Worth community upon their arrival in Dallas. They participated in the team's annual NFL 101 Football Workshop and also supported the team's involvement with the Salvation Army Angel Tree program providing Christmas gifts to families in need. Rivera's father, Bill, was a butcher for 35 years in Brooklyn, N.Y. and previously operated two family-owned meat markets. Rivera earned a B.S. degree in administration of justice from Penn State. PRO: After signing with the Cowboys as a rookie free agent in 2003, Tony Romo displayed enough potential during training camp to earn a spot on the club's regular season roster as the third quarterback. After spending a year adjusting to the professional game, he split time as the team's No. 2 quarterback in 2004. With the confidence of the coaching staff, he held on to the No. 2 spot and served at the club's holder on kicks the entire 2005 season.

2005: Romo won the training camp battle with Drew Henson for the second quarterback spot on the club's roster. In preseason play he completed 23-of-37 passes for 273 yards and one touchdown. He saw action in all 16 regular season games, serving as the team's holder. Against Philadelphia (10/16), he took a knee on the final drive of the game to run out the clock.

2004: With a year of NFL experience under his belt, Romo went to training camp battling for the club's second quarterback spot. After completing 24-of-39 passes for 250 yards, a touchdown and two interceptions in preseason play, he started the season as the team's back-up signal caller, a position he held for the first six games. In the season opener at Minnesota (9/12), he took over as the holder for PATs and field goal attempts in the second quarter after a fumbled snap on the second field goal attempt of the game. He became the club's full-time holder the following week against Cleveland (9/19). For seven games, beginning with the contest against Detroit (10/31), he served as the team's third quarterback. He returned to the back-up position at Philadelphia (12/19) and against Washington (12/26), but did not see any action with the offense. He closed out the season at the N.Y. Giants (1/2/05) as the third signal caller.

2003: After signing with the Cowboys as a rookie free agent May 1, Romo spent the entire season as the club's third quarterback. In preseason action, he converted nine-of-17 passes for 134 yards, one touchdown and one interception. He was one-of-four rookie free agents to make the full-time roster following training camp.

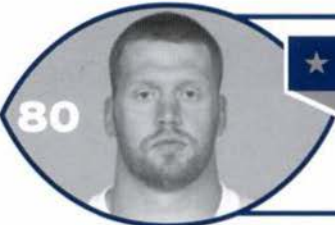

COLLEGE: Romo became the first player in Eastern Illinois and Ohio Valley Conference history to win the Walter Payton Award, given annually to the nation's top player at the NCAA Division 1-AA level. He finished his career holding school and conference records with 85 touchdown passes. He was second in school and third in conference history with 8,212 passing yards. He was also second in school history with 584 completions and 941 attempts. As a senior, he set school and conference records for completions with 258 in 407 attempts for 3,615 yards – which placed him second in conference and third in school history for a season – and 34 touchdowns. As a junior, he led Division 1-AA in passing efficiency, completing 138-of-207 passes for 2,068 yards and 21 touchdowns as he earned All-America, All-Ohio Valley Conference and the OVC Player of the Year honors. As a sophomore, Romo ranked second in Division 1-AA in passing efficiency, completing 164-of-278 passes for 2,583 yards and 27 touchdowns as he was named All-America honorable mention, All-Ohio Valley Conference, and the OVC Player of the Year.

PERSONAL: Romo, a communications major at Eastern Illinois, lettered three times in football for Burlington, Wisc., High School. An avid golfer, Romo attempted to qualify for the 2004 Byron Nelson and 2004 and 2005 U.S. Open golf tournaments but fell short. As a member of the Cowboys 2003 Rookie Club – a program designed to introduce rookie team members to community service in the Dallas area – he participated in charity visits to various non-profit organizations serving children and adults. Visits included work with the ChildCareGroup, The Salvation Army, Children's Medical Center Dallas and Kid's Café at The Voice of Hope Ministries. He also attended a special movie screening of Radio hosted by the Cowboys for 400 youth from area non-profit agencies and volunteered to play Bingo with over 100 senior citizens at The Brady Center as part of the Cowboys annual United Way Hometown Huddle event. During the 2006 offseason, Romo participated in the FUTURES Golf Classic. His participation along with members of the local media, other Dallas area professional athletes and FUTURES tour players all benefited Boys & Girls Club of Collin County, HomeAid, City House and Hope's Door.

PRO: Sean Ryan was regarded as one of the nation's top blocking tight ends when he was selected in the fifth round (144th overall) of the 2004 NFL Draft by Dallas. His two-year NFL career has followed a bit of a roller coaster path that has moved from the practice squad to the active roster in both of his pro seasons. In 2004, he got his NFL feet wet on the Dallas practice squad before joining the active roster for the final six weeks of the season. His play as the team's blocking tight end helped Julius Jones account for 721 rushing yards during that time frame, including 348 yards and five touchdowns in Ryan's first two professional games. In 2005, a training camp injury again forced him to start the year on the practice squad before being called up to active duty in late November. A smart player with solid fundamental skills, Ryan will figure into the heated competition for roster spots at the tight end position in 2006. That position group is expected to play an even more prominent role in the Cowboys base offensive scheme in 2006.

2005: Ryan's second NFL season got off to a rocky start as he suffered a sprained foot early in training camp and was forced to miss the entire preseason. He was released at the end of camp and then signed to the practice squad. After 10 weeks of practice work, he was placed on the active roster and played in the Cowboys overtime loss to Denver (11/24) on Thanksgiving Day. His call-up was preceded by fellow tight end Brett Pierce's season ending knee injury against Detroit (11/20). Ryan spent most of the Broncos game in a limited role as a blocker and a special teams contributor. In the following week's loss at the Giants (12/4), Ryan earned his first start of the season as Dallas opened with a three tight end package. He was inactive the next two weeks against Kansas City (12/11) and at Washington (12/18). In the come-from-behind win at Carolina (12/24), he saw most of his action on special teams. He was inactive for the season ending loss to St. Louis (1/1/06).

2004: Ryan was released by Dallas prior to the start of the regular season. He immediately signed to the Cowboys practice squad, where he spent the first 10 weeks of the season. He was signed to the active roster Nov. 24 and made his NFL debut against Chicago (11/25) on Thanksgiving Day, seeing action in two-tight end sets. His blocking against the Bears helped lead the way for Jones to rush for 150 yards and two touchdowns, marking the first 100-yard rushing performance of the season by a Dallas back and tying the then second-best mark ever by a Cowboys rookie running back. The following week in Dallas's 43-39 come-from-behind victory at Seattle (12/6), Ryan worked as a blocking tight end and helped Jones run for 198 yards - the third best rushing day in club history and the second best ever by a Dallas rookie - and three touchdowns. Ryan made his first NFL start against Washington (12/26) as Dallas opened in a two-tight end set. He closed the season at the N.Y. Giants (1/2/05) by opening holes for Jones to rush for 148 yards and a touchdown.

COLLEGE: After beginning his BC career as a defensive end, Ryan moved to tight end as a sophomore and proceeded to catch 75 passes for 950 yards and 12 touchdowns over the next 37 games. His 12 scoring grabs rank second in school history among tight ends. As a senior, he garnered All-Big East honors after finishing second on the team with 35 receptions for 447 yards and six scores. His 35 catches were the most by an Eagles tight end since Pete Mitchell hauled in 55 passes in 1994. He earned second-team All-Big East honors as a junior after catching 23 passes for 280 yards and three scores. Ryan made the switch from defensive end to tight end prior to his sophomore campaign and went on to start every game, finishing with 17 catches for 223 yards and three touchdowns. As a redshirt freshman defensive end, he started seven games, including the Aloha Bowl, and registered 29 tackles, three tackles for losses and a sack.

PERSONAL: Ryan earned all-state honors as a senior at St. Joseph's High School in Buffalo, N.Y. The three-time all-league and all-city selection also lettered in basketball and lacrosse. He graduated from Boston College with a degree in history. PRO: The Cowboys found a solid contributor via the waiver wire late in the 2003 season when they grabbed Scott Shanle (pronounced SHAN-lee). Originally drafted out of Nebraska in the seventh round (251st overall) of the 2003 NFL Draft by the Rams, Shanle was claimed off waivers by Dallas on Dec. 10 of that year. He immediately distinguished himself in practice as a smart player who could potentially make a visible impact for the following season. Shanle had a stand-out campaign for the Cowboys in 2004, finishing fourth on the team in special teams tackles and supplying a late-season boost to the defense at strong-side linebacker. The switch to the 3-4 scheme in 2005 opened the door for his emergence as a weak-side inside linebacker behind veteran Dat Nguyen. His intelligence and versatility also put him in position to be an opening day contributor as a starting middle linebacker in the Cowboys nickel defense. The unexpected season and career ending injuries to Nguyen in 2005 accelerated Shanle's progression into a starter in the middle.

2005: Following training camp, Shanle earned the role as the Cowboys nickel middle linebacker for the first several weeks of the season. After an accumulation of injuries forced Cowboys starting middle linebacker Nguyen into retirement, Shanle was thrust into the role of the starter along side Bradie James. Shanle, who battled injury setbacks of his own in the season's latter stages, closed the 2005 campaign tied for seventh on the team in tackles with 50. He also added four quarterback pressures, 1.5 sacks and a pair of passes defensed. In the season opener at San Diego (9/11), Shanle stepped in at middle linebacker in the Dallas nickel defense and recorded one tackle. In the Monday night loss to Washington (9/19), he recorded four tackles from his nickel middle linebacker spot as well as his first sack of the season, and second of his career, when he chased down Mark Brunell from behind. He also added a quarterback pressure and special teams tackle on the night. In the come-from-behind victory at San Francisco (9/25), he had two tackles as a nickel linebacker and tied for the team lead with two special teams stops. In the following week's loss at Oakland (10/2) he had four tackles and split a Kerry Collins sack with Jay Ratliff. In a key divisional win over Philadelphia (10/9), Shanle started in place of the injured Nguyen (neck) at middle linebacker and finished second on the team with four tackles and a quarterback pressure as the Dallas defense limited the Eagles top ranked offense entering the game to 129 total yards, including just 19 on the ground. He earned his second start of the year the following week against the Giants (10/16) – again replacing Nguyen – and was third on the team with four tackles. The Giants were held to 92 yards through three quarters and finished the day one-of-11 on third downs. At Seattle (10/23), he recorded three tackles while again replacing Nguyen at linebacker for the third straight week. Shanle also contributed a quarterback pressure that led to a 14-yard intentional grounding penalty. The Dallas defense limited the NFL's top ranked offense entering the game to 289 yards, 118 below their season average, and one touchdown. Shaun Alexander, the NFL leading rusher, was limited to 61 yards on 21 carries (2.9 avg.). In the win over Arizona (10/30), Shanle started and split time with Nguyen at middle linebacker. He recorded three tackles and helped limit the Cardinals to 213 total yards, including just 71 on the ground. In the following week's start at Philadelphia (11/14) he registered three tackles in the thrilling come-from-behind victory on Monday Night Football. In the win over Detroit (11/20), he recorded three tackles and helped limit the Lions to 226 total yards, including just 57 rushing on the day. He suffered a sprained ankle in the Lions game, and the injury forced him to miss the Denver (11/24) game. He returned to action at the N.Y. Giants (12/4) and contributed four tackles and his first pass deflection of the season. The Giants were held to one offensive touchdown and 150 net passing yards. In the win over Kansas City (12/11), Shanle led the team with a season-high eight tackles and also broke up a pass. He had five stops in the loss at Washington (12/18). While battling the ankle injury, he added two tackles at Carolina (12/24) while working primarily in the nickel package.

2004: Shanle started his first full season in Dallas as a special teams standout, finishing the year fourth on the team with 15 special teams tackles. He was a vital cog in a kickoff coverage unit that led the NFL in opponents return average (17.5-yard avg.). Late in the year he became a key contributor on defense when he replaced Al Singleton in the starting lineup at strongside linebacker and recorded 26 tackles in the final three games of the season. Shanle tied for the team lead with two special teams tackles while helping limit Chad Morton to a 6.0 average on three punt returns on eight punts at Washington (9/27). He helped limit the N.Y. Giants (10/10) to two punt returns for a 2.0-yard average with a special teams tackle. At Green Bay (10/24), he led the team with two special teams tackles. Against Detroit (10/31), he recorded one special teams tackle as Eddie Drummond, the NFL's third ranked kickoff returner entering the game at 29.0 yards-per-return, was limited to a 16.8-yard average on five kickoffs. He recorded two special teams tackles at Baltimore (11/21) as the Ravens were limited to a 14.0-yard average on kickoff returns. He saw his first real playing time at strongside linebacker at Seattle (12/6) but did not record a tackle. The following week against New Orleans (12/12), he saw considerable action at strongside linebacker for Singleton (lower abdominal strain) and recorded three tackles and a tackle for a loss at the goal line. He also had a big play on special teams when he tackled Fred McAfee on a fake punt attempt, giving Dallas the ball at the Saints 38-yard line. Two plays later, the Cowboys scored a touchdown to go up 10-0. He made his first NFL start in place of Singleton (abdominal injury) at strongside linebacker at Philadelphia (12/19) and tied for the team lead with eight tackles. He helped keep Donovan McNabb in check most of the day as the NFL's third ranked passer (107.2 rating) entering the day, was limited to a 62.0 rating with two interceptions. Against Washington (12/26) in his second NFL start, Shanle recorded a career-high 14 tackles.

2003: A seventh round draft choice of the Rams, Shanle finished fifth in preseason action with 14 tackles. He made his NFL debut in the Rams season opener at the N.Y. Giants (9/7) and saw mostly special teams action in six games for St. Louis, posting four special teams stops. He missed four games from late September through October while serving a four-game league suspension. He was waived by the Rams on Dec. 9 and claimed by Dallas Dec. 10. He was inactive for the Cowboys final three games and the wild card playoff game.

COLLEGE: Shanle earned Big 12 honorable mention selection as a senior after collecting 71 tackles, six pressures, five tackles for losses, two sacks, a pass defended and a forced fumble. As a junior in 2001, he earned honorable mention All-Big 12 honors after finishing fifth on the Cornhuskers with 56 stops, eight tackles behind the line of scrimmage, eight passes defended, three sacks and a fumble recovery. Shanle started nine-of-11 games as a sophomore, finishing fifth on the team with 55 tackles, four stops for losses, four pressures, two passes defended, a sack, an interception and a forced fumble. As a redshirt freshman, he saw action in every game, primarily as the up-front blocker on the Husker punt return team.

PERSONAL: Shanle was a key factor in St. Edward, Neb., High School's turnaround from a 3-6 record in his freshman season to 10-1, 9-1 and 10-1 records his final three prep seasons. A standout running back and defensive back who played eight-man football, Shanle earned all-state honors and was named the player of the year by Huskerland Prep Report. He also earned multiple letters in track and basketball and served as a class officer his senior year. Shanle - a two-year member of Nebraska's Unity Council - graduated in December, 2002 with a degree in family and consumer science. Shanle participated in the team's annual support of The Salvation Army Angel program that provides Christmas gifts to area children in need. Shanle, and wife, Erin, have a son, Jagger (11/11/04).

COWBOYS

PRO: In three seasons as the club's starting strongside linebacker, Al Singleton has proven himself a valuable free agent addition to the club's defense. Singleton made an immediate and impressive impact as he surfaced as a consistent leader and playmaker on a Dallas defensive unit that finished the 2003 season as the top ranked unit in the NFL. He followed that up with another solid season in 2004, finishing sixth on the team with 57 tackles despite missing the final three games of the season with an abdominal injury. His third season in Dallas was also cut short after suffering a fractured right clavicle against Arizona (10/30). One of the hardest working players on the Cowboys roster, the soft spoken Singleton is a true professional who understands the importance of preparation - both physically and in the meeting room - and is a solid role model for younger players. Singleton was originally a fourth-round selection (128th overall) of Tampa Bay in the 1997 NFL Draft. Through hard work and dedication, he moved up the ranks from a backup player and a special teams standout in Tampa Bay to a Super Bowl starter during the Bucs championship season in 2002. He is now part of one of the most consistent and athletic group of linebackers in the NFL. Singleton has the rare distinction of playing for two teams that finished consecutive seasons with the top rated defense in the NFL – Tampa Bay in 2002 and Dallas in 2003.

2005: Singleton had his second consecutive season cut short due to injury after fracturing his right clavicle against Arizona (10/30). Before the injury, Singleton logged seven starts in his eight games – missing the starting assignment against Philadelphia (10/9) when Dallas opened in their nickel defense – and posted 19 tackles, three pressures, three pass breakups and an interception. He also added four special teams tackles. In the season opener at San Diego (9/11), Singleton recorded a season-high five tackles and helped limit LaDainian Tomlinson to 72 rushing yards. At San Francisco (9/25), he picked off his only pass of the season – his first since Oct. 5, 2003 against Arizona – with a fourth quarter theft of Tim Rattay. It came at the Dallas 31-yard line and ended a potential scoring drive. He had a four-tackle performance, along with a pressure while sharing time with Scott Fujita, at Oakland (10/2). Against the Raiders, Singleton was second on the team with a career-high tying three special teams tackles. He added a special teams tackle and saw limited action as Dallas played in the nickel most of the day against Philadelphia (10/9). He alternated drives with Fujita and finished the game against the N.Y. Giants (10/16) with two tackles. At Seattle (10/23), he notched three stops as the NFL's top ranked offense entering the game was held to 289 total yards, 118 below their season average. Shaun Alexander, the NFL's leading rusher entering the game was limited to 61 yards on 21 carries (2.9 avg.). He then added a tackle and a pressure before fracturing his right clavicle against Arizona (10/30). He was placed on injured reserve on Nov. 1 and spent the remainder of the season rehabbing the injury.

2004: Singleton was on his way to one of the most productive seasons of his career when his year was cut short with a groin/abdominal injury that forced him to miss the final three games of the season. Prior to his injury, he had recorded 57 tackles (tying the second highest total of his career), two stops for losses, a pressure, a forced fumble and a fumble recovery. He registered two tackles against Cleveland (9/19) to help limit the Browns to 202 total yards of offense. He then tallied five stops at Washington (9/27) and again against the N.Y. Giants (10/10). Against Pittsburgh (10/17), Singleton finished second on the team with a season-high 10 tackles while posting two special teams tackles as the Steelers were limited to a 13.6-yard average on five kickoff returns. He registered five stops against Detroit (10/31) to finish second on the team and help limit the Lions to 39 rushing yards. He finished third on the team with nine tackles while adding a quarterback pressure at Cincinnati (11/7). He missed his first start as a Cowboy against Philadelphia (11/15) when the team opened in its nickel package. At Baltimore (11/21), he was third on the team with eight tackles as the Ravens were limited to 59 rushing yards on 21 carries (2.8 avg.). He also forced a first quarter fumble that Lance Frazier recovered at the Ravens 15-yard line to set up a Dallas field goal. Four days later against Chicago (11/25) on Thanksgiving Day, he recorded three stops, including one for a loss, as the Bears were limited to 49 rushing yards on 20 carries (2.5 avg.)

and 140 total yards – the lowest total surrendered by Dallas since allowing 105 yards to the N.Y. Giants on Sept. 8, 1996. He tallied posted a single tackle and a tackle behind the line of scrimmage against New Orleans (12/12) before suffering a groin/abdominal strain early in the game. He missed the remainder of the Saints game and was inactive the following week at Philadelphia (12/19) due to the injury. He was placed on injured reserve Dec. 22, missing the final two games of the season.

2003: After signing with Dallas as a free agent on March 13, Singleton stepped right into the starting strongside linebacker post in training camp and quickly established himself as one of the cornerstones of a Dallas defense that would finish the season as the NFL's top ranked defense. Dallas led the NFL in passing yards allowed (164.4 yards-per-game) and fewest total yards allowed (253.5 average), while finishing third in rushing defense (89.1 yards-per-game). Singleton finished sixth on the team in tackles with 57 and tied for second on the squad in interceptions with two – one of which was returned for a touchdown. Singleton made his Dallas Cowboys debut in the season-opener against Atlanta (9/7), finishing with five tackles. In the thrilling overtime win on Monday night at the N.Y. Giants (9/15), he scored his second NFL touchdown when he picked off a Kerry Collins pass intended for Jeremy Shockey and returned it 41 yards for a score to give Dallas a 20-7 lead at the half. He had two tackles on the night while helping limit running back Tiki Barber to 41 yards on 15 carries (2.7 avg.). At the N.Y. Jets (9/28), Singleton was again part of a takeaway that led to a Dallas touchdown when he recovered his first career fumble. Dallas took over at the Jets 48-yard line and drove to its opening touchdown. He closed out the Jets game second on the team with a season-high nine tackles as New York was limited to 66 rushing yards on 26 carries (2.5 avg.). In the win over Arizona (10/5), Singleton recorded his second interception of the season while adding three tackles as the Cardinals were limited to 151 total yards, including just 32 on the ground. In the pivotal win over Philadelphia (10/12), Singleton registered two tackles and helped limit the Eagles to 232 net yards on the day. The following week at Detroit (10/19), he recorded one tackle as the Lions were held to 157 total yards. In his homecoming outing at Tampa Bay (10/26), Singleton had two tackles, a tackle for a loss and one pass breakup as the Bucs were limited to 133 net passing yards. He registered six tackles and his first sack of the season against Buffalo (11/9), as the defense limited the Bills to 185 total yards, including just 58 on seven second half possessions. Although Dallas fell to the eventual Super Bowl champs at New England (11/16), Singleton had a very active night. He was third on the team with six tackles and had a season-high three pressures along with a pass breakup. In the win over Carolina (11/24), he had one tackle and helped limit Stephen Davis – the NFL's third leading rusher entering the game – to 59 yards on 26 carries (2.3 avg.). At Philadelphia (12/7), he recorded five tackles and tied for the team lead with two pressures. The following week at Washington (12/14), Singleton posted two tackles and helped limit the Redskins to 161 total yards. In the regular season finale at New Orleans (12/28), he had five tackles and a pressure as Deuce McAllister was held to 49 yards on 21 carries (2.3 avg.). He also tied for the team lead with two special teams tackles against the Saints. In his seventh career playoff game – at Carolina (1/3/04) – Singleton recorded five tackles.

2002: Singleton moved into the Bucs starting lineup at strongside linebacker and posted a career-high 89 tackles while adding three passes defended, a sack and an interception. His play helped propel the Buccaneers to the league's top ranking in defense and the Super Bowl XXXVII championship. He opened the season with seven tackles and a special teams stop against New Orleans (9/8), missing the start as the Bucs opened in a nickel package. He started the following week at Baltimore (9/15) and posted a career- and team-high 11 tackles. He tied for the team lead with 10 tackles against St. Louis (9/23) before posting five tackles at Cincinnati (9/29) and another seven stops at Atlanta (10/6). At Carolina (10/27), Singleton totaled six tackles before tallying two stops and his first interception of the season against Minnesota (11/3). He then posted six tackles and a pass defended in the rematch against Carolina (11/17). He totaled five tackles against Green Bay (11/24) despite not starting because Tampa opened in a nickel package. At New Orleans (12/1), he registered five tackles and his first sack of the season, forcing an Aaron Brooks fumble on the play. He totaled eight stops against Atlanta (12/8) before posting four tackles and a pass defended at Detroit (12/15). He registered four tackles against Pittsburgh (12/23), then closed the regular season with four stops at Chicago (12/29). Singleton kicked off the Bucs playoff run with a tackle, a sack, a forced fumble and two passes defended in the NFC Divisional Playoff Game against San Francisco (1/12/03). In the NFC Championship Game at Philadelphia (1/19/03), he recorded a team-high tying seven tackles. He did not start Super Bowl XXXVII against Oakland (1/26/03), but posted a tackle against the Raiders. He finished Tampa Bay's three-game postseason jaunt with nine tackles, two passes defended, a sack and a forced fumble.

2001: Playing as a reserve, Singleton saw action in all 16 games and recorded 32 tackles, two passes defended, a sack and 10 special teams tackles. He saw considerable action at linebacker against Minnesota (9/30) and posted four tackles and a special teams stop. He again tallied four stops against Green Bay (10/7) while adding two special teams tackles. He recorded three tackles at Tennessee (10/14) before registering a tackle, a sack and a special teams stop against Minnesota (10/28). His sack against the Vikings was one-of-four sacks on the day by the Buccaneers defense. In the rematch against Detroit (12/9), Singleton totaled two tackles and a pass defended. The following week in a rematch at Chicago (12/16), he tallied three stops and a pass defended while adding a special teams tackle. He closed the season with a flurry, registering four tackles against Baltimore (12/29) and a season-high five stops against Philadelphia (1/6/02). He then totaled a tackle, a pass defended and a special teams stop in a wild card playoff game at Philadelphia (1/12/02).

2000: After an offseason spent rehabilitating his fractured ankle, Singleton returned to the playing field and saw action in 13 regular season games as a reserve linebacker and on special teams. He finished the season with 32 tackles, a pass defended and a forced fumble while tying for fifth on the team with 11 special teams stops. He kicked off the season by posting a career-high three special teams stops against Chicago (9/10). The following week at Detroit (9/17), he tallied two tackles playing linebacker, a special teams tackle and a blocked punt at Detroit (9/17). Against the N.Y. Jets (9/24), he contributed three tackles while subbing for Sheldon Quarles at strongside linebacker. He again recorded three tackles at Washington (10/1) before totaling four stops and a pass defended against Detroit (10/19). He started his first career game at Atlanta (11/5) and recorded a then career-high 10 tackles. He returned to a reserve capacity against Green Bay (11/12) and collected two stops and forced a fumble. He posted three special teams tackles against Buffalo (11/26) before suffering a knee injury against Dallas (12/3), which forced him to miss the final three games of the regular season. He returned to action in the wild card playoff game at Philadelphia (12/31) and registered two tackles, half a sack and a team-high two special teams stops.

1999: For the first time in his career, Singleton saw action in all 16 regular season games, recording 26 tackles, his first career interception and 10 special teams stops. He also totaled three tackles and a special teams stop against the Seahawks. He registered three tackles and a special teams stop at Oakland (12/19). Singleton posted a single tackle in a Divisional Playoff Game win against Washington (1/15/00), before fracturing his left ankle in the fourth quarter. The fractured ankle forced him to miss Tampa's NFC Championship Game loss at St. Louis (1/23/00).

1998: Singleton registered 18 tackles, a pass defended and four special teams stops while playing in 15 games. He recorded his first career defensive tackle at Minnesota (9/6), then posted three more stops at New Orleans (10/25). He tallied two stops at Jacksonville (11/15) and a season-high four stops in a Monday Night Football victory against Green Bay (12/7). The only game he missed during the season was the finale at Cincinnati (12/27) when he was inactive.

1997: Singleton saw action in 12 games as a rookie member of the Bucs special teams units, posting four special teams tackles and blocking two punts, one of which he returned for a touchdown. He was the only member of the Tampa Bay squad to block a punt and the only defensive player to score a touchdown. He started his rookie campaign with a bang against Arizona (9/28), blocking a Jeff Feagles punt, recovering the ball and returning it 28 yards for the Bucs first touchdown of the game. That play marked Tampa's first score off a blocked punt since Ricky Reynolds returned a blocked punt 33 yards for a score at Washington on Oct. 22, 1989. Singleton blocked his second punt of the season at the N.Y. Jets (12/14), then recovered the loose ball at the Jets 23-yard line. Singleton was originally drafted by Tampa Bay in the fourth round (128th overall) of the NFL Draft.

He was tabbed the Owls defensive captain as a senior and earned All-Big East honors at middle linebacker after leading the team with 134 tackles, breaking up five passes, forcing two fumbles and intercepting a pass. Singleton started at strongside linebacker as a sophomore and finished second on the squad with 74 stops while setting a school record with five forced fumbles.

COWBOYS

PRO: With an opportunity to bolster the club's defensive front in the 2005 NFL Draft, the Cowboys jumped at the chance to add Marcus Spears with the 20th overall selection. At 294 pounds, Spears automatically became one of the biggest defensive linemen on Dallas's roster. But for a big man, he is tremendously athletic, as witnessed by his 34.5 career tackles for losses and 19.0 career sacks – the fifth most in LSU annals. As a rookie, he provided the Cowboys with a defensive lineman with the size and ability to play on the end of the line in the 3-4 alignment, moving into the starting lineup the final 10 games of the season. In an Aug. 5 training camp practice, Spears sprained his right knee and ankle while straining his calf. What could have been a serious injury was only a minor setback for the athletic Spears. He missed the first three preseason games but bounced back in time for the final preseason game and recorded three tackles and a sack. Cowboys coaches are looking for Spears to continue his progression as a dominant playmaker along the Cowboys defensive line.

2005: Spears's rookie campaign was marked by progress as he started the season as a reserve and eased into a starting role to earn All-Rookie honors from Pro Football Weekly. His 35 tackles was good for 12th on the team – third among linemen and rookies – while his six pressures was fourth. He added 1.5 sacks and a pass defended. In his NFL debut at San Diego (9/11) Spears was in on the defensive line rotation but did not record a tackle. He recorded his first sack – one he split with Greg Ellis – and his first career tackle while helping limit Clinton Portis to 52 yards on 17 carries against Washington (9/19). He then led all defensive linemen with four tackles at San Francisco (9/25). Spears helped limit Philadelphia (10/9) to 129 yards, including just 19 on the ground – the fourth lowest in club history. He earned his first NFL start at defensive end at Seattle (10/23) and responded with three tackles and a batted pass while helping limit Shaun Alexander, the NFL's leading rusher to 61 yards on 21 carries (2.9 avg.). Spears officially moved into the starting line-up full time against Arizona (10/30) and led all linemen with four tackles as the Cardinals were held to just 213 total yards, including just 71 on the ground. He logged his third career start at Philadelphia (11/14) and posted a season-high seven tackles to lead all linemen and finish second on the team. He had a three-tackle game at the N.Y. Giants (12/4). Against Kansas City (12/11), Spears posted four stops and the biggest play of the game. With 1:16 remaining in the first half and Dallas trailing 14-10, Spears scooped up a Trent Green fumble at the Cowboys 15-yard line and rumbled 59 yards to the Chiefs 26-yard line. Three plays later, Drew Bledsoe hit Jason Witten for a touchdown and a 17-14 halftime lead. It was the eighth-longest return in club history and the longest ever by a Dallas rookie. At Washington (12/18), Spears notched three tackles. In the season finale against St. Louis (1/1/06), he posted two stops and his first solo sack of the season.

COLLEGE: Spears put together a career year as a senior, earning first-team All-America honors from the Walter Camp Foundation and American Football Coaches Association, second-team All-America honors from Sports Illustrated, first-team All-SEC honors and was a semifinalist for the Bednarik Award and Lombardi Award. He finished the year tying his career-high in tackles (49) while setting career-highs for tackles for losses (17) and sacks (nine – a figure that ranks fourth in LSU single-season annals). He also recorded 21 quarterback pressures to help the Tigers finish the year third in the country in total defense. During LSU's national championship season in 2003, Spears contributed 49 tackles, 23 quarterback pressures, 13 stops for losses, six sacks and six passes defended to earn first-team All-SEC honors. Playing against Oklahoma for the national championship in the Sugar Bowl, Spears returned an interception 20 yards for a touchdown to give the Tigers a 21-7 advantage in their eventual 21-14 victory. His sophomore year marked his first season as a full-time defensive player, and he recorded 46 tackles, 16 pressures, 3.5 tackles for losses and three sacks. Spears saw action at tight end, fullback and defensive end as a freshman, recording two catches for 20 yards on offense and eight tackles, a sack and a stop for a loss on defense. His effort earned him freshman All-SEC honors as a tight end.

PERSONAL: Marcus Raishon Spears was one of the mostly highly sought after two-sport athletes in the country following his senior season at Southern University Lab High School in Baton Rouge, La. On the football field, he was rated as the top tight end prospect in America and the third best overall prospect after earning consensus All-America honors. He was named first-team 1A all-state on both sides of the ball following his senior season, becoming the first player to be honored on both offense and defense in Louisiana since 1991. He finished his final prep campaign with 28 catches for 435 yards and three touchdowns and 245 rushing yards and six touchdowns on offense and 22 tackles for losses, 11.5 sacks and four fumble recoveries on defense. The communication studies major was also one of the nation's top basketball prospects. Spears was actively involved in community service projects during his time at LSU. His sister, Deidre was a three-year letterman on the basketball team at LSU, while starting two of those years for the Lady Tigers. As a rookie Spears was a member of the Cowboys 2005 Rookie Club – a program designed to introduce rookie team members to community service in the Dallas area which included work with The Salvation Army,

Children's Medical Center Dallas and Meals on Wheels. In the spring, Spears was a co-chair – along with fellow teammate DeMarcus Ware – for the second annual Taste of the NFL: The Ultimate Dallas Cowboys Tailgate Party at Abacus restaurant that benefited The North Texas Food Bank. The event raised enough money to provide 330,000 meals to North Texans in need.

COWBOYS

COLLEGE: Montavious Stanley possesses both the size and durability to become an integral part on the inside of the 3-4 defense – which is one of the reasons the Cowboys drafted him in the sixth round (182nd overall) of the 2006 NFL Draft. He also has the ability and strength to play run containment or clog up the middle by taking on multiple blockers – something he did very well from his defensive tackle position at Louisville. Stanley also has the versatility to play multiple positions having started at left defensive end, left tackle, nose guard and right tackle in college.

2005: Stanley finished his career at Louisville 12th in school history with 12.5 quarterback sacks and tied for ninth with 30 stops behind the line of scrimmage. As a senior, he was an All-Big East Conference first-team choice by the NFL Draft Report after finishing the season with 48 tackles and career-highs in sacks (5.5) and tackles behind the line of scrimmage (10). He also recovered three fumbles and forced one. He helped lead the Cardinals to a 9-3 season and a Gator Bowl berth. The Cardinals opened their season at Kentucky where Stanley recorded six stops. Against Oregon State, he had four tackles, two sacks, two tackles for a loss and recovered one fumble. He earned his first start of the season at South Florida and responded with six tackles before posting another six against Florida Atlantic. He also recorded two tackles for losses and caused and recovered a fumble in that game. Against North Carolina, he had three stops, one sack and one tackle for a loss. He earned his second start at West Virginia and posted a season-high eight tackles and one tackle behind the line. He posted six stops, 0.5 sacks, one tackle for a loss and recovered a fumble at Cincinnati and had two tackles, one sack and one tackle for a loss against Pittsburgh. He had four tackles, one sack and two tackles for losses against Syracuse. He started at Connecticut and had three tackles but was forced to sit out of the Gator Bowl against Virginia Tech after under going surgery on Dec. 15 to repair a torn pectoral muscle.

2004: As a junior, he started 10 contests at right defensive tackle and notched 30 tackles, four sacks and 4.5 stops for losses. He also caused and recovered two fumbles – including one in the end zone for a touchdown – and deflected two passes. In the opener, Stanley recorded two tackles, one sack and a forced fumble. Against Army, he added two more tackles and recovered a fumble. Stanley had three stops, one tackle behind the line of scrimmage and forced one fumble against East Carolina. He posted a season-high six tackles against Memphis. He tied his season high of six tackles against Houston while also posting 1.5 tackles for losses and one sack. At Cincinnati, he added four tackles, one for a loss, and a sack before recovering one fumble for a touchdown against Tulane. Against Boise State he had three tackles and one sack.

2003: He started 12 games for the Cardinals at left defensive end and then switched to left tackle for the GMAC Bowl. Stanley finished the year with 37 tackles, three sacks, 13 tackles for losses and two deflected passes. In the season opener at Kentucky, Stanley had four tackles and one tackle for a loss before posting another four tackles, one sack, one tackle for a loss and one fumble recovery against Syracuse. Against UTEP, he had one tackle and recovered one fumble. Against Temple, Stanley recorded five stops, three tackles for a loss and two sacks before adding two tackles and another tackle behind the line at South Florida. He had four tackles and two tackles behind the line and added five stops against Houston. At Cincinnati, he had a season-high six stops and added two more for losses. He did not record any stats in the GMAC Bowl against Miami.

2002: Stanley played in 10 games as a reserve defensive end helping the Cardinals finish with a 7-5 record. He recorded 16 tackles, 2.5 tackles behind the line and a fumble recovery – returning it 56 yards – in his first year of play. At Colorado State, he was held to zero tackles but had a crucial fumble recovery which he returned 56 yards to the two-yard line, setting up a Cardinal touchdown. He posted a season-high five tackles at Army along with one tackle behind the line. In the season finale he posted four stops and one tackle behind the line at Houston.

PERSONAL: Stanley attended Westover High School in Albany, Ga., where he lettered four times in football and earned all-state honors as a defensive tackle during his junior and senior years. As a senior, he helped lead the team to an 11-2 record and the state semifinals. As a junior, he led the school to a state title with a 13-2 record. Stanley was a general studies major at Louisville.

PRO: With continuing inconsistencies in the kicking game throughout the 2005 season, the Dallas Cowboys looked to rookie Shaun Suisham (pronounced swee-ZUM) to turn things around. As a rookie, Suisham went to camp with the Pittsburgh Steelers and converted his only PAT try and a 46-yard field goal in a preseason game against Philadelphia. He was released by the Steelers at the end of camp and signed to the Cowboys practice squad on Sept. 4. He was released on Oct. 11 before signing to Dallas's active roster on Oct. 24. He played in two games for Dallas, but was released Nov. 19. He re-signed with Dallas Dec. 26 and played in the season final. In three games with the Cowboys, Suisham was three-of-four on field goal tries and eight-of-eight on PATs.

2005: After joining the Cowboys practice squad on Sept. 4 after spending the preseason in Pittsburgh, Suisham worked on his game until his Oct. 11 release. He rejoined the club on Oct. 24 and made his NFL debut against Arizona (10/30), converting all three PAT attempts and his first two NFL field goal tries from 21 yards. He did not attempt a field goal at Philadelphia (11/14) but converted all three PATs. Suisham was released on Nov. 19. He was re-signed by Dallas on Dec. 26 and converted his only PAT try against St. Louis (1/1/06) while making a 22-yard field goal and missing from 47-yards out.

COLLEGE: As a senior, Suisham earned second team All-MAC honors, finishing 12th in the nation in scoring with a 9.3 point-per-game average. He left Bowling Green as the school's all-time leading scorer (361 points) while also holding the Falcons record with 45 career field goals and adding 31 touchbacks on kickoffs. He was a Lou Groza Award semifinalist after setting the all-time NCAA IA record for PATs made (226-of-233). He closed his final campaign converting 14-of-20 field goal attempts and set a MAC record by making all 69 of his PAT tries. He kicked a season-long and career-long 52-yard field goal against Ohio. Suisham converted 16-of-24 field goal attempts and 56-of-60 extra point tries as a junior. He set school records for PAT attempts and conversions, hitting all nine attempts against EKU. He recorded a season-best 47-yard field goal at Purdue. As a sophomore, Suisham established new MAC and school records by converting 57-of-59 PATs. He also connected on 12-of-14 field goal tries, including a career-best three against Missouri. After receiving a medical redshirt as a true freshman, Suisham connected on 44-of-45 extra points and three-of-eight field goal tries. He finished the year third on the team with 53 points. As a true freshman, Suisham sat out the season due to an injury he suffered on the first day of spring drills and was redshirted.

PERSONAL: Suisham graduated from Wallaceburg, Ontario, Secondary School after being named the 1999 Conference Offensive MVP, setting school and Ontario field goal records. He was rated as the number-one kicker in Canada. As a rookie last season, Suisham was a member of the Dallas Cowboys Rookie Club, visiting area non-profit organizations and participating in community charity events. Suisham and his wife, Erin, were married during the offseason on February 25, 2006.

COWBOYS

PRO: After signing with the Cowboys as a rookie free agent following the 2005 NFL Draft, Tyson Thompson impressed coaches enough to become one of just two rookie free agents to make the team out of training camp and stay on the active roster all season – defensive tackle Thomas Johnson was the other. As a rookie, Thompson stepped into the role as the club's kickoff returner and went on to establish a number of club records. While finishing fourth in the NFC, ninth in the NFL, and tops among NFC rookies with a 24.5 return average, Thompson's 57 returns and 1,399 yards established single-season club records. He also proved himself as an able-bodied backup running back and will need to continue to show coaches he has what it takes to excel at this level to earn more playing time this season.

2005: Thompson finished his rookie season as the club record holder for kickoff returns (57) and kickoff return yards (1,399) while finishing fourth in the NFC, ninth in the league, with a 24.5 kickoff return yard average. He added 46 rushes for 182 yards and three catches for 16 yards. He was inactive for the season opener at San Diego (9/11) but earned a spot on the game-day roster against Washington (9/19). In his NFL debut, he logged three carries for four yards and returned three kickoffs for 94 yards – a season-high 31.3 avg. – including a season-long 49-yard return. He added five kickoff returns for a 20.6-yard average and a carry for three yards at San Francisco (9/25) before seeing considerable time at running back at Oakland (10/2) where he posted seven carries for 32 yards and his first career catch for eight yards. Against Philadelphia (10/9), Thompson earned Diet Pepsi NFL Rookie of the Week honors as he led the team in rushing with 75 yards on 20 carries after taking over in the second half for Julius Jones. He also returned three kickoffs for 87 yards (29.0 avg.), including a 40-yard return to open the game. He saw limited time in the back field rotation against the N.Y. Giants (10/16) with Jones out (ankle) and picked up three carries for 13 yards while averaging 20.0 yards on five kickoff returns. At Seattle (10/23), Thompson averaged 5.7 yards on six second half carries. He also returned three kickoffs for 94 yards to match his season-high average of 31.3. He rushed four times for 19 yards while spelling Marion Barber against Arizona (10/30). He then had five kickoff returns for 107 yards at Philadelphia (11/14). Against Detroit (11/20), Thompson saw action at running back for the first time in two weeks and picked up two yards on two runs. He returned three kickoffs for a 27.0-yard average on Thanksgiving Day against Denver (11/24). Against Kansas City (12/11), he averaged 26.0 yards on five kickoff returns as the Cowboys average starting position following kickoffs was the 31-yard line. Thompson had a season-high six returns for 136 yards at Washington (12/15) before running back five kicks for 132 yards, including a 40-yarder with 2:32 remaining in the game to set-up the game-winning touchdown drive at Carolina (12/24). In the season finale against St. Louis (1/1/06), he broke the club record for kickoff returns and return yards in a season by adding five returns for a season-high 143 yards. His 44-yard return with 1:52 remaining in the first half helped set-up a game-tying field goal.

COLLEGE: Thompson closed his collegiate career playing one season at San Jose State after playing two years at Garden City Community College. As a junior for the Spartans, his 811 rushing yards led the team and his five touchdowns were third best. At Garden City, he saw limited playing time but still rushed for 1,063 yards and 12 touchdowns on 159 carries. In his final game at the junior college level, he rushed 25 times for 323 yards and three touchdowns against nationally-ranked Glendale, Ariz., College.

PERSONAL: Thompson starred at Irving, Texas, High School as a running back. As a senior, he rushed for 2,418 yards on 358 carries and scored 160 points. He was a semi-finalist for the 1999 Texas Class 5A Player of the Year award. Thompson is the first product of Irving, Texas, home of the Dallas Cowboys and Texas Stadium, to play for the Dallas Cowboys. As a rookie, Thompson was a member of the Cowboys 2005 Rookie Club – a program designed to introduce rookie team members to community service in the Dallas area which included work with The Salvation Army, Children's Medical Center Dallas and Meals on Wheels.

PRO: The Dallas Cowboys signed wide receiver J.R. Tolver to the practice squad in the middle of the 2005 season to add young depth at the receiver spot. Tolver spent his first two years with the Miami Dolphins, who drafted him in the fifth round (169th overall) of the 2003 NFL Draft, before seeing time in the 2005 preseason with the Carolina Panthers. Tolver will have to use his practice experience and knowledge of the Cowboys offense to earn a spot on the 53-man roster.

2005: Tolver signed with Carolina as a free agent but was cut at the end of camp. He was out of football until signing to the Dallas practice squad on Oct. 10 where he remained for the season.

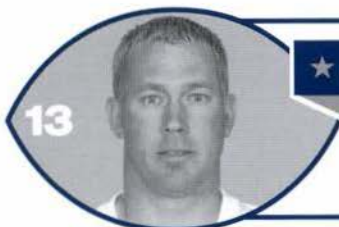

2004: Tolver returned for training camp with the Dolphins but was waived prior to the start of the season. He immediately re-signed to the club's practice squad where he spent the entire season.

2003: Tolver was selected in the fifth round (169th overall) by the Dolphins. As a rookie, he was a game-day inactive for the first 10 games of the season. He was active but did not play against Indianapolis (11/2). He injured his right patellar tendon leading up to the game at Tennessee (11/9). He was placed on injured reserve on Nov. 25 and underwent surgery on Dec. 1.

COLLEGE: Tolver was a four-year letterman and a three-year starter at San Diego State. He finished his career with school records in receptions (262) and yards (3,572) while also adding 18 scores. He was the only player in school history to lead the team in receiving yards for three straight years. Tolver led the team with 63 receptions for 878 yards and two touchdowns to earn All-Mountain West Conference honors as a junior. As a sophomore he was a first-team All-Mountain West Conference choice, leading the conference with 62 receptions for 808 yards.

PERSONAL: Tolver attended Mira Mesa High School in San Diego, Ca., where he was named the team's Most Valuable Player and an all-academic pick as a senior. He was a two-way starter and a three-year letterman at quarterback. He also lettered in basketball. In high school he visited children in local hospitals and served as a high school mentor. He lived in Shreveport, La., for 12 years after his father was discharged from the Navy before moving back to San Diego to attend high school. Upon coming to Dallas, he joined several teammates and helped serve an early Thanksgiving Day meal to over 300 deserving men and women being assisted by The Salvation Army. He earned his bachelors of science degree in business with an emphasis in computers in May 2002 and worked on his master's degree in business.

PRO: Due to the struggles in the Cowboys kicking game throughout the 2005 season, Dallas broke protocol and was aggressive in searching for a proven, dependable veteran kicker, signing free agent Mike Vanderjagt on March 23. Through eight NFL seasons, Vanderjagt is the most accurate kicker in NFL history, boasting an 87.5 (217-of-248) field goal conversion percentage. He also holds the league record for most consecutive field goals made with 42, spanning the 2002, 2003 and 2004 seasons. His 28 consecutive kicks made (1999-2000) is tied for the seventh longest streak in league history. In 2003, he became just the fourth kicker in league history to convert every one of his field goal attempts on the season. His 37 field goal conversions in 2003 tied John Kasay (1996) for the fourth most field goals made in a season. With 217 career field goals made, he is second behind only Matt

Stover (Baltimore) for the most field goals made from 1998-2005. Three times in his career, he has finished a season with a field goal percentage over 90.0%. He has three five-field goal games and nine four-field goal games to his credit. He has also connected on 14 50+-yard field goals in his career. On 346 point after tries, Vanderjagt has missed just twice in eight seasons. With 100-plus points in each of his eight NFL seasons, Vanderjagt is third all-time for consecutive 100-point seasons to open a career -13, Jason Elam - Den. (current), 10, Adam Vinatieri - Ind. (current) and 8, Ryan Longwell - Min. (current). Vanderjagt's resume also boasts 11 game-winning field goals, classified as the winning field goal in overtime or in the final 15 seconds of regulation.

52-of-52 on PATs. His 121 points on the year tied for the fourth most of his career and was good for third in the AFC and tied for fifth in the NFL. Against Jacksonville (9/18) he hit a 41-yard field goal with 1:54 remaining to preserve a 10-3 Colts victory. Two times during the season, against Pittsburgh (11/28) and at Jacksonville (12/11) he racked up 14 points, going four-of-four on field goals and hitting on two extra points. The 26-18 win over the Jaguars clinched the AFC South title for the Colts.

2004: Vanderjagt appeared in and scored in 15 games for the Colts. He was 20-of-25 on field goals, including two game-winners, and 59-of-60 on PATs for 119 points. He extended his NFL record streak for consecutive field goals to 42 before missing his second attempt, from 48 yards, at New England (9/9). Vanderjagt missed the game against Oakland (10/10) with a hamstring injury that snapped a streak of 91 consecutive games played. He logged his first game-winning field goal of the season – a 35-yarder – against Minnesota (11/8). His streak of 149 consecutive PATs made was snapped after an attempt at Detroit (11/25) was blocked. Against San Diego (12/26) he notched his second game-winning three-pointer of the year with a 30-yarder in overtime. In the Colts two postseason contests, Vanderjagt was seven-of-seven on point after tries and hit his only field goal try, a 23-yard boot, which proved to be the only points Indianapolis managed in a Divisional Playoff game at New England (1/16/05).

2003: Vanderjagt had the best season of his career and one of the best seasons for a kicker in league history after converting all of his kick attempts (37-of-37 for field goals and 46-of-46 for PATs). He led the AFC with 157 points to set a single-season club record. He recorded a field goal in each game and produced only the fourth perfect field goal season in NFL history. He had three game-winning field goals on the year – a 45-yarder at Cleveland (9/6) with 0:01 remaining, a 29-yarder in overtime at Tampa Bay (10/6) and a 43-yarder with no time left at Houston (12/18). With a club record-tying five-for-five field goal performance at Tennessee (12/7), Vanderjagt was named the AFC Special Teams Player of the Week. He was then named Special Teams Player of the Month for October, November and December, joining Barry Sanders (October, November and December, 1997) as the only NFL players to win monthly awards for three consecutive months. During the Colts three-game playoff run, Vanderjagt was true on all of his kick attempts – three field goals and 12 PATs.

2002: Vanderjagt extended his club record for consecutive seasons with 100-plus points to five after tallying 103 points – 23-of-31 on field goals and 34-of-34 on PATs. He was also the club's scoring leader for the fifth consecutive season – the second longest streak in club history (nine, Dean Biasucci, 1986-94). He connected on all five of his kicks against Baltimore (10/13), tying his club-record for single-game field goal conversions. In the win at Denver (11/24), he became the only NFL kicker to force and decide an overtime game with two 50-plus yard field goals (54-yarder with 0:03 remaining and a 51-yarder 5:38 into the extra period). In the Colts lone playoff game at the N.Y. Jets (1/4/03), he missed his only field goal attempt from 41 yards out.

including 15-of-20 from 40+ yards, and 41-of-42 on PATs for 125 points – tops in the AFC and second in the NFL (127, Jeff Wilkins, St.L). He converted a field goal in 13 games and hit on three field goals against New England (10/21) and at Buffalo (11/4). He tied a club record for most field goals in a game when he converted all five of his tries against Denver (1/6/02).

2000: After ringing up 121 points (25-of-27 field goals and 46-of-46 PATs), Vanderjagt was second in the AFC and tied for fifth in the league in scoring and was named to the AFC's Pro Bowl team. He started the season with a streak of 26 consecutive field goals and extended it to 28 before missing a 47-yard attempt against Oakland (9/10). The streak of 28 consecutive field goals was then tied for the fifth longest in league history. Following the miss against the Raiders, he started a streak of 16 consecutive field goals over nine games. Included in that streak were three games in which he hit three field goals – at New England (10/8), at Seattle (10/15) and against the N.Y. Jets (11/12). His streak came to an end when he missed a 59-yard attempt against Miami (11/26). Vanderjagt closed out the season with seven consecutive field goals, including a season-long 48-yarder at Miami (12/17). In an AFC Wild Card game at Miami (12/30), he was three-of-four on field goals hitting from 32, 26 and 50 yards and missing from 49 yards.

1999: Vanderjagt connected on 26 consecutive field goals over the last 10 games of the season to set a club record. For the season, he was true on 34-of-38 field goal tries and all 43 PATs for 145 points, tops in the league. At Miami (12/5) he was good from 44, 48 and 53 yards with the 53-yarder splitting the uprights at the gun to give the Colts a 37-34 win. The 53-yard game-winning boot was the longest game-winner in franchise history and the third longest game-winner on a final play in NFL history. It also extended Indianapolis's NFL record to 14 consecutive seasons with at least one 50+ yarder. He rang up another game-winner from 21 yards with 0:04 remaining at Cleveland (12/26). In the Divisional Playoff game against Tennessee (1/16/00), Vanderjagt was three-of-three on field goals (40, 40, and 34).

1998: Vanderjagt made his NFL debut in Indianapolis and was good on 27-of-31 field goals and 23-of-23 PATs for 104 points. Off that performance, he was named to the All-Rookie first-team by Pro Football News Weekly, Football Digest and the Pro Football Weekly and Pro Football Writers of America. His 87.1 field goal percentage was the third best for any rookie or first-year kicker in NFL history (91.9 Richie Cunningham, Dallas, 1997 and Roger Ruzek, Dallas, 1987). His 27 field goals tied him for fourth in the AFC and eighth in the NFL. He began his NFL career nailing eight consecutive field goals. He was 14-of-18 from 40+ yards and six-of-nine from 50+ to tie a club single-season mark.

1997: Vanderjagt saw action in 18 games for the Toronto Argonauts of the Canadian Football League, helping lead the team to their second consecutive Grey Cup championship while handling kicking and punting responsibilities. He was tops in the league in punting average (44.9), punting 118 times for 5,303 yards. He was 33-of-43 on field goals with a long of 51 and converted all 77 PAT tries. In the battle for the Grey Cup, he was five-of-five on field goals to up his championship game total to nine-of-nine.

1996: Vanderjagt started the year with the Minnesota Fighting Pike of the Arena Football League. He posted 13 points on the year, converting seven-of-10 PATs and two-of-six field goals. He then headed north to play in the CFL for Toronto and helped lead the Argonauts to the first of two consecutive Grey Cup championships. He averaged 43.3 yards on 103 punts, with a long of 70 yards, was 40-of-56 on field goals with a long of 51 and perfect on all 59 PATs.

1995: Vanderjagt signed with the Argonauts as a free agent on March 16 but was released June 25 and was out of football.

1994: After signing with Toronto on Feb. 15, Vanderjagt was released on June 13. He signed with the Hamilton Tiger-Cats on June 24 but was released July 11 and remained out of football.

1993: Vanderjagt made his professional debut with the Saskatchewan Roughriders of the CFL and saw time in two games. He punted 17 times for 672 yards – a 39.5-yard average.

COLLEGE: Vanderjagt was a two-time letterman at West Virginia as a junior and senior after spending his first two collegiate campaigns at Allan Hancock Junior College in California. As a senior, he was 15-of-20 on field goal tries and 27-of-32 on PATs. While punting as a junior, he averaged 39.2 yards on 52 punts. While at Allan Hancock, Vanderjagt was an all-conference

PERSONAL: Vanderjagt was born in Oakville, Ontario, Canada and lettered in basketball, football, soccer and track at White Oaks High School. Through his career with the Colts, he was very active in the community. He was an instructor for Colts 101 and 201, an annual football clinic for fans. He also founded the Just Kickin' It fund to benefit children in Indianapolis and Toronto areas with terminal or life-altering illnesses. To date, the fund has donated more than $13,000 to the Mickey Meyer Foundation (a Brownsburg Little League all-star who suffered a head injury). Vanderjagt also led the Annual Swim for the Indiana School for the blind to help raise money for students and school programs. He conducted several visits to Riley Hospital for Children and Methodist Hospital's Children Ward, hosting an annual New Year's Eve party for children and families at Riley. He has hosted an annual kicking camp for deaf and underprivileged children along with two events in conjunction with the Indianapolis Police Department to offer free finger-printing to children. He has hosted 13 families from Riley Hospital at Colts home games and honored the attendees with a pizza party. Vanderjagt and his wife, Janalyn, have a son, Jay Michael (4/13/99).

PRO: As the 11th player taken in the 2005 NFL Draft, the expectations for DeMarcus Ware were tremendous. While making the adjustment from college defensive end in a 4-3 scheme to outside linebacker in the Cowboys new 3-4 defense, Ware lived up to the hype and had one of the best rookie seasons ever by a Dallas defensive player. He was second in the NFL among rookies with eight sacks and just the third rookie in club history to lead or tie for the team lead in sacks in a season. His eight sacks were the third most in club history by a rookie and the second most ever by a linebacker no matter the experience:

Cowboys Single-Season Rookie Sack Record

- Willie Townes, 19669.0
- Harvey Martin, 19739.0
- DeMarcus Ware, 20058.0
- Jimmie Jones, 19907.5

Cowboys Single-Season Sack Record by a Linebacker

- Anthony Dickerson, 198310.5
- DeMarcus Ware, 20058.0
- Garry Cobb, 19887.5

He executed the switch to linebacker and proved his worth at the position beyond being just a pass rusher with 65 tackles, tops among club rookies and fifth on the team. A speed rusher with the size and athletic ability to play with his hand on the ground or as an outside linebacker, Ware was one of the fastest (4.51 in the 40) and strongest (430-pound bench press) players to play at Troy. He finished his collegiate career as the school's all-time leader in tackles for losses (58.0), yards from tackles for losses (252), sacks (27.5) and yards from sacks (198) despite seeing full-time duty in only three seasons. Now with a full off-season to improve his strength and conditioning and a year of experience on the playing field under his belt, Ware is poised to be a fixture on the outside of a young Cowboys defense for years to come.

2005: Ware tied Greg Ellis for the team lead in sacks with eight, becoming just the third rookie in club history to lead or tie for the team lead in sacks (Chuck Howley - 1961 and Jimmie Jones - 1990) in a season. His eight sacks also ranked him second in the NFL among rookies. Ware was fifth on the team with 65 tackles, tops among club rookies. He led the team with 11 tackles behind the line, was second on the team with 19 quarterback pressures and tied for the team lead with three forced fumbles. A sign of his improvement during the year can be seen in the 41 tackles, four sacks, seven tackles for losses, three forced fumbles and 10 pressures he recorded over the final eight games of the season. Ware started the season opener at San Diego (9/11) at weakside linebacker and recorded three tackles, a tackle for a loss and a quarterback pressure in his NFL debut. Against Washington (9/19) he recorded four tackles and a tackle for a loss for the second straight week while helping limit Clinton Portis to 52 yards on 17 carries. Ware recorded his first career sack at San Francisco (9/25) when he tackled Tim Rattay. At Oakland (10/2) Ware posted three tackles, a tackle for a loss and a third-down sack of Kerry Collins in the first quarter that ended a Raiders drive at the Dallas 12-yard line and forced a field goal. He then recorded a sack of Donovan McNabb on the Eagles first play from scrimmage against Philadelphia (10/9), setting the tone for a day in which the Dallas defense would allow just 129 total yards, including just 19 on the ground - the fourth fewest in a game in club history. He recorded a sack in his fourth straight game with a trap of Eli Manning against the N.Y. Giants (10/16), and he tied for third on the team with four tackles as the Giants finished the game one-of-11 on third downs. The four-game sack streak was the longest by a Dallas defender since Greg Ellis did so Weeks 2-5 of the 2004 season. He was once again a dominating force on defense with three pressures and five tackles while also adding a tackle for a loss at Seattle (10/23). He helped limit the NFL's top ranked offense entering the game to 289 total yards, 118 below their season average, and one touchdown. Shaun Alexander, the NFL leading rusher, was limited to 61 yards on 21 carries (2.9 avg.). Against Arizona (10/30) Ware recorded four tackles and three quarterback pressures, including one that led to Anthony Henry's interception and 58-yard return for a score. The defense limited the Cardinals to 213 total yards, including just 71 rushing. For his play in the month of October, Ware earned NFL Defensive Rookie of the Month honors. A month that saw him total 16 tackles, 3.0 sacks and seven quarterback pressures while helping Dallas to a 3-2 record. His exploits came against some of the league's toughest offenses and the Cowboys defense allowed just four touchdowns in those five games. His constant pressure helped limit the NFL's top ranked passing offense to 178 net passing yards at Philadelphia (11/14) where he recorded six tackles along with a pressure and a tackle for a loss. Against Detroit (11/20) he had two tackles behind the line of scrimmage and three other stops as Kevin Jones was held to 29 rushing yards on 12 carries. As a team, the Lions ran for just 57 yards and picked up only 226 total yards on the day. Ware was second on the team with six tackles against Denver (11/24). At the N.Y. Giants (12/4) he was a force all over the field, finishing second on the team with seven tackles along with two tackles for losses and a season-high four quarterback pressures – one of which led to an Aaron Glenn interception in the end zone to end a Giants scoring drive. New York was limited to one offensive touchdown and 150 net passing yards on the day. He again led the team with three quarterback pressures and four tackles against Kansas City (12/11). Ware was the NFC Defensive Player of the Week and the Diet Pepsi Rookie of the Week for his play at Carolina (12/24). Against the Panthers he tied Randy White's rookie single-game record with three sacks of Jake Delhomme. He forced a fumble on all three sacks, the first time a Cowboy has forced three fumbles in a game since records were first kept in 1984. He was also second on the team with a career-high eight tackles and had a tackle behind the line as the Panthers were limited to 71 rushing yards on 24 carries. Ware recorded his team-high tying eighth sack of the season against St. Louis (1/1/06) as the Rams were held to 253 total yards.

COLLEGE: As a senior, Ware garnered third-team All-America, All-Sun Belt and Sun Belt

Defensive Player of the Year honors after recording 53 tackles, 29 pressures, 19 tackles for losses, a career-high 10.5 sacks and four forced fumbles in leading Troy to its first bowl appearance in school history. He was also a finalist for the Ted Hendricks Award, which is given annually to the top defensive end in college football. Ware started every game at left defensive end as a junior and recorded 62 tackles, a career-high 32 pressures, 16 tackles for losses, six sacks and a career-high five forced fumbles to earn first-team All-Independent honors from ESPN and College Football News. Ware started his sophomore season as a reserve, but moved into the starting lineup at left end the second week of the season and went on to record a career-high 72 tackles, a career-high 20 stops for losses, 13 pressures and nine sacks. As a true freshman, Ware saw action in eight games as a reserve defensive end and recorded 14 tackles, three stops for losses and two sacks.

PERSONAL: Ware played football for Auburn, Ala., High School during his junior and senior seasons, and earned all-area honors following a senior campaign in which he totaled 55 tackles and seven sacks. He also earned most valuable linebacker, wide receiver and leadership honors from the team. He was also a member of the basketball, baseball and track teams. Ware graduated from Troy with a degree in Business Information Systems, becoming the first member of his family to graduate from college. He and wife, Taniqua, have been very active in the Dallas/Fort Worth community during their first year in town. Ware was a member of the Cowboys 2005 Rookie Club – a program designed to introduce rookie team members to community service in the Dallas area which included work with The Salvation Army, Children's Medical Center Dallas and Meals on Wheels. He also helped with the ribbon cutting ceremony for the Dallas Cowboys/Rent-A-Center RAC Room (teen recreational room) located at the Oak Cliff Boys and Girls Club. During the 2006 offseason Ware was a co-host – along with fellow teammate Marcus Spears – for the second annual Taste of the NFL: The Ultimate Dallas Cowboys Tailgate Party at Abacus restaurant that benefited The North Texas Food Bank. The event raised enough money to provide 330,000 meals to North Texans in need. The Ware's also participated in the team's annual support of The Salvation Army Angel Tree program by providing Christmas gifts for families in need.

COLLEGE: With their fifth round pick (138th overall) in the 2006 NFL Draft, Dallas selected Pat Watkins – an athletic and instinctive safety with great range from Florida State University. He finished his college career with the Seminoles playing in 49 consecutive games and tallying 13 interceptions. He is also one of the game's top special teams coverage players, a skill that will land him considerable playing time as a rookie. Watkins's durability and quickness should also have him in the mix to compete for playing time in the defensive backfield this season.

2005: Watkins played in all 13 games, starting 10 contests for the Seminoles, and finished third on the team with 77 tackles. He tied for the team lead with three interceptions, giving him 10 for his career and earning him honorable mention All-ACC accolades. He helped lead his team to the Orange Bowl, where they eventually fell to the third ranked Penn State 26-23 in overtime. In the bowl game, Watkins tied his career-high with 10 tackles and added 1.5 tackles for a loss. He first recorded the career-high 10 stops against Miami. He was also a part of the special teams units, serving as a gunner on both punt and kickoff returns. In the ACC Championship game he made an open field tackle on punt coverage and downed a punt on the one-yard line.

2004: He started all 12 games for Florida State and finished with four interceptions which tied him for second in the ACC with his teammate Antonio Cromartie. He also tied for eighth in the ACC and second on the team with a single-season career-high 10 passes broken up. He posted 56 tackles on the year, good for second among defensive backs and tied for the team lead with two fumble recoveries and two forced fumbles. He helped lead the Seminoles to a 10-3 record and a victory over West Virginia in the Gator Bowl. Against Florida he tied his season-high with nine stops. He recorded five-or-more tackles seven times during the season with eight at Miami and six against Virginia, Maryland and North Carolina State.

2003: Watkins played in all 13 games helping lead the Seminoles to a 10-3 record and a berth in the Orange Bowl against Miami. He tied for the team lead with three interceptions – coming against North Carolina, Georgia Tech and Miami. He ranked third on the team with eight passes defended and fifth with 62 tackles. In his first career start in the Orange Bowl against Miami – a game Florida State lost 16-14 – he recorded a season-high nine stops. In the season opener against North Carolina, he tallied eight tackles. He posted at least six tackles in a game four times – two in wins over Notre Dame and NC State. He scored his first career defensive touchdown on a 25-yard fumble recovery against the Gators to tie the score at 24 late in the third quarter.

2002: As a freshman, he played in 11 games, including the Seminoles Sugar Bowl loss to Georgia. He recorded seven of his 10 tackles in the final five games in helping Florida State reach a 9-5 record.

PERSONAL: Watkins was an All-America first-team selection by the USA Today, a Parade magazine All-America selection and the number one rated prep safety in the nation by TheInsiders.com and Max Emfinger after his high school career at Lincoln High School in Tallahassee, Fla. During his senior season he recorded 140 stops, six interceptions and two fumble recoveries on defense and added six kickoff returns for touchdowns. He was a social science major while at Florida State.

COWBOYS

COLLEGE: A versatile offensive lineman, who started at every position along the line at some point in his college career, the Dallas Cowboys drafted E.J. Whitley in the seventh round (224th overall) of the 2006 NFL Draft to provide them with depth at numerous positions along the line. He finished his collegiate career at Texas Tech with 45 starts, the most among linemen in his senior season. On May 7, the final day of the club's rookie camp, Whitley tore the ACL in his left knee and underwent surgery on May 30. He will miss the entire 2006 season while rehabbing his repaired knee.

2005: A leader both on and off the field, Whitley was named a team captain as a senior and earned All-Big 12 second team for his work as a starter at both guard spots and at center. He helped lead the Raiders to the SBC Cotton Bowl. On the season, his blocking allowed Taurean Henderson to become one of the league's top running backs as the running game produced 25 touchdowns, the most since 1996 and had over 100 rushing yards in each game for just the second time under head coach Mike Leach. Whitley was part of an offensive unit that led the country in passing for the fourth straight season and that finished among the top five in scoring last year.

2004: Whitley started all 12 games at offensive tackle and helped block and protect for first-year quarterback Sonny Cumbie – who led the country in passing and total offense. He also helped lead the Raiders in an upset victory over California in an offensive shoot-out in the Pacific Life Holiday Bowl. His physical presence inside helped running backs Henderson and Jonnie Mack have successful years as they combined for 21 of the team's total 23 rushing touchdowns.

2003: He earned Honorable Mention All-Big 12 playing all line positions as part of the nation's top ranked passing offense as a sophomore. He helped decrease the number of sacks from 46 in 2002 to 23 in 2003 while providing Tech quarterback B.J. Symons enough time to air it out. He was also part of the offensive unit that led the Raiders to a victory over Navy in the Houston Bowl that set a bowl season-best 497 passing yards. Against the nation's top defensive unit, Oklahoma, the offensive line did not allow a sack and against Baylor put up a season-high 716 total yards of offense – the second-best single-game total in school history.

2002: Following his redshirt season, Whitley was named to the All-Big 12 Academic Second Team and All-Big 12 Coaches Honorable Mention after playing as a reserve most of the season. He did manage two starts in the final two games of the season and picked up the Hammer Award against Oklahoma State. As a starter at right tackle in the Tangerine Bowl, Whitley's play helped the offense put up 55 points – the most in school history for a bowl game and give Tech the 55-15 rout over Clemson. He also played an important role in blocking and pass protection as quarterback Kliff Kingsbury surpassed 5,000 passing yards in a season becoming just the third player in Division 1-A to accomplish the feat at that time.

PERSONAL: A first-team all-state and two-time first-team all-district player at Texas City, Texas, High School, Whitley helped lead Texas City to a state championship in 1999 with a 14-0 record as part of the state's top ranked defensive unit. He earned defensive MVP as a member of the basketball team and was named TCHS Male Athlete of the Year as a senior.

COWBOYS

PRO: Few players have come to the Dallas Cowboys with a higher level of hype and expectation than safety Roy Williams. Even fewer of those heralded newcomers have been able to exceed the advanced billing in the fashion that Williams has been able to do in his first four years in the league. The eighth overall selection in the 2002 NFL Draft, and a Dallas starter (64 straight regular season games) from his first day of training camp, Williams's string of 65 straight starts (including playoffs) is the longest active streak on the team. He earned All-Rookie recognition in 2002 while tying for the NFL interception lead among rookies with five and then followed that performance with All-Pro and Pro Bowl honors following his second campaign. Following the 2004 and 2005 seasons, he earned his second and third trips to Hawaii as a member of the NFC Pro Bowl squad. It is rare for such a young player to create the type of impact that Williams has had on the Dallas defense – both as a ferocious run stopper and as a big playmaker in pass defense. Capable of making plays dropping back into coverage or rushing the passer, Williams is one of just four defensive backs (Ronde Barber, Brian Dawkins and Rodney Harrison) to have posted at least two sacks and two-or-more interceptions in the same season in three of the last four years. He has returned three of his 12 career interceptions for touchdowns leaving him one touchdown shy of the club record of four that is held by Dennis Thurman and Dexter Coakley. He is also ninth in the NFL in sacks by a defensive back since entering the league in 2002 with 6.5. As one of the bigger safeties in the league – and a very sure tackler – Williams also has a knack for being able to get all of his body mass into his tackles. Williams has a unique flair for making the big hit that stops opposing runners immediately – without yielding any additional ground. Williams aptly fits the prototypical description of the guy who is always around the ball. He is above the standard in size, speed, attitude and instinct, but his greatest asset may be his burning competitive nature. He also has natural leadership ability that has already been positively received in the early stages of an NFL career that is off to a blazing start.

2005: In being named to his third consecutive NFC Pro Bowl squad, Roy Williams finished the season second on the Cowboys defense in tackles with 82. He tied for the team lead in forced fumbles, while also tying for third on the club in interceptions (three) and passes defended (eight). Williams was one of just three defensive backs (Brian Dawkins and Al Harris) in the NFL to record more than two sacks and two interceptions. He was seventh in the NFC, 12th in the NFL, among defensive backs with 2.5 sacks – a total that tied him for fourth on the team. In the season opening win at San Diego (9/11), Williams registered five tackles and half a sack, marking his first sack since 2003. His effort helped limit LaDainian Tomlinson to 72 rushing yards. In the Monday night loss to Washington (9/19), he recorded another sack to go along with two tackles and a pass defended. He also forced a Ladell Betts fumble just before halftime that Keith Davis recovered. In the key divisional win over Philadelphia (10/9), Williams had two tackles, a tackle for a loss and a sack as the Dallas defense limited the Eagles top ranked offense to 129 total yards, including just 110 through the air. Williams had a dominating day in the overtime victory over the N.Y. Giants (10/16) with five tackles, a pass defended and a special teams stop. He made his biggest play of the game with 1:26 remaining in regulation when he tackled Brandon Jacobs at the goal line and forced a fumble that he then recovered to end a Giants scoring drive. In the last-minute loss at Seattle (10/23), Williams recorded his 10th career interception – his first of the season – and added five tackles as the NFL's top ranked offense entering the game was limited to 289 total yards, 118 below their season average, and one touchdown. Shaun Alexander, the NFL leading rusher at 119 yards-per-game (5.5 avg.), was limited to 61 yards on 21 carries (2.9 avg.). Williams's fourth quarter interception of Matt Hasselbeck was at the Seattle 24-yard line, setting up a Dallas field goal. In the win over Arizona (10/30), he led the team with a season-high nine tackles, as the Cardinals were limited to 213 total yards, including just 142 net passing yards, second fewest allowed by Dallas for the year. In the Monday night win at Philadelphia (11/14), Williams provided the Cowboys defensive play of the year by scoring the game-winning touchdown on a 46-yard interception return that put the Cowboys up by a 21-20 margin with 2:43 remaining in the fourth quarter. It was his second interception of the season and his third career interception return for a touchdown. He also added six tackles on the night against the Eagles. In the win over Detroit (11/20), he was third on the team with six tackles as he helped hold the Lions to 226 total yards, including just 57 on the ground, the second fewest of the year allowed by Dallas. In the overtime loss to Denver (11/24) on Thanksgiving Day, Williams led the Cowboys with eight tackles and forced a fumble at the Broncos 10-yard line that Terence Newman recovered. The fumble set up Dallas's game-tying fourth quarter touchdown. The Broncos were limited to 149 passing yards and their wide receivers had just six catches for 64 yards – with just one catch, a 20-yarder, over 13 yards. In the following week's loss at the N.Y. Giants (12/4), he tied for second on the team with seven tackles while helping limit New York tight end Jeremy Shockey to just two receptions for 20 yards. The Giants were held to just 150 net passing yards on the day along with one offensive touchdown. In the thrilling come-from-behind win over Kansas City (12/11), Williams was third on the team with six tackles and added his only quarterback pressure of the season. He was second on the team in tackles at Washington (12/18) with seven stops. In the following week's win at Carolina (12/24), he recorded just one tackle but broke up two passes, including a fourth-quarter interception of Jake Delhomme at the Dallas eight-yard line. He returned the interception six yards before being tackled. On the tackle, he suffered a sprained ankle and saw limited action the rest of the game. He was limited by the ankle injury in the season ending loss to St. Louis (1/1/06) and recorded just one tackle and a special teams stop.

2004: In earning his second straight Pro Bowl selection, Williams closed the year second on the team in tackles with 106 – marking his second 100-plus tackle season in his three years in the NFL. He had two interceptions and led the team in tackles for lost yardage with five. He was also third on the team in passes defended with nine. In the season opening loss at Minnesota (9/12), Williams led all Dallas defensive backs with seven tackles. In the home opening win over Cleveland (9/19), Williams tied for the team lead with six tackles. His effort helped shut down the Browns passing game, as Jeff Garcia was eight-of-28 for 66 net yards. In the Monday night win at Washington (9/27), Williams had a career-high 14 tackles to go along with two pass deflections. His last tackle of the night kept Redskins receiver Rod Gardner in bounds – and unable to stop the clock – after a Washington completion to the Dallas 21-yard line. He added seven tackles in the loss to the Steelers (10/17). Williams led all defensive backs in tackles at Green Bay (10/24) with eight. In the win over Detroit (10/31), Williams led all Dallas defenders in tackles with 10 while also knocking down a pass. He had a number of punishing tackles against the Lions and set the tone early in the game with a big hit on Tai Streets. His eight tackles at Cincinnati (11/7) were the most by a Dallas defensive back. He registered four stops and a pressure in the Thanksgiving Day victory over Chicago (11/25) as the Bears were limited to 49 rushing yards on 20 carries (2.5 avg.) and 140 total yards for the game – the lowest total allowed by Dallas since Sept. 8, 1996. In the Cowboys come-from-behind Monday night victory at Seattle (12/6), Williams tallied seven tackles and forced his first fumble of the season. The fumble occurred on Williams's biggest hit of the night when he tackled Shaun Alexander in the third quarter for no gain and jarred the ball loose. Dat Nguyen recovered it and ran nine yards to the Seattle 21-yard line. Two plays later, Julius Jones ran 10 yards up the middle for a touchdown and a 26-14 Dallas lead. In the loss to New Orleans (12/12), Williams recorded his first interception of the season when he picked off Aaron Brooks on the opening drive of the second half. His 20-yard return to the Saints 42-yard line set up a Dallas field goal. He also had five tackles and two tackles for losses as the Dallas defense limited Deuce McAllister to 83 yards on 30 carries (2.8 avg.). At Philadelphia (12/19), he was third on the team with seven tackles, tied his career-high by breaking up three passes and added his second interception in as many weeks, returning the theft 33 yards. Williams helped limit Donovan McNabb and the eventual NFC Champions to 208 net passing yards. McNabb, the NFL's third ranked passer (107.2 rating) entering the day, was limited to a 62.0 rating with two interceptions. In the win over Washington (12/26), he tied for second on the team with seven tackles as the Redskins were held to 233 total yards. He also tackled Laveranues Coles for a six-yard loss on a screen pass. In the season ending loss at the N.Y. Giants (1/2/05), Williams was second on the team in tackles (eight). His effort helped limit the Giants to 235 total yards for the night.

2003: Williams built on his outstanding rookie season with an even better sophomore campaign. He was a major force on the NFL's top ranked defense, earning All-Pro honors from the Associated Press and The Sporting News. The starting free safety for the NFC squad in the Pro Bowl, Williams finished the year fourth on the team with 86 tackles and was second on the team with six tackles for losses. He was one of just 10 defensive backs in the NFL with two-or-more sacks (2.0) and interceptions (two). A true competitor and unselfish team-player, Williams's nine special teams tackles were the most by a Dallas starter. In the season opener against Atlanta (9/7), he recorded five tackles, forced a fumble that led to a sack and added a quarterback pressure. In pass coverage, he helped limit the Falcons wide receivers to six catches for 89 yards, including just two catches for 30 yards by Peerless Price. Williams led the team with six tackles in the overtime win at the N.Y. Giants (9/15). He recorded his biggest play of the day at the N.Y. Jets (9/28) when he forced a Curtis Martin fumble at the Cowboys 11-yard line in the second quarter. The ball rolled into the end zone where it was recovered by Darren Woodson to end a potential Jets scoring drive. On the ensuing possession, Dallas took the ball and drove 80 yards in the final 1:42 of the half to take a 14-3 lead. Against Arizona (10/5) Williams recorded his first interception of the season with a fourth quarter pick to end the Cardinals final drive of the game. His biggest hit of the day came in the second quarter when he tackled Emmitt Smith for no gain on a second quarter run, ending Smith's day with a fractured left shoulder blade on the play. His play helped limit the Cardinals to 151 total yards, including just 32 rushing on 18 carries (1.8 avg.). In the Cowboys 23-21 win over Philadelphia (10/12), he recorded his first sack of the season with a takedown of McNabb. He broke up a pass to Todd Pinkston at the goal line to prevent a touchdown later in the game and also had a tackle for a loss on the Eagles final drive when he and Dexter Coakley wrapped up McNabb. Coakley forced a fumble on the play to preserve the Cowboys 23-21 win. Williams recorded five tackles at Tampa Bay (10/26) and helped limit the Bucs to 133 net yards passing. Against Washington (11/2) he had five tackles and also recorded his second sack of the season along with two quarterback pressures. However, his biggest contribution on the day may have been the tone setting hit he made on the kickoff coverage unit in the second quarter after Dallas had taken a 7-6 lead. The Dallas defense limited Buffalo (11/9) to 185 total yards, including just 58 on seven second half possessions as Williams contributed seven tackles. His five tackles at New England (11/16) were part of the reason the Patriots were only able to rush for 65 yards on 25 carries (2.6 avg.). In the Cowboys 24-20 win over NFC Champion Carolina (11/23), he picked off his second pass of the season, returning the Jake Delhomme miscue 30 yards to the Panthers 11-yard line to set up a Dallas touchdown. He also recovered a fumble on the game's opening kickoff to set Dallas up for its first points of the game. His play and that of the rest of the Dallas defense helped limit Stephen Davis, the NFL's third leading rusher entering the day at 108.4 yards-per-game, to 59 yards on 26 carries (2.3 avg.) and helped force Delhomme into a nine-of-24 passing day (37.5%). He was second on the team with a season-high 12 tackles against Miami (11/27). Williams tied for second on the team with seven tackles at Washington (12/14) as the Redskins were limited to 161 total yards, including just 55 in the air. The Washington wide receivers were held to four catches for 29 yards, including none by Laveranues Coles. The following week, the N.Y. Giants (12/21) were limited to 213 total yards, including just 159 through the air as Williams recorded six tackles and led the team with two tackles for losses – one of which came on fourth down to end a Giants drive. Williams made his postseason debut at Carolina (1/3/04) and finished third on the team with eight tackles while also forcing a fumble.

2002: As a starter from day one, Williams not only provided a spark to the Dallas defense, but by mid-season, he became a force that was earning league-wide recognition and respect. An All-Rookie selection, Williams tied with teammate Derek Ross (and Baltimore safety Ed Reed) to lead all NFL rookies in interceptions with a team-high five. Those five thefts were the most by a Dallas safety since Darren Woodson had five in 1996. Williams was also the leading scorer on defense – returning two of his interceptions for touchdowns. He closed the year second on the team with 127 tackles, a figure that was tops in the NFL among rookie defenders and the second most ever by a Dallas rookie (Coakley, 136 in 1997). He also tied for second on the team in tackles for lost yardage (seven) and tied for the team lead on defense in forced fumbles (three – ninth in the NFL) and fumble recoveries (two – fourth in the NFL) – he also added a forced fumble and fumble recovery on special teams – while finishing third on the squad in passes broken up with nine. Williams became the first Cowboys rookie to start the season at safety since Ron Francis in 1987. In his first career start at Houston (9/8), Williams responded with four tackles and a quarterback pressure. At Philadelphia (9/22) Williams had his first career double-figure tackle game with 11 stops while adding two tackles for lost yardage and a fumble recovery. He first displayed the kind of big impact that he could have on a game in the 13-10 win at St. Louis (9/29). Williams led Dallas in tackles with a season-high 13 stops against the Rams while also forcing a Marshall Faulk fumble and breaking up a Jamie Martin pass. His pressure of Kurt Warner resulted in a first quarter interception by Greg Ellis and knocked Warner from the game. In the loss to the N.Y. Giants (10/6), Williams registered five tackles and his first career sack – a five-yard takedown of Kerry Collins. In the following week's victory over Carolina (10/13), he recorded six tackles before leaving in the third quarter with a left heel bruise. Still hobbled with the heel injury, he returned to action at Arizona (10/20) and finished fourth on the team with seven tackles while adding his second sack of the season and a season-high two passes defended. In the loss to Seattle (10/27), Williams was third on the team with nine tackles while helping limit Shaun Alexander to 2.5 yards-per-carry on 23 carries (58 yards). At Indianapolis (11/17) he collected 10 tackles while grabbing his first career interception when he picked off a Peyton Manning pass at the Cowboys 10-yard line to stop a potential scoring drive. In the win over Jacksonville (11/24), Williams enjoyed one of his finest days as a professional, recording eight tackles, two pass deflections, a forced fumble at the goal line that prevented a touchdown and a diving interception on the sideline that thwarted a bomb to Jimmy Smith, who he had covered step-for-step. In the Thanksgiving Day win over Washington (11/28), Williams turned in the key play of the game with an interception return of five yards for a touchdown that cut the Dallas deficit to 20-17. The third quarter touchdown turned the game's momentum and sparked Dallas's fourth quarter rally. It was his third straight game with a pick, becoming the first Dallas player to accomplish that feat since James Washington in Weeks 4-6 of the 1994 season. Michael Downs in 1981 was the last rookie to accomplish the feat. In the loss to San Francisco (12/8), Williams led the team with a season-high tying 13 tackles. He also tied for the team lead with three special teams tackles, including a hit on Jimmy Williams on a kickoff return that forced a fumble that he recovered to set up a Dallas field goal. He wrapped up his outstanding rookie season with a dominating performance at Washington (12/29). He logged seven tackles and was in on two Redskins turnovers. With 0:56 remaining in the first half and the Redskins driving, he picked off his fifth pass of the season, returning the Patrick Ramsey pass 85-yards for a touchdown to tie the score at 7-7. It was the eighth longest interception return in club history and the second best by a rookie. With the Redskins driving again in the third quarter, Tony Dixon forced Derris Thompson to fumble at the Cowboys 11-yard line and Williams fell on the loose ball. At the season's end, Williams was one of just 10 defensive backs in the NFL to record multiple sacks (2.0) and interceptions (five) in 2002.

COLLEGE: Considered by many to be the nation's top collegiate football player in 2001, Williams ended a brilliant college career with one year of eligibility remaining. Williams was a unanimous All-America and All-Big 12 selection at strong safety, while also claiming the 2001 Jim Thorpe Award that annually recognizes the nation's top defensive back. Williams was also named the Bronko Nagurski Award winner as the nation's top defender and Big 12 Defensive Player of the Year. In leading the Sooners to a 10-2 record and a victory in the Cotton Bowl, Williams set a school record with 27 pass deflections. He recorded a career-high 101 tackles with two sacks and 11 stops for losses. His 11 stops behind the line of scrimmage were one shy of his own school record for defensive backs (12 in 2000). He also intercepted five passes and recovered three fumbles. As a sophomore, Williams played a very visible role in the Sooners perfect 12-0 season and march to the national championship. The title marked the first for Oklahoma since 1985, and the championship season was capped with a victory over Florida State in the Orange Bowl. Williams was named All-America and was an All-Big 12 pick. Williams finished the year third on the team with 93 tackles. His 12 stops for losses set a school record for defensive backs, and he had four sacks, two interceptions and nine deflected passes while recovering one fumble. In 1999, Williams recorded 75 tackles and six stops for losses of 21 yards. He also intercepted two passes and deflected 11 others to earn Sporting News Freshman All-America honors. As a true freshman in 1998, he played in the first three games of the season before suffering a back injury that forced him out of action the remainder of the year. He received a medical hardship to regain a year of eligibility.

PERSONAL: Williams played quarterback, wide receiver and defensive back during his prep career at James Logan High School in Union City, Calif. He was the top-rated defensive back prospect in the western region by PrepStar after recording five interceptions and 56 tackles as a senior. He caught 13 passes for 301 yards and five touchdowns as a wide receiver while running for 162 yards and a touchdown on 38 carries. Williams was one of the main reasons that Logan had a four-year record of 38-10, two North Coast Section Class 4A championship appearances (1994 and 1997) and two semifinal appearances (1995 and 1996). He also lettered in track. After signing his first pro contract, Williams made a $100,000 contribution towards a new strength training facility at the University of Oklahoma, as a part of the school's new indoor workout complex. The new area, which carries Williams's name, complements the main Robin Siegfried Complex at the Switzer Center. Williams majored in sociology at Oklahoma. Since becoming a Dallas Cowboy, Williams has been very involved in the Dallas-Fort Worth community and was selected by a local panel as the team's 2004 candidate for the NFL Walter Payton Man of the Year Award. As a member of the Cowboys 2002 Rookie Club – a program designed to introduce rookie team members to community service in the Dallas area – Williams participated in monthly charity visits to non-profit organizations serving children. He also participated as a guest speaker at the club's annual United Way Hometown Huddle event for 100 children involved with The Salvation Army. Each year, Williams serves as a celebrity escort at the annual Children's Cancer Fund Fashion Show and Luncheon co-chaired by Troy Aikman and Roger Staubach that helps raise $500,000. During the 2003 offseason, he presented the Cowboys High School Coach of the Year Award to the Texas 5A State Champions Head Coach, Todd Dodge of Southlake Carroll High School. He also attended the JCPenney Afterschool Fund Gala benefiting the Boys & Girls Clubs, 4-H and Junior Achievement. Once the 2003 season rolled around, Williams stayed equally busy in the community by serving as the Cowboys NFL United Way spokesperson on a national PSA campaign, supporting the United Way of Metropolitan Dallas and becoming a member of the United Way African American Leadership Society. In between weekly game preparation, he volunteered to play Bingo with several teammates and 100 senior citizens at the Brady Center as part of the Cowboys annual United Way Hometown Huddle event. He also annually leads the volunteer effort as the team serves an early Thanksgiving Day meal to 300 men, women and children receiving assistance at

The Salvation Army. Every Christmas, he enjoys adopting several – 50 in 2005 – Salvation Army "Angels" from their Angel Tree program and providing Christmas gifts to area children in need. In 2004, the United Way of Metropolitan Dallas honored Williams with the Special Recognition Award for his commitment and leadership in the Dallas community. In July 2004, he launched The Roy Williams Safety Net Foundation to enhance the quality of life for low-income single mothers. Inspired by his sister, the foundation was set-up to identify and to provide the necessary assistance, resources and support to low-income single mothers who are raising children in the Dallas community. During the 2004 season and into the 2005 offseason, Williams remained busy in the community. He participated in a Rookie Club Alumni visit at the ChildCareGroup to carve Halloween pumpkins with 140 pre-school children from low-income families. Because of his endless hours of volunteerism, Williams was a NFL spokesperson for the league's "Join The Team" PSA campaign to promote volunteerism. He hit the ground running in the community during the 2005 offseason including volunteering for several community outreach efforts while at Pro Bowl in Honolulu. Upon his return to Dallas, Williams attended the team's annual NFL Draft Day Party hosted in appreciation for the club's loyal fans, served as honorary "Prince Charming" for the Fairy Tale Ball for the Classics in support of the arts for low-income children and attended the final practice of the Cowboys Jr. Player Development Football Clinic at Texas Stadium hosted for low-income youth from The Salvation Army Pleasant Grove Center. During the 2005 season and into the 2006 off season, he continued his ongoing commitment to the community as he once again headed up the player volunteers at the team's annual early Thanksgiving Day meal served to over 300 deserving men and women being assisted by The Salvation Army and also participated in the team's United Way Hometown Huddle event preparing and delivering meals to elderly clients through Meals on Wheels. Williams had a busy Spring of '06 and once again served as a celebrity escort at the Children's Cancer Fund Fashion Show. He also joined teammates DeMarcus Ware and Marcus Spears and a dozen other players in support of the Second Annual Taste of the NFL: The Ultimate Dallas Cowboys Tailgate Party that benefited the North Texas Food Bank which raised money to provide over 330,000 meals to North Texans in need. Williams was one of four NFL Players selected to represent the NFL and United Way of America in a new series of public service announcements for the 2006 football season, he was selected as one of The Sporting News "Good Guys" in a special section recognizing professional athletes who devise unique programs to help the community, he hosted a fundraising golf tournament for his foundation and ChildCare Group, and he served as a "celebrity coach" at the Dallas Cowboys/NFL Jr. Player Development Football Camp hosted by The Salvation Army. PRO: After emerging as an offensive bright spot as a rookie, Jason Witten took the next step toward elite status at tight end with his performance in year two. Putting together the greatest receiving year by a tight end in club history, Witten set club marks for receptions and receiving yards by a tight end with a team-leading 87 catches for 980 yards. He fell one yard shy of becoming the first tight end in club history to lead the team in receiving yards in a season. With those numbers, Witten also stood out as one of the NFL's up-and-coming stars. His receiving totals led the NFC and were second in the NFL to Kansas City Chiefs perennial All-Pro Tony Gonzalez. Witten's 87 catches were the 11th-most in NFL history for a tight end. Only five tight ends had ever caught more passes in a season than Witten, and two of those players, Ozzie Newsome and Kellen Winslow, are in the Hall of Fame. The others were Gonzalez, Todd Christensen and Ben Coates. Year three for Witten was more of the same. While his receiving numbers fell shy of his previous total - 66 receptions for 757 yards - his role in the offense was greatly expanded, and he was selected to his second consecutive Pro Bowl in place of the injured Jeremy Shockey. With his second Pro Bowl appointment, Witten became the fourth tight end in club history to make multiple appearances, joining Jay Novacek (five), Doug Cosbie and Billy Joe DuPree (three). Witten's 66 catches marked the first time in club history and just the 11th time in league history, that a tight end had recorded back-to-back 65-plus catch seasons. Witten's evolution as a clutch receiver can be seen in the fact that 101 of his 188 career receptions have gone for a first down, including 36 on third down to convert first downs. Regarded by many as one of the best pass catching tight ends in college football, Witten's love of contact as a former high school linebacker shows up in his desire to search out defenders and deliver key blocks for the ground game. In three years of college, Witten went from being a defensive end prospect to a third round NFL Draft choice (69th overall) as one of college football's top all-around tight ends. As he enters his fourth NFL season, his star continues to rise.

2005: In being named to his second consecutive Pro Bowl, Witten also became the first tight end in club history to post back-to-back 65-plus catch seasons. He finished third in the NFC (sixth in the NFL) among tight ends in receptions (66), fourth in the NFC (seventh in the NFL) among tight ends in receiving yards (757) and fourth in the NFC (tied for sixth in the NFL) among tight ends with a career-high tying six touchdown grabs. Witten finished second on the team against Washington (9/19) with four catches for 35 yards before leading the team with six catches for 85 yards and a touchdown at San Francisco (9/25). Each of his six catches on the night went for first downs. At Oakland (10/2) he led the team for the second consecutive week with five catches (four for first downs - including three on third down that kept scoring drives alive) for 49 yards. Against Philadelphia (10/9) he tied for the team lead with seven catches for 80 yards then posted five grabs for 56 yards and a touchdown against the N.Y. Giants (10/16). In the game, he hauled in a 26-yard pass in overtime to set Dallas up with a first down en route to the game-winning field goal. At Seattle (10/23) he led the team with 47 yards on two catches. He was second on the team with five catches for a game-high 71 yards, including a season-long 34-yard snag, against Arizona (10/30). Against Denver (11/24) on Thanksgiving Day, Witten tied his single-game career-high with nine catches for 82 yards and a score. He registered his 50th catch of the season – his only of the game – for five yards at the N.Y. Giants (12/4). Witten posted a season-high 93 yards and a touchdown on seven catches against Kansas City (12/11). He then led the team with four catches for 41 yards and a score at Washington (12/18). In the season finale against St. Louis (1/1/06), he was second on the team with four catches for 50 yards and a touchdown, his career-high tying sixth of the season.

2004: Witten put together the greatest receiving season by a tight end in club history and earned his first Pro Bowl appearance along the way – the first tight end to represent Dallas in the game since Novacek went to Hawaii in 1995. He led the club and tied for seventh in the NFC, 11th in the NFL, in receptions with 87 – tops in the NFC and second in the NFL among tight ends. With his team-high 87 receptions, Witten joined Cosbie as the only tight ends in club history to lead the team in receptions in a season. He finished one yard behind Keyshawn Johnson for the club lead in receiving yards with 980, ranking him 12th in the NFC, 27th in the NFL – tops in the NFC, second in the NFL among tight ends. With one more receiving yard, Witten would have been the first tight end in club history to lead the team in yardage in a season. In the home opener against Cleveland (9/19), he had a short-lived career-high 82 receiving yards on six catches, a harbinger of things to come. He reached the end zone for the first time in 2004 with a 10-yard grab in the 21-18 win at Washington (9/27) and then led the team with five receptions for 35 yards against the N.Y. Giants (10/10). Witten's season took off at Green Bay (10/24) when he led the team with eight catches for 112 yards and a touchdown. It was the first 100-yard receiving day by a Dallas tight end since Novacek had 104 yards against Green Bay in the playoffs on Jan. 8, 1995. Among his eight catches was a 42-yard touchdown catch, a career-best and the longest by a Dallas tight end since Cosbie's 61-yard scoring catch at the N.Y. Giants on Oct. 30, 1983. Against Detroit (10/31), Witten one-upped that performance with a career-high nine catches, good for 84 yards and a touchdown. It was the best reception total by a Dallas tight end since Novacek posted 11 against Green Bay on Jan. 8, 1995. Witten had a season-high 16.2 yard-per-catch average at Cincinnati (11/7) by leading the team with six receptions for 97 yards, including catches of 18, 25 and 33 yards. His hot streak continued against Philadelphia (11/17) when he set single-game career marks for receiving yards (133) and touchdowns (two) while tying his career-high with nine receptions. It was the first multiple-touchdown game by a Dallas tight end since Jackie Harris had two against San Francisco on Sept. 24, 2000. The 133 receiving yards were the second most ever by a Dallas tight end, behind Cosbie's club-record 159 yards at Detroit on Sept. 15, 1985. Six of his nine catches went for a first down, including grabs of 22, 29 (TD), 24 (TD) and 25 yards. On Thanksgiving Day against Chicago (11/25), he was limited to one catch for 17 yards, but he was a big part of the blocking for a running game that helped Jones rush for 150 yards – the first 100-yard rushing performance of the season by a Dallas back. At Seattle (12/6) he was second on the team with five catches for 61 yards, but his biggest play of the night in the Cowboys come-from-behind win came in the fourth quarter when he recovered an on-side kick to give Dallas the ball at the Cowboys 43-yard line, setting up the game-winning touchdown drive. He led the team with four receptions for 59 yards against New Orleans (12/12). His first catch of the day at Philadelphia (12/19) moved him past Cosbie's club-record for single-season receiving yardage by a tight end (793 yards), and his second catch moved him ahead of Novacek's club-record for receptions in a season by a tight end (68 receptions). He finished the game with a team-high six receptions for 66 yards. In the season-finale at the N.Y. Giants (1/2/05), Witten led the team with eight catches for 77 yards and a touchdown. He also hauled in a toss from Vinny Testaverde for a two-point conversion to put Dallas up 24-21 with 1:49 remaining. He had three catches for 40 yards on the final touchdown drive. He also had two catches to convert third downs on the third quarter drive that ended with his touchdown catch.

2003: Witten emerged as an outstanding all-around tight end in his first season in the pro ranks, tying for 18th in the NFL among tight ends with 35 receptions. Among his rookie peers, Witten tied for fourth in the NFL among all rookies with 35 receptions and was tops among rookie tight ends. Of his 35 catches, 18 went for a first down, including nine that converted third downs. Witten earned his first NFL start in his NFL debut when the Cowboys opened the season against Atlanta (9/7) with two tight ends. He went on to record his first catch with a 13-yard grab for a first down in the fourth quarter. He caught two passes for 25 yards in the overtime win at the N.Y. Giants (9/15), and then his blocking was a key part of a Dallas ground game that rushed for 202 yards on 41 carries (4.9 avg.) at the N.Y. Jets (9/28). Against Arizona (10/5), Witten recorded a team-high tying four receptions for 41 yards before suffering a fractured jaw in the fourth quarter. The injury forced him to have three plates inserted into the area during surgery on Oct. 6. He was inactive with the jaw fracture against Philadelphia (10/12), but returned to action at Detroit (10/19). Witten had three receptions for 24 yards, including two catches on third down to convert first downs, against Buffalo (11/9). In the Cowboys 24-20 win over eventual NFC Champion Carolina (11/23), Witten tied for the team lead with six receptions for 49 yards. He also had a critical 13-yard grab on third-and-eight with 1:47 remaining in the game to seal the win. On Thanksgiving Day against Miami (11/27), Witten recorded season-highs with eight receptions for 58 yards. It was the best reception total by a Dallas tight end since Eric Bjornson caught eight passes at San Francisco on Nov. 10, 1996. It also tied for the second-most receptions in a game by a Dallas receiver in 2003. He did not record a catch at Washington (12/14), but helped provide some of the blocking that sprang Troy Hambrick for 189 rushing yards, the third best rushing day in club history. His one catch against the N.Y. Giants (12/21) was a season-long 36-yard scoring grab that gave Dallas a 10-3 lead on the way to a 19-3 playoff clinching win. It was his first career touchdown catch and the longest scoring catch by a Dallas tight end since Cosbie had a 61-yard scoring grab at the N.Y. Giants on Oct. 30, 1983. In the season finale at New Orleans (12/28), he was second on team with five catches for 45 yards. He also added his first career special teams tackle in the game. Making his postseason debut at

COLLEGE: Witten left Tennessee after his junior season, but still managed to finish his career third among tight ends on the school's career reception list with 68 and fourth on the receiving yards list with 797. He closed out his collegiate career by establishing school records for receptions (39) and receiving yards (493) in a season by a tight end while adding five touchdowns in 2002. He was a consensus All-Southeastern Conference pick as well as an Academic All-SEC honoree as he led the conference's tight ends in receptions and receiving yards. Witten played in every game as a sophomore, starting three, and finished third on the team with 28 receptions for 293 yards (10.5 avg.) and a pair of touchdowns. Because of a personnel shortage, Witten was moved from defensive end and given a crash course at tight end as a freshman and installed in the lineup behind John Finlayson. He went on to see action in 11 games, starting twice.

PERSONAL: Christopher Jason Witten attended Elizabethton, Tenn., High School and was a consensus All-America selection at linebacker (Prep Star, Parade, Gridiron Greats, USA Today, Blue Chip Illustrated, Street & Smith) and the USA Today Player of the Year for Tennessee as a senior. The East Tennessee Player of the Year, Region Defensive Player of the Year and runner-up for the Mr. Football award, Witten racked up 163 tackles, nine sacks, two interceptions, two blocked kicks, five forced fumbles and three fumble recoveries. He also played tight end, catching 26 passes for 345 yards and 14 touchdowns.

A four-year starter at linebacker and tight end, Witten led his team to the state semi-finals three times and earned all-state honors his junior and senior years. He holds the school record for career tackles with 450. During the winter, he averaged 15 points and 12 rebounds-per-game for the basketball team. 2005 SEASON

Dallas 34, San Francisco 31

Monster Park, September 25, 2005

The Dallas Cowboys clinched their come-from-behind victory when Dat Nguyen intercepted a Tim Rattay pass with 0:54 remaining. The 49ers took their opening drive 80-yards in 11 plays finishing with a Rattay-to-Arnaz Battle 15-yard touchdown pass. Dallas's next possession ended after two-plays when Julius Jones fumbled at the Dallas 46-yard line. The defense buckled down and held the 49ers to a three-and-out. Dallas opened the second frame with a 92-yard, 14-play drive, capped by a six-yard Drew Bledsoe rushing touchdown. Jose Cortez's extra point missed wide left and the Cowboys trailed 7-6. San Francisco answered the Dallas scoring drive with an 89-yard touchdown pass from Rattay-to-Brandon Lloyd. On the Cowboys ensuing possession, Bledsoe's pass was picked off by Tony Parrish and returned 34 yards for a touchdown. Dallas then mounted a six-play, 84-yard drive finishing with a Bledsoe-to-Jason Witten six-yard scoring pass. Bledsoe's two-point conversion attempt fell incomplete. San Francisco ended the half with a Jim Nedney 20-yard field goal and a 24-12 lead. Dallas closed the gap with a 10-play, 55-yard scoring drive culminating with a one-yard Jones touchdown push early in the third quarter. Later in the quarter, Scott Fujita forced a Battle fumble that Nguyen recovered at the Dallas 19, but Bledsoe was picked off again by Parrish. The 49ers took advantage of the turnover with another Rattay-to-Lloyd touchdown pass - from 13-yards out. The Cowboys started their come-back in the fourth quarter with a Jones one-yard scoring scamper to cap a four-play, 72-yard drive. Al Singleton intercepted Rattay on the 49ers next possession giving Dallas the ball at their own 31-yard line. Keyshawn Johnson put the Cowboys ahead for the first time with a 14-yard touchdown reception from Bledsoe. Bledsoe found Johnson for the two-point conversion, giving Dallas a three-point advantage. Nguyen then sealed the win with his interception on San Francisco's final drive.

Oakland 19, Dallas 13

McAfee Coliseum, October 2, 2005

The Dallas Cowboys dropped their first road game of the season 19-13 to the Oakland Raiders when they failed to convert on a fourth down inside the Raiders five-yard-line with less than two minutes remaining. Dallas punted on the game's opening drive. Oakland wasted no time getting on the board, scoring in just six plays. Their scoring drive was helped by a 79-yard Jerry Collins completion to Randy Moss. Terence Newman made the touchdown saving tackle and the Dallas defense was able to hold Oakland to a 30-yard Sebastain Janikowski field goal. Dallas was forced to punt again after a quick three-and-out. The Raiders then capped off a six-play, 36-yard drive with a two-yard LaMont Jordan touchdown rush to give Oakland a 10-0 advantage. Dallas finally got on the board in the middle of the second frame with a 29-yard Jose Cortez field goal. Dallas's drive took 6:59 off the clock and ate up 69 yards in 11 plays. On the final possession of the half, Drew Bledsoe's Hail Mary attempt was picked off by Charles Woodson and Dallas went in the locker room down 10-3. Oakland opened the second half with a Janikowski field goal - a 23-yarder - after Dallas held them at the five-yard line. Dallas answered on their ensuing drive, with the help of three Oakland penalties, when Cortez hit a 30-yard field goal. The scoring drive took 13 plays and covered 48 yards, taking 7:10 off the clock. Oakland and Dallas traded punts to open the final frame, before Janikowski connected on a season-long 49-yard field goal to give the Raiders a 16-6 lead. Bledsoe and Patrick Crayton hooked-up on a 63-yard touchdown pass to cap off a three-play, 80-yard drive and pull Dallas within a field goal. On Oakland's next possession, Janikowski made his fourth field goal of the day, a 43-yarder, to give the Raiders a six-point lead. The Cowboys next drive featured a 57-yard completion from Bledsoe to Terry Glenn to put Dallas inside the Raiders 20-yard line. The Cowboys moved to the Raiders three-yard line, but turned the ball over on downs and the Raiders ran out the clock.

Dallas 33, Philadelphia 10

Texas Stadium, October 9, 2005

The Cowboys snapped a three-game losing streak to the Philadelphia Eagles by handing them a 33-10 loss. The Cowboys capped off the game's opening possession - a four-play 51-yard effort - with a Drew Bledsoe-to-Terry Glenn 15-yard touchdown pass. After forcing two Eagles punts, Bledsoe and Glenn hooked-up again on Dallas's third possession for another touchdown and a 14-0 lead with a 38-yard scoring pass. The Cowboys added a 28-yard Jose Cortez field goal to finish the first period leading 17-0. The Eagles got on the board early in the second quarter with a 23-yard Todd France field goal. Dallas answered with an 11-play, 70-yard drive, culminating with Bledsoe's third touchdown of the half - a 12-yard pass to Lousaka Polite - the first touchdown of his career. The Cowboys ended the half with a 33-yard Cortez field goal and a 27-3 lead. The Dallas defense held Philadelphia to a three-and-out to open the third frame and the Cowboys responded with a seven-play, 26-yard drive and Cortez's third field goal of the day - a 37-yarder. The Eagles reached the end zone for the only time when Lito Sheppard forced a Keyshawn Johnson fumble - following a reception - that Sheldon Brown plucked out of the air and returned 80 yards for a score. Cortez added his fourth field goal with a 45-yard shot in the fourth period to close out the scoring at 33-10. The Dallas Cowboys offensive line did not allow a sack for the second game this season, while the defense held the Eagles to only six first downs, 129 yards of total offense, including just 19 yards rushing - the fourth best outing against the run in club history. The Cowboys defense did not allow a rushing first down on the day. Terry Glenn led the team in receptions (seven) while collecting 118 yards, his third 100-yard receiving game of the season and the 20th of his career.

Dallas 16, N.Y. Giants 13 OT

The Dallas Cowboys won back-to-back games for the first time this season after handing the New York Giants a 16-13 overtime loss. The win gave Bill Parcells his 169th career win, making him the 10th winning coach in League history. After Michael Strahan recovered a Drew Bledsoe fumble on Dallas's first possession, the Giants got on the board with a 50-yard Jay Feely field goal. The teams traded punts before Curtis DeLoatch picked off a Bledsoe pass intended for Terry Glenn. The Cowboys defense buckled down and forced the Giants to punt, but gave the ball up once more when Keyshawn fumbled. Dallas's defense held tight, limiting New York to a 45-yard Feely field goal. Dallas got on the board on their next possession with a 16-play, 83-yard drive ending with a Bledsoe-to-Jason Witten two-yard touchdown loss. Dallas's attempt to extend their lead was thwarted when Jose Cortez's 49-yard field goal attempt was blocked by Justin Tuck to end the half. Dallas opened the third quarter with another Bledsoe fumble, recovered by Reggie Torbor at the Dallas 31-yard line. The Dallas defense answered the call when Anthony Henry intercepted an Eli Manning pass intended for Plaxico Burress at the Dallas one-yard line. The Cowboys could not capitalize on the turnover and were forced to punt. New York gave the ball back after Henry forced a Burress fumble that was recovered by Jason Ferguson, but the Dallas offense was held to a 48-yard Cortez field goal attempt that was wide left. Dallas extended its lead to 10-6 early in the final frame with a 29-yard Cortez field goal. On their next drive, Cortez added a 28-yard field goal, pushing the lead to seven. With the Giants trying to tie the game in the waning minutes, Roy Williams forced and recovered a Brandon Jacobs fumble at the Dallas one-yard line. The Cowboys offense was unable to move the ball and was forced to punt, giving New York the ball at their own 48-yard line. Two plays later, Manning found Jeremy Shockey for a 24-yard touchdown pass to tie the game at 13-13 and force overtime. Dallas drove 51-yards in eight plays to win the game with a 45-yard Cortez field goal on the first possession in overtime.

Seattle 13, Dallas 10

Qwest Field, October 23, 2005

The Dallas Cowboys dropped their second road game of the season with a 13-10 loss to the Seattle Seahawks. The Dallas defense ended the Seahawks opening drive when Terence Newman picked off Matt Hasselbeck at the Cowboys seven-yard line. The teams traded punts before the Cowboys got the offense into gear. Drew Bledsoe found Jason Witten for a 34-yard catch-and-run to start a 10-play, 74-yard drive that ended when Bledsoe found an out-stretched Keyshawn Johnson in the end zone to give Dallas a 7-0 lead. The teams then traded punts on the next seven possessions before Bledsoe was intercepted by Michael Bouliware on a pass intended for Terry Glenn at the Seattle nine-yard line late in the second quarter. The Seahawks capitalized on the turnover when Josh Brown hit a 55-yard field goal to cut Dallas's advantage to 7-3 at halftime. The third period ended with the score still 7-3. Jacques Reeves recovered a Jimmy Williams' muffed punt at the Seattle nine-yard line to open the final frame. Dallas was unable to extend their lead when Jose Cortez hooked a 29-yard field goal attempt wide left. The defenses again held and the teams were forced to punt two more times each. Hasselbeck was then intercepted by Roy Williams at the Seattle 12-yard line on a pass intended for Jerramy Stevens. Dallas cashed in on the turnover with a 21-yard Cortez field goal and a 10-3 lead just before the two-minute warning. Seattle then drove 81 yards in six plays to tie the game at 10-10 when Hasselbeck found Ryan Hannam for a one-yard touchdown. Dallas took possession with 0:40 left in the game, but their attempt to drive down the field was thwarted when Jordan Babineaux picked off Bledsoe and returned it 25-yards to set up the Seahawks at the Dallas 32. As time expired, Brown connected on a game-winning 50-yard field goal.

Dallas 34, Arizona 13

Texas Stadium, October 30, 2005

The Dallas Cowboys improved their record to 5-3 going into the bye week with a 34-13 win over the Arizona Cardinals. The Cardinals struck first on a 52-yard Neil Rackers field goal, capping a 10-play, 43-yard drive to open the game. The Cowboys quickly answered with a three-play, 80-yard drive that featured Marion Barber rushing for 18-yards, Drew Bledsoe connecting with Jason Witten on a screen pass for 34-yards and Barber again on a 28-yard touchdown scamper, the first of his career. The Dallas defense held Arizona to a three-and-out on their next possession and upped the lead to 10-3 with a 21-yard Shaun Suisham field goal, the first of his career. The Cardinals tied the game when Josh McCown found Anquan Boldin open down the sideline for a 44-yard touchdown strike. Dallas added two more touchdowns, a Bledsoe-to-Keyshawn Johnson five-yard pass and a 10-yard Barber dash up the middle, to end the half leading 24-10. Bledsoe fumbled a snap on the Cowboys opening possession of the second half with Bertrand Berry recovering it at the Dallas 38-yard line to set up Rackers for a 47-yard field goal. Dallas answered with a methodical eight-minute scoring drive, totaling 14-plays and covering 68-yards with another Suisham 21-yard field goal. Dallas put the game completely out of reach with a defensive score. McCown, under heavy pressure from DeMarcus Ware, lofted a pass intended for Boldin that was intercepted by Anthony Henry and returned 58-yards for a touchdown. Aaron Glenn intercepted McCown on Arizona's next possession. Barber finished his first career start rushing for 127 yards and two touchdowns on 27 carries. His 100-yard effort was the Cowboys first 100-yard rusher of the season.

Lincoln Financial Field, November 14, 2005

Attendance: 67,739

The Dallas Cowboys pulled out a thrilling come-from-behind victory with a 21-20 win over the Philadelphia Eagles. With the win, Bill Parcells posted his 171st career victory, the ninth most in League history. The Eagles took possession to open the game and drove 72 yards in seven plays, scoring the game's opening touchdown when Brian Westbrook ran in from 15 yards out. Dallas knotted the game in the final minutes of the opening frame when Marion Barber scored from one-yard out following a 58-yard Drew Bledsoe pass to Peerless Price. The teams traded punts for the next five series before Lito Sheppard intercepted a Bledsoe pass intended for Barber at the Dallas 24-yard line. Four plays later, Donovan McNabb scrambled in from two yards out to give the Eagles a 14-7 lead going into halftime. Dallas opened the second half with a punt before Philadelphia upped their lead to 10 on a 48-yard David Akers field goal capping an eight-play, 45-yard drive. The teams again traded punts to end the third period. The Eagles opened the final frame with a 20-yard Akers field goal and a 20-7 Philadelphia lead. Dallas scored on a four-play 72-yard drive with 3:04 remaining in the game. Bledsoe hit Terry Glenn in the corner of the end zone with a 20-yard scoring strike. The Dallas defense came up big on Philadelphia's ensuing possession when Roy Williams stepped in front of a McNabb pass and returned the theft 46 yards for the score and Dallas's first lead of the game at 21-20. The Dallas defense forced another Eagles punt, but Dallas was unable to run out the clock, giving the ball back to Philadelphia with 0:45 remaining. Eagles emergency quarterback Mike McMahon came into the game in place of McNabb who was injured during the interception return and guided the Eagles to the Dallas 42-yard line. With just 0:04 remaining in the game, Akers' 60-yard field goal attempt fell short, giving Dallas their third come-from-behind win of the season.

Dallas 20, Detroit 7

Texas Stadium, November 20, 2005

The Dallas Cowboys improved to 7-3 on the year and claimed their third consecutive victory - fourth straight at home - by defeating the Detroit Lions, 20-7. The Cowboys scored on their opening possession for the third time this season after Marion Barber ran in from six yards out, capping a 14-play, 84-yard drive. The Dallas defense forced Detroit to punt on their first possession but gave the ball back when Julius Jones fumbled and the ball was recovered by Jon McGraw at the Dallas 47-yard line. Detroit was unable to capitalize on the fumble, as the Cowboys defense forced a three-and-out. The Cowboys offense had another methodical drive covering 89-yards in 13-plays, ending in a 19-yard Billy Cundiff field goal, and a 10-0 lead. Detroit answered on their ensuing drive with a Keith Jones two-yard touchdown run that capped off an eight-play, 78-yard drive. The teams traded punts on their next possessions but Dallas got three more points at the end of the half when Cundiff hit a 56-yard field goal. The 56-yarder was a career-high and broke the team record of 54 yards. Dallas upped their lead at the end of the third frame with a four-yard Barber touchdown run, marking Barber's second multiple touchdown game of the season. The Lions drove to the Dallas 31-yard line to open the final period and were unable to cut into the Dallas advantage when Jason Hanson missed wide left on a 50-yard field goal attempt. Later, Greg Ellis forced a Joey Harrington fumble that was recovered by Dat Nguyen. Ellis was credited with a sack on the play, marking the third consecutive game in which he posted a sack. The Dallas offense took over at the their own 46-yard line and ran out the clock to preserve the 20-7 win. With three catches on the night, wide receiver Terry Glenn went over the 500 career reception mark (502).

Denver 24, Dallas 21 OT

Attendance: 63,273

The Dallas Cowboys three-game win streak came to an end on Thanksgiving Day in a 24-21 overtime loss to Denver. It was just the second time in club history a Thanksgiving Day game had gone to overtime. Neither team could get much going offensively early in the game, but on the Cowboys second possession Champ Bailey intercepted a Drew Bledsoe pass and returned it 65 yards for a touchdown to put Denver on the board first. The Cowboys matched that score late in the opening frame, constructing a nine-play, 71-yard drive that culminated in a 14-yard Keyshawn Johnson touchdown catch — the 60th of his career. Denver responded immediately by driving 84 yards in seven plays, ending with a Jake Plummer-to-Rod Smith 20-yard scoring toss to go back up 14-7. On the next series, Bledsoe was picked off by Nate Ferguson, but the Denver offense stalled and was forced to punt. The defense stepped up on Denver's next possession when Terence Newman picked off a Plummer pass, snapping a string of 204 consecutive passes without an interception by Plummer. Dallas capitalized on the theft, driving 69 yards in 10 plays for a one-yard Bledsoe scoring leap on fourth down to tie the score at 14. Denver scored the only points of the third quarter when Ron Dayne rushed in from 16 yards out, giving the Broncos a 21-14 lead. The Cowboys pinned the Broncos deep late in the final quarter and were able to gain momentum when Roy Williams forced a Mike Anderson fumble at the Denver 10-yard line. Newman picked up the fumble. Three plays later, Bledsoe found Jason Witten open from four yards out to tie the game at 21. The Cowboys defense forced a three-and-out, giving Dallas the ball at the Denver 45-yard line with 10:22 remaining. Dallas's attempt to take their first lead of the game was thwarted when Billy Cundiff's 34-yard field goal attempt sailed left. The Broncos wasted no time in the extra period taking three plays — helped by a 55-yard Dayne rush — to set up Jason Elam for the 24-yard game-winning field goal.

N.Y. Giants 17, Dallas 10

Giants Stadium, December 4, 2005
Attendance: 78,645

The Dallas Cowboys were unable to complete a sweep of the Giants as their second half comeback fell short, giving the Giants a 17-10 victory and sole possession of first place in the division. Both teams got off to slow starts, trading punts through a scoreless first quarter. The Giants got on the board early in the second with a Brandon Jacobs one-yard touchdown run. Justin Tuck sacked Drew Bledsoe on the Cowboys next possession forcing a fumble that was recovered by Kendrick Allen at the Dallas 22-yard line. Aaron Glenn — filling in for injured starter Anthony Henry — saved the Cowboys by intercepting an Eli Manning pass intended for Plaxico Burress in the end zone. On their next possession, the Giants drove to the Dallas nine-yard line but were held to a 27-yard Jay Feely field goal and a 10-0 lead at halftime. On Dallas's first offensive play of the second half, Kendrick Clancy knocked the ball out of Bledsoe's hand on an attempted handoff. The fumble was recovered by Antonio Pierce and returned 12-yards for a touchdown, giving New York a 17-0 lead. Dallas then drove 54 yards in 10 plays to set up a 34-yard Billy Cundiff field goal. After each team was forced to punt, Aaron Glenn gave the Cowboys great field possession at the New York seven-yard line with his second interception of the game. Dallas struck quickly with a seven-yard touchdown pass to Terry Glenn to cut the deficit to 17-10. Midway through the final frame, the Giants looked to extend their lead, but a 33-yard Feely field goal attempt hit the right upright. The teams traded punts, before Bledsoe threw his second interception of the day on a pass intended for Keyshawn Johnson that was tipped. The defense held the Giants to a three-and-out, giving Dallas the ball back with 1:22 remaining, but the offense was unable to muster a comeback. With his two thefts, Aaron Glenn became the first Cowboy to pickoff more than one pass in a game since Terence Newman had three interceptions at Washington (12/14/03). It was the second two-interception game of his career.

Dallas 31, Kansas City 28

Texas Stadium, December 11, 2005

Attendance: 63,432

The Dallas Cowboys snapped a two-game losing streak and got back in the playoff hunt with a 31-28 victory over the Kansas City Chiefs. Kansas City scored the only points of the first quarter with an 11-yard Larry Johnson touchdown scamper that capped off a six-play, 54-yard drive. Dallas opened the second frame with a 34-yard Billy Cundiff field goal that finished a 15-play drive, covering 73-yards and taking 9:16. The Chiefs answered on their next series with a one-yard Johnson touchdown run to extend their lead 14-3. Dallas struck back when Drew Bledsoe connected with Terry Glenn on a 71-yard touchdown off a flea-flicker to cut the lead to 14-10 – the 71-yard pass was the longest play of the year for Dallas. Kansas City then drove to the Dallas nine-yard line before committing the only turnover of the day when Scott Fujita sacked Trent Green forcing a fumble. Marcus Spears picked up the loose ball and barreled down the sideline 59-yards to the Kansas City 26-yard line. Three plays later, Dallas took the lead with a 26-yard Bledsoe-to-Jason Witten touchdown pass. On the Chiefs first possession of the third quarter, they regained the lead 21-17 with another Johnson touchdown rush, this one from 21-yards out. The Cowboys opened the fourth quarter with Terry Glenn notching his first career rushing touchdown on a six-yard reverse, capping off an 11-play, 84-yard drive. After trading punts, the Chiefs reclaimed the lead when Green hit Eddie Kennison with a 47-yard touchdown pass. With 3:50 remaining the Cowboys put together a 14-play drive covering 68-yards for the go-ahead touchdown. On the drive, Dallas converted two key third downs and had help from a holding penalty on fourth-and-goal from the six to set up Bledsoe's one-yard toss to Dan Campbell for the score. The Chiefs had one final chance, but Lawrence Tynes' 41-yard field goal sailed wide right as time expired. With his 22 completions, Bledsoe passed Tarcento and Testaverde for fifth place in NFL history for career completions (3,700). Bledsoe's 332 yards passing today was his third 300-yard passing day of the season and the 31st of his career.

Washington 35, Dallas 7

FedExField, December 18, 2005

Attendance: 90,588

The Dallas Cowboys were swept by the Washington Redskins for the first time since 1995 as they were handed their worst loss of the season 35-7. The Dallas defense started strong, forcing the Redskins to punt on their first possession, but Drew Bledsoe's first pass, intended for Patrick Crayton, was tipped at the line of scrimmage and intercepted by Cornelius Griffin at the Dallas 21-yard line. The Redskins scored three plays later on an eight-yard Mark Brunell touchdown pass to Chris Cooley. The Cowboys offense put together an 11-play drive that ended when Billy Cundiff's 38-yard field goal attempt sailed wide right. The defense held Washington to a three-and-out, but Dallas was forced to punt to open the second quarter. The Redskins jumped to a 14-0 lead after an eight-play, 75-yard drive ended with another Brunell-to-Cooley touchdown pass, this one coming from two yards out. After a 24-yard Mat McBriar punt, the Washington offense took over on the Dallas 34-yard line and needed just two plays and 0:15 seconds to go up 21-0 on a three-yard Mike Sellers touchdown catch from Brunell. Dallas then mounted a 44-yard drive to the Redskins 25-yard line before Bledsoe was intercepted by Marcus Washington. Washington returned the interception 41-yards to the Dallas 38-yard line. Brunell and Cooley struck again two plays later with a 30-yard touchdown pass – their third of the game. Down 28-0 at the half, Dallas took possession to open the third frame, but on third down, Bledsoe was sacked and fumbled the ball, which was recovered by Washington's Phillip Daniels to set up the Redskins offense at the Dallas 21-yard line. The Redskins took a 35-0 lead after a one-yard Ladell Betts touchdown run. The Cowboys avoided the shutout early in the fourth quarter when Bledsoe hooked up with Jason Witten for a two-yard scoring pass. Dallas's drive was helped by a 51-yard Julius Jones run, the longest run of the season for Dallas.

Dallas 24, Carolina 20
Bank of America Stadium, December 24, 2005

The Cowboys fought back in the waning seconds against the Carolina Panthers to win 24-20. A 24-yard John Kasay field goal gave Carolina a 3-0 lead. On the ensuing kickoff, Tyson Thompson fumbled and the ball was recovered by Sean Tufts at the Dallas 32-yard line. Jake Delhomme hit Drew Carter with a 32-yard touchdown strike one play later. Down 10-0 five minutes into the game, Dallas answered with an 80-yard, five-play drive, featuring a 51-yard hook-up between Drew Bledsoe and Terry Glenn and a Julius Jones eight-yard touchdown scamper. Dallas opened the second frame with 24-yard Billy Cundiff field goal to tie the game at 10. Carolina regained the lead on their next possession with 47-yard Kasay field goal. With Carolina driving on their next possession, DeMarcus Ware forced his second fumble of the day with a sack on Delhomme. The fumble was recovered by Greg Ellis at the Dallas 43-yard line. The Cowboys drove to the Carolina 13-yard line where Cundiff attempted a 32-yard field goal with 0:07 seconds left in the half was blocked by Julius Peppers to keep Carolina ahead 13-10. Midway through the third frame, Jones burst through a hole and ran 43-yards for a touchdown, giving Dallas their first lead of the game, 17-13. Roy Williams ended a Carolina drive to open the final frame when he intercepted a Delhomme pass intended for Ricky Proehl. The Cowboys were unable to capitalize on the turnover and were forced to punt. Carolina took a 20-17 lead when Delhomme hit Proehl with a 35-yard touchdown pass. The Cowboys moved the ball to the Carolina 15-yard line to set-up a Cundiff game tying 33-yard field. The kick sailed wide right, but the Cowboys were given new life due to a Peppers running into the kicker penalty. Dallas scored the winning touchdown three plays later when Bledsoe found T. Glenn with a two-yard touchdown toss. Jones had his first 100-yard rushing game of the season going 194 yards on 34 carries. The 194 rushing yards was the fourth best in Cowboys history and the 34 carries was a career-high and second most in club history.

St. Louis 20, Dallas 10
Texas Stadium, January 1, 2006
Attendance: 63,131

The Dallas Cowboys closed out the 2005 season with a 20-10 loss to the St. Louis Rams and finished the year with a 9-7 record. Neither team could get anything going early as the teams traded punts on each of their first two possessions. Dallas got on the board first with a Drew Bledsoe 19-yard touchdown strike to Jason Witten in the corner of the end zone. Shaun Suisham connected on the PAT to give Dallas a 7-0 lead late in the first period. The Rams opened the second frame with a Jeff Wilkins 49-yard field goal to cut the lead to four. The Cowboys were forced to punt on their next possession. St. Louis drove the ball down to the Dallas nine yard line, where Wilkins attempted a 27-yard field that hit the left upright. The Cowboys were unable to move the ball and punted again after another three-and-out. The Rams took the lead, 10-7, on their ensuing possession with an Aveion Cason eight-yard touchdown scamper. Dallas got the ball back with 1:45 remaining in the half and drove to the Rams four yard line, but had to settle for a 22-yard Suisham field goal with six seconds left. The teams headed into halftime knotted at 10. The third frame ended with the score still tied at 10. The Rams opened the fourth quarter with tough defense as Pita Tinoinnana sacked Bledsoe forcing him to fumble. The ball was recovered by St. Louis' Anthony Hargrove at the Dallas 40 where the St. Louis offense took over and put together a four play 40 yard drive that was capped off by an Arlen Harris one-yard touchdown run giving the Rams a 17-10 lead. Dallas was able to move the ball to the St. Louis 29 but Suisham's 47-yard field goal attempt sailed wide right. The Rams tacked on another three points as Wilkins 20-yard field goal was good with 1:08 remaining and gave the Rams a 20-10 lead. Keyshawn Johnson cracked the NFL's all-time top 20 for career receptions while DeMarcus Ware recorded one sack during the game, tying him for the team lead with eight.

★ TROY AIKMAN ★
INDUCTED – 2006

In 12 NFL seasons, Troy Aikman became one of the game's great quarterbacks. As just the third player in NFL history to lead a team to three Super Bowl victories, Aikman rewrote virtually every passing record in Cowboys' history. He closed his career with 94 regular season wins, including 90 in the decade of the 1990s – making him the winningest starting quarterback of any decade in NFL history (Joe Montana held the record with 86 wins in the 1980s).

Along with that mark, Aikman holds or is tied for 47 Dallas passing records, including the club's career records for attempts (4,715), completions (2,898), passing yards (32,942), touchdowns (165) and completion percentage (61.5% – third best in NFL history at the time of his retirement). He also posted a club-high 13 regular season 300-yard passing games during his career.

Along the way to these marks, Aikman guided Dallas from the cellar of 1-15 in 1989 to six NFC East titles (1992-96 and 1998), four NFC Championship Games (1992-95) and three Super Bowl titles (XXVII, XXVIII and XXX). He was one of the game's most accurate passers, completing at least 60 percent of his passes in 98-of-165 career games. In the postseason, he reached the 60% completion mark in 12-of-16 games. He completed 70 percent or more of his passes 42 times in his career, with Dallas posting a 37-5 record in those games, and he produced the top six single-season completion percentages in club history.

With his passing accuracy, Aikman was able to establish a club-record with a career interception rate of 2.99%. Although not known for his fleet feet, Aikman successfully ran for a first down 49-of-72 times on third or fourth down during career. That ability to avoid the sack also allowed him to post the highest career pass attempts per sack ratio (19.2) in team history. Despite winning just one of his first 15 NFL starts, Aikman went on to start a club-record 180 games (165 regular season) at quarterback and post a 105-75 (.583) record, which includes an impeccable 11-4 mark in the postseason – 3-0 in the Super Bowl.

For his career, Aikman led the Cowboys from behind 16 times in the fourth quarter, including six times in the final two minutes. Another six times, he led the team to wins after the score was tied in the fourth quarter. Five of his game-winning drives came in overtime.

In the postseason Aikman truly shined. His four 300-yard passing days were the third best total in NFL history, and he holds the club records for postseason pass attempts (502), completions (320), yards (3,849), and completion percentage (63.7%). In addition, Aikman's 23 career postseason passing touchdowns was just one shy of Staubach's club record of 24.

The first overall choice in the 1989 draft out of UCLA, Aikman completed 64.8 percent of his passes for 5,298 yards and 41 touchdowns while throwing only 17 interceptions in two seasons as the starter. He finished his career as the third rated passer in NCAA history. The All-America led the Bruins to a 20-4 record, including wins in the 1987 Aloha Bowl and the 1989 Cotton Bowl. He transferred to UCLA after two seasons at Oklahoma (1984-85).

Aikman was born Nov. 21, 1966 in West Covina, Calif.

33 ★ TONY DORSETT ★

Running Back, 1977-87

INDUCTED – 1994

Tony Dorsett arrived in Dallas in 1977 via a draft-day deal the Cowboys swung with the Seattle Seahawks for the sole intention of selecting the Heisman Trophy winner from the University of Pittsburgh. Then Cowboys president and General Manager Tex Schramm paid what seemed like a bundle for the right to draft Dorsett: One first-round, and three second-round choices. As his 11-career turned out in Dallas, a steal of a deal for an eventual Pro Football Hall of Fame player.

The Dorsett deal paid dividends in his very first year with the Cowboys, the four-time All-American picking up where he left off in college, rushing for 1,007 yards to earn NFL Offensive Rookie of the Year honors and set the rushing bar for rookie running backs in Dallas.

"A lot of the people said I wouldn't last in this league," Dorsett said in 1987. "I was the skinny little kid from Aliquippa, Pa., who wasn't supposed to make it."

Dorsett did make it, in fact he became one of the greatest running backs in NFL history. On Sept. 26, 1988 while playing his final NFL season with the Denver Broncos, Dorsett moved into second place on the NFL all-time rushing list with 12,306 rushing yards, and eventually finished his career with 12,739 yards. At the time, Dorsett trailed only Walter Payton when he retired after suffering a knee injury the following summer, but now ranks fifth behind Payton, Emmitt Smith, Barry Sanders and Eric Dickerson.

By the time Dorsett completed his 12-year career, he had collected a victory in Super Bowl XII, four Pro Bowl selections, one All-Pro honor and three All-NFC selections.

One of the most notable moments of Dorsett's career came on Jan. 2, 1983, before a Monday Night Football television audience playing against the Minnesota Vikings. Dorsett received a handoff from quarterback Danny White and proceeded to run 99-yards for a touchdown, thus recording an unbreakable NFL record. Dorsett's greatest season came in 1981 when he rushed for 1,646 yards, a franchise record at the time, a total that now ranks third to only Emmitt Smith's two, 1,700-yard seasons.

"When he came to us, we hadn't had a strong running attack for about three years," Hall of Fame quarterback Roger Staubach once said. "Tony Dorsett is one of the greatest backs in NFL history."

Dorsett was the Heisman Trophy winner in 1976 and was the first Pitt football player to have his jersey retired. Dorsett left Pitt as a four-time All-American and four-time 1,000-yard rusher. His final collegiate highlight was a 27-3 victory over Georgia in the Sugar Bowl to claim the national title.

In 1994 Dorsett became the ninth Cowboys player inducted into the Ring of Honor, and that same year he was inducted into the Pro Football Hall of Fame.

He was born April 7, 1954, in Rochester, Pa.

★ TOM LANDRY ★ Head Coach, 1960-88 INDUCTED - 1990

Tom Landry paced the sidelines as the "only head coach" in Dallas Cowboys history for 29 years in his trademark fedora. By the time Landry's coaching career ended following the 1988 season, he had compiled a 270-178-6 record, the third most wins in NFL history.

That distinguished career was good enough for Landry to gain entry into the Pro Football Hall of Fame in 1990 and the Cowboys Ring of Honor in 1993, thanks to leading the Cowboys to two Super Bowl titles, five Super Bowl appearances, five NFC Championships, 13 division titles and an incredible 20 consecutive winning seasons.

"This team has always played for me," Landry said. "That was the key to why I continued coaching. If they wouldn't play for me, I would have been out a long time ago. They always played hard and tried hard."

Landry's head coaching career did not start out very smoothly, coming over from the N.Y. Giants staff to take over the expansion Cowboys in 1960. That first year ended with an 0-11-1 in 1960, the tie coming against Landry's former team the Giants, preventing the Cowboys from going winless. The Cowboys went on to suffer through losing seasons in the first five years, before going 7-7 in 1965.

But from that point on, Landry turned the franchise into "America's Team," the Cowboys reeling off 20 consecutive winning seasons from 1966-85, one of the longest winning streaks in all of professional sports.

As a player-coach with the Giants before coming to the Cowboys, Landry helped to develop what would eventually become a base defense in the NFL, the 4-3. It was innovations like this that caught the attention of Cowboys owner Clint Murchison Jr. and president Tex Schramm when it came time to select the franchise's first head coach.

As head coach of the Cowboys, Landry introduced more innovations to the game, including offensive motion. Very seldom did the Cowboys run a play from the formation they initially lined up in after breaking the huddle. Landry brought back the shotgun formation, popularized situational substitutions and concocted the "Flex" defense.

Walking the sidelines characteristically stoic, Landry was always thinking a couple of plays ahead and what the long-term effects of each play he called might be. He coached football as if it were a chess match, positioning his team in the best way to win in the end. And in the end, no one coached with more success for a longer period of time than Landry. That success was the impetus for Landry's induction into Pro Football Hall of Fame less than two years after he coached his last game.

The legendary coach, born Sept. 11, 1924, in Mission, Texas, died Feb. 12, 2000 of leukemia.

★ BOB LILLY ★ Defensive Tackle, 1961-74 INDUCTED – 1980

Before earning the nickname "Mr. Cowboy," Bob Lilly was the first player ever drafted by the Dallas Cowboys in 1961. So it is fitting that Lilly not only became the first Cowboys player inducted into the Ring of Honor in 1975, but also became the franchise's first player inducted into the Pro Football Hall of Fame in 1980.

During the course of 14 seasons with the Cowboys, Lilly was named Rookie of the Year in 1961, was selected to the Pro Bowl a club-record 11-times – 10 consecutive selections between 1964-74 – was named to the All-Pro team seven times and played in two Super Bowls, including the club's very first Super Bowl victory, 24-3 over Miami in Super Bowl VI.

As the foundation of the famed "Doomsday Defense," Lilly's intensity was readily apparent in an infamous scene after the Cowboys Super Bowl V loss to the Baltimore Colts when he ripped his helmet off and hurled it into the air. The following year, the Lilly-led Cowboys defense held Miami to only a field goal in Super Bowl VI, the fewest points every given up in Super Bowl history.

"The competition is what I love," Lilly once said. "That makes me a lot more intense. Personalities don't enter into it at all. My objective is to get the man with the ball. Nobody better get in my way."

Lilly is the Cowboys' all-time leader in consecutive games played at 196, is tied for second with 14 seasons played and second all-time with 194 games started. Lilly led the Cowboys in sacks three consecutive years, beginning with his rookie season.

"A man like that comes along once in a lifetime," late Cowboys head coach Tom Landry said in 1972. "He is something a little bit more than great. Nobody is better than Bob Lilly."

Lilly was a two-time All-American defensive end at Texas Christian University and a two-time all-Southwest Conference team selection.

He was born July 26, 1939, in Olney, Texas.

LILLY'S ACCOMPLISHMENTS:

- ★ 11-Time Pro Bowl (Franchise Record)
- ★ 7-Time All-Pro
- ★ NFL 75th Anniversary Team
- ★ AFL-NFL 25-year Anniversary Team
- ★ National Football Foundation Hall of Fame
- ★ Super Bowl VI Title
- ★ 2 NFC Titles

- ★ November 23, 1975 declared "Bob Lilly Day" in Dallas, Texas
- ★ College Football Hall of Fame

★ MEL RENFRO ★ Defensive Back, 1964-77 INDUCTED - 1996

Mel Renfro first came to the Cowboys a highly-acclaimed running back out of the University of Oregon. But Cowboys head coach Tom Landry saw Renfro as a defensive back when they selected him in the second round of the 1964 draft.

And what a defensive back he was, becoming arguably the best safety-cornerback during his 14-year career to ever play for the Cowboys, and one of the best to ever play in the NFL. His 52 career interceptions and 26.4-yard career kickoff-return average still stand as team records, both a tribute to his running ability.

The NFL certainly got to know Renfro in a hurry, having been elected to the Pro Bowl in each of his first 10 seasons in the NFL - the first six at free safety and the final four at cornerback. His 10 Pro Bowl appearances is second to only Bob Lilly's 11 for the Cowboys.

On top of his 10 Pro Bowls, Renfro was a four-time All-Pro, playing in four Super Bowls and eight NFC Championships. He became the fifth member of the exclusive Ring of Honor in 1981, and was finally elected to the Pro Football Hall of Fame in 1996 in his 14th year of eligibility.

Renfro's 14 seasons with the Dallas Cowboys ties him for second in club history, just one shy of the record.

While at Oregon, Renfro led the team in rushing three consecutive years and was a two-time All-American. Despite coming to the NFL as an acclaimed runner, Renfro only ran the ball eight times during his career, all in 1966. Landry saw a free safety first, Renfro spending his first six seasons at safety and the final eight at corner.

In the middle of Renfro's All-Pro 1969 season, Landry was uncharacteristically complimentary toward one of his players, calling him "the best in the league at free safety."

But the Cowboys certainly figured out a way to capitalize on Renfro's running ability, having him return punts and kickoffs early in his career. He led the NFL in kickoff and punt returns his rookie season, and had seven interceptions, returning one for a touchdown. Renfro still is tied for the franchise lead with two career touchdown returns, and his 30-yard kick-off return average in 1965 still remains as the single-season high.

But it was interceptions Renfro was best known for during his career. In his first six years at free safety, Renfro totaled 30 interceptions. His interception totals declined somewhat when Landry moved him to cornerback for good in 1970. The decline had more to do with quarterbacks' reluctance to throw his way than any diminishing skills or quickness. His 626 interception return yards still stands as a career record for the Cowboys.

That 1971 Pro Bowl possibly was the greatest indication of Renfro's all-round ability. Not only did he play cornerback, but he also returned two punts for touchdowns, leading the NFC to a 27-6 win and earning the game's Most Valuable Player award.

He was born Dec. 30, 1941, in Houston, Texas.

RENFRO'S ACCOMPLISHMENTS:

- ★ 4-Time All-Pro
- ★ 10-Time Pro Bowl
- ★ 3-Time All-NFC
- ★ Cowboys Career Record 52 interceptions
- ★ Cowboys Career Record 26.4-yard kickoff-return average
- ★ Cowboys Career Record 626 interception return yards
- ★ Super Bowl VI and XII Titles
- ★ 4 NFC Championships
- ★ 9 Division Titles
- ★ Consensus All-American, 1962

★ TEX SCHRAMM ★
Cowboys President and General Manager
1959-1989

Texas Earnest Schramm Jr., better known as "Tex," rose to Professional Football Hall of Fame status during his 29 seasons as president and general manager of the Dallas Cowboys, turning a 1960 expansion franchise in Dallas into one of the most successful franchises in NFL history.

With Schramm overseeing the birth and growth of the Cowboys organization, the team reached five Super Bowls, winning two, made 18 playoff appearances and compiled an NFL-record 20 consecutive winning seasons, one of the longest such streaks in all of professional sports.

Schramm was an NFL pioneer and innovator. Under his watch, the Dallas Cowboys were always on the cutting edge with revolutionary ideas and visions. He was instrumental in creating the Dallas Cowboys Cheerleaders, the first of their kind in professional football, developing the Cowboys' Ring of Honor and bringing an annual Cowboys Thanksgiving Day game to the nation.

Schramm's work was not just focused on the Dallas Cowboys, as his tireless efforts changed the face of the entire NFL. He was a driving force behind the development and implementation of instant replay, giving the head referee a microphone for penalty announcements, shortening the play-clock and helping to develop the wild-card playoff system.

A tough negotiator, Schramm was the engineer in building the Cowboys foundation from the ground up. His tough stance in labor negotiations was also evident in his support for using replacement players during the 1987 NFL strike. After just three weeks, the move proved successful and the players returned to work. The benefits of this would be apparent in future years as lasting labor peace was reached with the NFL Players Association in 1992 and has continued since.

His position as chairman of the NFL Competition Committee from 1966 to 1988 aided his innovative efforts. Schramm's impact on the league was widespread, and probably his most cherished legacy since the one-time TV-executive at CBS who first came up with the idea of televising the Winter Olympics in 1960 from Squaw Valley was such a firm believer in preserving and making history.

One of Schramm's most significant accomplishments in the NFL was coordinating the merger of the established NFL and the fledgling American Football League in 1966, holding what amounted to as secret meetings with Kansas City Chiefs owner Lamar Hunt at the insistence of NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle.

The merger of the two warring leagues led to what became known as the Super Bowl, and when the leagues combined in 1970, the most powerful sports league in the world.

After Schramm departed the Cowboys in 1989 when Jerry Jones bought the club, he went international, becoming president of the upstart World League of American Football, later to become known as NFL Europe. He was inducted into the Pro Football Hall of Fame in 1991.

"I'm not one of the great athletes like the men behind me," a jubilant Schramm said during his Hall of Fame induction speech. "But I'm thrilled to be standing in front of them. Many of the men in here were my heroes. To be rubbing shoulders with them, it's beyond my comprehension."

In all, Schramm spent 44 years of his life in professional football, starting as a sportswriter for the Austin American-Statesman in 1947 – a natural step for the California-born Schramm who earned a bachelor's degree in journalism from the University of Texas. Schramm spent 10 seasons with the Los Angeles Rams (1947-56), where Schramm first came in contact with Rozelle, who Schramm hired to be the Rams public relations director in 1952. Schramm then spent a brief period (1957-59) at CBS before being hired by Clint Murchison in 1959 to oversee the startup of the Dallas expansion franchise.

Schramm was born on June 2, 1920, in San Gabriel, Calif.

TEX SCHRAMM'S NFL LEGACY

During Schramm's 25 years as chairman of the NFL's Competition Committee, the NFL implemented the following:

Year	Contribution
1970	Moved the official game time to the scoreboard clock
1972	Moved the hash marks toward the center of the field to aid offense
1974	Implemented stricter pass defense rules to influence scoring
1974	Moved goalposts from the goal line to the end line for safety and to help offensive play
1974	Developed the sudden-death overtime concept for breaking ties
1975	Gave the referee a microphone to announce calls to the crowd and TV audiences
1977	Made defensive linemen's head slaps illegal
1979	Implemented the in-the-grasp rule to protect quarterbacks
1986	Instituted Instant Replay to aid officials
	Enabled Quarterbacks to stop the clock by throwing the ball directly into the ground

★ ROGER STAUBACH ★

Good things come to those who wait, and certainly the Dallas Cowboys patience in the mid-60's was supremely rewarded, landing one of the best players in franchise history because they were willing to wait for Roger Staubach to fulfill his military commitment.

For that five years of patience, the Cowboys landed the guy who became better known as "Roger The Dodger" over the next 11 years when he was selected to six Pro Bowls – including five consecutively – and was named the NFL Players Association Most Valuable Player in 1971. Staubach led the NFL in passing four times and was selected to the All-NFC team four times.

"He is one of the finest to ever play the game," Green Bay Packers Quarterback Bart Starr once said of Staubach. "I think if I had some of that Staubach competitiveness, I'd have been much better."

Staubach, the 1963 Heisman Trophy winner, was drafted by the Dallas Cowboys in 1964 from the Naval Academy, but did not join the team until 1969 due to his Navy commitment. Former president and general manager Tex Schramm signed Staubach to a futures contract in a hotel room in 1964, actually scribbling out the details on a legal-sized tablet that would have Staubach paid annually to participate in training camp practices when he had enough leave built up.

The 1963 Heisman Trophy winner showed up in Dallas as a 27-year-old rookie, but in those 11 seasons still managed to carve out the franchise's all-time leading quarterback rating of 83.42 and became a four-time NFL passing champion. But Staubach almost became better known for his scrambling ability, and to this day ranks eighth on the Cowboys' all-time rushing list with 2,264 yards.

Staubach owns the second-most passing yards in club history, 22,700, and his 3,586 in 1979 still ranks as the second most passing yards in a single season for the Cowboys. He also still leads the club with a career average of 7.67 yards per attempt, and his three 300-yard passing performances in 1979 has him tied for the single-season lead with Don Meredith and Danny White.

Staubach also became known as "Captain Comeback" for his 23 fourth-quarter come-from-behind victories in regular season and playoff games, including 14 in the final two minutes or overtime. Never was this more apparent than in a 1975 playoff game against the Minnesota Vikings when Staubach connected with wide receiver Drew Pearson on a desperation 50-yard "Hail Mary" touchdown pass that knocked the Vikings out of the playoffs.

"You could never defeat Roger mentally or physically," late Cowboys head coach Tom Landry said in 1983. "He was like that in a game, in practice, or in the business world."

Staubach ended his Cowboys career with four Super Bowl appearances, including wins in Super Bowls VI and XII. In Super Bowl VI, Staubach was named the game's Most Valuable Player.

Following the 1979 season, Staubach retired, fearing the after-effects of recurring concussions.

In 1983, Staubach became the sixth member of the Dallas Cowboys Ring of Honor and two years later was inducted into the Pro Football Hall of Fame.

He was born Feb. 5, 1942, in Cincinnati, Ohio.

★ RANDY WHITE ★
Defensive Tackle, 1975-88
INDUCTED – 1994

Randy White came to the Cowboys from the University of Maryland as the No. 2 pick in the 1975 NFL Draft. Before his career was over, 14 years later, he would become known as the "Manster" – half man, half defensive monster – setting numerous franchise records as the heart-and-soul of the famed "Doomsday Defense".

White struggled in his first two years with the Cowboys when then head coach Tom Landry moved White from his familiar defensive tackle position to linebacker. But, after Landry moved White back to right tackle in 1977, White became one of the NFL's most dominating defensive linemen and a coveted co-Super Bowl MVP.

"Coming out of college a lot was expected of me," White said. "But I never did feel comfortable playing linebacker. Those first two years I was fighting for my life out there. Then they switched me to defensive tackle, where I was a lot more comfortable and from there my career took off."

White played 14 seasons, tying him for second all-time in franchise history, and he set a franchise record with eight All-Pro selections. White also was selected to nine Pro Bowls, ranking third in franchise history for Pro Bowl appearances. White's 16 sacks in 1978 rank third in franchise history for a single season, and he still remains third all-time in career tackles with 1,104 and second with 701 career solo tackles.

"His performances range anywhere from spectacular to spectacular," Landry once said. "He could outmatch anybody's intensity from game to game."

In his career, White played in six NFC Championship Games and three Super Bowls, claiming victory in Super Bowl XII and co-MVP honors with teammate Harvey Martin. Even more astounding, White only missed one game in his 14-year career.

In 1994, White was inducted into the Ring of Honor with teammate Tony Dorsett, the same year he was inducted into the Pro Football Hall of Fame.

"Any honor I receive is a reflection on the great teammates and coaches I had in my career," White said. "There's a real special group of guys with the Cowboys, and to be a part of that was a great honor."

He was born Jan. 15, 1953, in Pittsburgh, Pa.

★ RAYFIELD WRIGHT ★
Offensive Tackle, 1967-79

Only nine players have played football for the Dallas Cowboys longer than Rayfield Wright, and only five players in the history of the Cowboys organization have been to more Pro Bowls than Wright's six.

After playing tight end, tackle and defensive end during his first three NFL seasons, Wright settled in at right tackle in 1970. Before undergoing knee surgery that forced him to miss most of the 1977 season, Wright was acknowledged as the NFL's premier offensive tackle. Wright was selected to six straight Pro Bowls (1971-76) as a tackle while earning All-Pro honors four times and earning recognition on the NFL's all-decade team for the 1970's.

During each of his 13 seasons, the Cowboys offense ranked in the top six in the NFL for total offense, including leading the league five times. Behind his blocking, Calvin Hill became the first 1,000 yard rusher in team history when he ran for 1,036 yards in 1972. All totaled, Dallas had a running back clear the 1,000 yard barrier five times during his tenure. Also behind his blocking, Roger Staubach became the first quarterback in franchise history to throw for more than 3,000 yards in a season when he totaled 3,190 passing yards in 1978, the year Wright returned from his knee surgery.

In his 13-year NFL career with the Dallas Cowboys, Wright was a key contributor to teams that had 13 straight winning seasons, made 12 playoff trips and won 10 division titles. He also played in eight conference championship games and won five NFC Championships (1970, 1971, 1975, 1977, 1978) and two Super Bowls (VI and XII). He was part of a team that had a 74.1% winning percentage in the regular season (137-48-1) and a 60.0% winning percentage in the post season (15-10).

During his 13 seasons, Wright was a participant in five Super Bowls, claiming the ultimate prize twice. Only one other player in NFL history has appeared in more Super Bowls than Wright, he is one of only 13 players in NFL history, and the only offensive tackle, to have played in five Super Bowls.

During Wright's career, the Cowboys were the only team to play in five Super Bowls in one calendar decade – or in any ten year period of time – advancing to the Super Bowl following the 1970, 1971, 1975, 1977 and 1978 seasons.

Rayfield Wright was inducted into the Dallas Cowboys Ring of Honor on October 10, 2004, joining Bob Lilly, Don Meredith, Don Perkins, Chuck Howley, Mel Renfro, Roger Staubach, Lee Roy Jordan, Randy White, Tony Dorsett, Tom Landry, Bob Hayes, Tex Schramm and Cliff Harris. Troy Aikman, Michael Irvin and Emmitt Smith were inducted in 2005.

He was born August 23, 1945, in Griffin, Ga.

WRIGHT'S ACCOMPLISHMENTS:

- ★ 6-time Pro Bowl selection
- ★ 4-time All Pro
- ★ Super Bowl VI and XII titles
- ★ 5 NFC Championships
- ★ 10 Division Titles
- ★ 1970's member of NFL's All-Decade Team

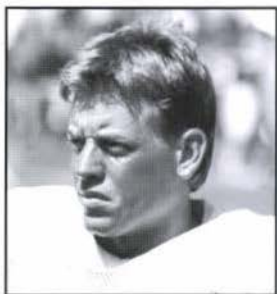

Ring of Honor

The Cowboys honor those who made outstanding contributions to the club by inducting them into the Ring of Honor at Texas Stadium. Their names and the years of service are prominently displayed in silver on the wall above the Cowboys' bench at Texas Stadium. Members of the Cowboys Ring of Honor:

★ TROY AIKMAN ★ Quarterback, 1989-2000

Troy Aikman joined the Cowboys as the first overall pick in the 1989 NFL Draft out of UCLA. After guiding the franchise to three Super Bowl titles, Aikman retired holding or tied for 47 club passing records, including career attempts (4,715), completions (2,898), passing yards (32,942), touchdowns (165) and completion percentage (61.5%). He is the winningest quarterback of any decade, having finished his career with 94 regular season wins in the 90s. Aikman was a six-time Pro Bowler and the MVP of Super Bowl XXVII. He was inducted into the Ring of Honor with Emmitt Smith and Michael Irvin on Monday Sept. 19, 2005 at halftime of the Cowboys-Redskins game. Aikman was elected to the Pro Football Hall of Fame in 2006.

★ TONY DORSETT ★ Running Back, 1977-87

Tony Dorsett finished his career as the second leading rusher in NFL history and played in five NFC Championship Games, two Super Bowls and four Pro Bowls. After guiding the University of Pittsburgh to the 1976 national title and claiming the Heisman Trophy, Dorsett captured rookie of the year honors in 1977. He also holds the NFL record with a 99-yard touchdown run. Inducted into the Ring of Honor in 1994, Dorsett was also elected to the Pro Football Hall of Fame in 1994. Dorsett was inducted into the Ring of Honor at halftime of the Cowboys-Arizona game on Oct. 9, 1994.

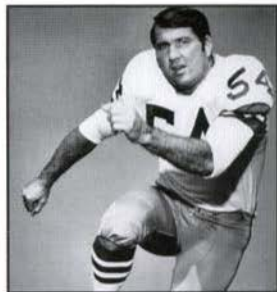

★ CLIFF HARRIS ★ Safety, 1970-79

Nicknamed "Captain Crash," Cliff Harris went undrafted in 1971 out of tiny Quachita Baptist in Arkansas, but he eventually found the starting lineup as a rookie and went on to start nine consecutive years. He was named to six Pro Bowls and four All-NFL teams, and he was a member of two Super Bowl winning teams. Harris was at his best in the postseason, finishing his career with six interceptions in 21 playoff games. Harris was a member of the 1970s NFL all-decade team. Harris was inducted into the Ring of Honor at halftime of the Cowboys-N.Y. Giants game on Oct. 10, 2004.

★ BOB HAYES ★
Wide Receiver, 1965-74

Bob Hayes led the Cowboys in receptions three times and accumulated 365 receptions for 7,295 receiving yards during his 10-year career. Cowboys During the Week

The Dallas Cowboys have a tradition of showing up on the football schedule just about any day of the week. Besides the annual Thanksgiving Day games, the Cowboys have also played on Christmas Day. Besides Sundays, the Cowboys have shown up on Thursdays, Fridays, Saturdays and Mondays. When it comes to prime time, the Cowboys are also front and center on Sunday and Monday nights.

(All Games Regular Season Only Unless Indicated)

Thanksgiving Day Games (23-14-1)

Since 1966, the Cowboys have been a fixture on Thanksgiving Day, having hosted the annual contest for 39 of the last 41 years. In 1975 and 1977, the St. Louis Cardinals played host to the game in place of Dallas. In 1978, the game returned to Dallas for good. The Cowboys have posted a 23-14-1 record in the holiday classic and a 24-14 mark the following week. Here are the Cowboys annual Thanksgiving Day results:

SIDELINES

The Dallas Cowboys have called both the Cotton Bowl and Texas Stadium home over the last 46 years. In 2009, the club's 50th year of operation, the Cowboys will move into its newest home, a state-of-the-art facility in Arlington, Texas.

Cotton Bowl

The original Fair Park football stadium was built in 1921 and seated 15,000. That wooden structure was razed in 1930 and construction began on what is now the Cotton Bowl. The original seating capacity of the stadium was 46,200 and built at a cost of $328,000. In January, 1936, Fair Park Stadium was officially renamed The Cotton Bowl in recognition of the fact that more cotton was raised within 200 miles of Dallas than any other town in America. In that era, Dallas was regarded as the largest interior spot cotton market in the world. Later additions of upper decks on each side increased capacity to 75,504 by the time the Cowboys arrived in 1960. From 1960 into the 1971 season, the Cowboys called the Cotton Bowl home, posting a 45-33-4 record, including a 2-2 mark in postseason. The largest home crowd in club history is still the 80,259 that packed into the Cotton Bowl on Nov. 24, 1966 to watch the Cowboys defeat the Cleveland Browns 26-14, in the inaugural Thanksgiving Day game in Dallas.

ing a 2-2 mark in postseason. The largest home crowd in club history is still the 80,259 that packed into the Cotton Bowl on Nov. 24, 1966 to watch the Cowboys defeat the Cleveland Browns 26-14, in the inaugural Thanksgiving Day game in Dallas.

Texas Stadium

The current home of Cowboys football is Texas Stadium, a football facility built at a cost of $35 million in 1971. The Cowboys opened their facility on Oct. 24, 1971 with a 44-21 victory over New England. Since then, the Cowboys have posted a 197-91 record (.684) overall, including a 16-5 (.762) mark in postseason, at home. Located in the Dallas suburb of Irving, Texas Stadium has a seating capacity of 65,529 and features two Daktronics color replay screens, 380 luxury suites, three sports bars, 52 concession stands, 40 specialty stands, 86 restrooms, 115 drinking fountains and 130 acres of parking. Texas Stadium's most unique feature is the partial roof which covers fans from inclement weather, but leaves the game outdoors. Texas Stadium also boasts the luxurious Stadium Club, one of Dallas's premier locations for private parties, banquets and convention gatherings.

The Corral, outside Gate 8, features food, beverage, entertainment and large screen televisions for fan hospitality before, during and after all Cowboys home games and special events.

Complete banquet, catering and special event services are available for private groups at Texas Stadium. Information on hosting an event can be obtained by calling 972-785-4000.

Tours of Texas Stadium are available hourly Monday through Saturday from 10:00 a.m. to 3:00 p.m., and Sundays, when no events are scheduled, from 11:00 a.m. to 3:00 p.m. Call 972-785-4780 for more information.

The Cowboys souvenir shop, The Pro Shop, is also open daily on the grounds outside the stadium at Gate 8.

Arlington, Texas

On Nov. 2, 2004 the voters of Arlington approved a public-private partnership with the Dallas Cowboys to build a state-of-the-art, retractable roof stadium in Arlington, Texas in time for the 2009 season. Located in the heart of Arlington's entertainment district, the stadium will have capacity for over 90,000, giving the Metroplex the ability to host major events like the Super Bowl and NCAA Final Four. Construction on the new stadium began in April, 2006 and will take the next three years to complete. The two million square foot facility will be the largest of its kind.

The Dallas Cowboys will open their 47th training camp on July 28 at the Marriott Residence Inn at River Ridge in Oxnard, Calif. For the third consecutive season, the team returns to its California roots as it makes preseason preparations for the 2006 season. This will mark the 31st year the Cowboys have held camp in California, and the third since 2001. The entire squad will open the 2006 training camp on Friday, July 28. The first practice session will take place on Saturday morning, July 29. Camp is set to break on Sunday, Aug. 20.

Next summer the Cowboys will be returning to Texas for training camp as the team has announced a five-year deal to once again call the City of San Antonio its summer home. The Alamodome, which played host to Cowboys training camps in 2002 and 2003 will once again be the site for the team's summer practice sessions beginning in 2007.

In California or Texas, Dallas Cowboys Training Camp is one of the annual highlights for Dallas Cowboys fans. It offers a rare opportunity for Cowboys fans from all over the United States to get an "up close and personal look" at their favorite team with all practice sessions free and open to the public.

June 3, 1960 - The newly formed Dallas Cowboys franchise announced that it will train at Pacific University in Forest Grove, Oregon. Rookies reported on July 9.

Dec. 6, 1989 - For the first time in the 30-year history of the team, the Dallas Cowboys trained in Texas as the club announced its 1990 training camp would be held at St. Edward's University in Austin, Texas. This camp, the first of eight at St. Ed's, opened on July 22.

Feb. 17, 1998 - The Cowboys begin a four-year stay at Midwestern State University in Wichita Falls, Texas, with their 1998 camp. The first camp at Midwestern State University opened on July 16. May 17, 2002 - The Cowboys continue their commitment to fans in the state of Texas by announcing the 2002 training camp will take place at the Alamodome in San Antonio, Texas. The camp, which ran for four weeks, opened on July 26. The Cowboys returned to the Alamodome again in 2003.

Introduced at Texas Stadium in 1972 to add glamour, excitement and entertainment value to the NFL game day experience, the Dallas Cowboys Cheerleaders quickly became an American icon, creating an international phenomenon that was quickly replicated throughout the NFL. The Dallas Cowboys Cheerleaders are recognized around the world as an elite performance group and their star spangled uniforms are one of the most well-known symbols of pop culture. Their image and style has had a tremendous impact on sports entertainment throughout the years. While they are often imitated, no other organization has been able to achieve their prominence or popularity.

During the 70s, their national popularity generated such a sensation that two made-for-tv movies were developed about the squad and achieved top ratings. Today the Cheerleaders regularly appear on national television shows such as "The View," "The Today Show," "Saturday Night Live" and "David Letterman." For the past 14 years, they have also had their own Swimsuit Calendar Special on ESPN titled "The Making of the Dallas Cowboys Cheerleaders Swimsuit Calendar." Last year during the 2005 auditions, CMT captured the DCC audition process and training camp on film and aired a two hour special titled "Making the Squad." Following on the heels of the ratings success of that show, CMT film crews and cameras expanded the entire selection process of the 2006-2007 squad for an eight week television special that will air in late 2006.

The Cheerleaders are of course a regular feature on the sidelines of Texas Stadium, but they also are an ongoing demand at festivals, sporting events, and corporate conventions around the country. They frequently appear on national magazines covers, television commercials and Hollywood films. Their appearances are not just limited to stages, but also include philanthropic and civic events. They make annual visits to hospitals, nursing homes and schools and participate in telethons and fundraising events across the United States.

Kelli McGonagill Finglass
Director

The DCC Show Group has proudly entertained U.S. military personnel around the world since 1979 – making more international tours with the USO than any other entertainment group in the world. They bring their own special brand of goodwill and gratitude to the men and women in the military, traveling to locations such as Iraq, Bosnia, Kosovo, Korea and the Persian Gulf. Their annual trips at Christmas and during the spring have become a special tradition for both the troops and the Cheerleaders. In 1997 the squad received the first-ever "Spirit of Hope Award" from the USO in recognition of their distinguished service to American troops. They were also honored with a 50th Anniversary Award from the USO and were inducted into the Veteran of Foreign Wars Hall of Fame in 2002.

Judy Trammell
Choreographer

The Dallas Cowboys Cheerleaders are truly extraordinary women chosen to exemplify the high standards of the Dallas Cowboys Football Club and to proudly represent their hometowns, their country and young women everywhere.

Community Outreach and the Dallas Cowboys

GENE AND JERRY JONES FAMILY CHARITIES

For the past 17 years, Jerry Jones and his family have owned and operated the Dallas Cowboys with a management style that places just as much emphasis on community leadership as it does on the goal of winning the Super Bowl. The dominant theme which underscores the Cowboys role in the community is to maximize the visibility, energy and celebrity of the world's most recognizable sports franchise and use those dynamic forces as a powerful means to help others.

The results on the field have brought championships to Dallas. The results away from the field have touched the lives of thousands.

THE MISSION

"In the area of community service, our organization's mission is built upon an overall philosophy of helping those who don't have the strength, the resources or the means to help themselves," says Jones. "As a sports entity that has enjoyed unprecedented success and recognition for more than four decades, we feel a very strong obligation to transfer that championship tradition and the magic that it creates toward the bigger purpose of making a difference."

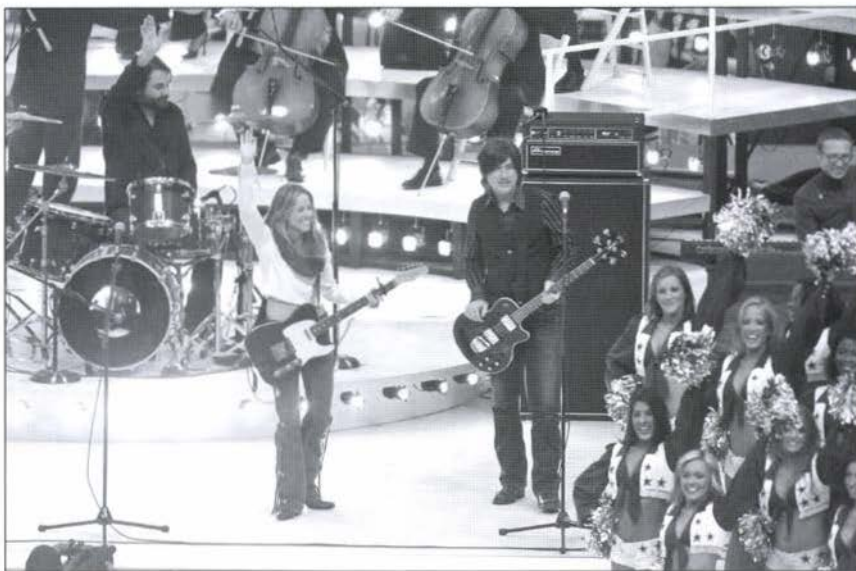

Jones enlists the talents, skills and resources of his entire family, all of the Cowboys players, and every member of the organization to provide a cutting edge approach to community outreach. "Any personal contact with an individual member of our organization can provide help for hundreds of people in need," adds Jones. "The star on the helmet can move mountains."

THE ARMY AND THE STAR

The Jones family's dynamic association with The Salvation Army is a visible example of the creative and innovative manner in which the Cowboys can make a difference in the world.

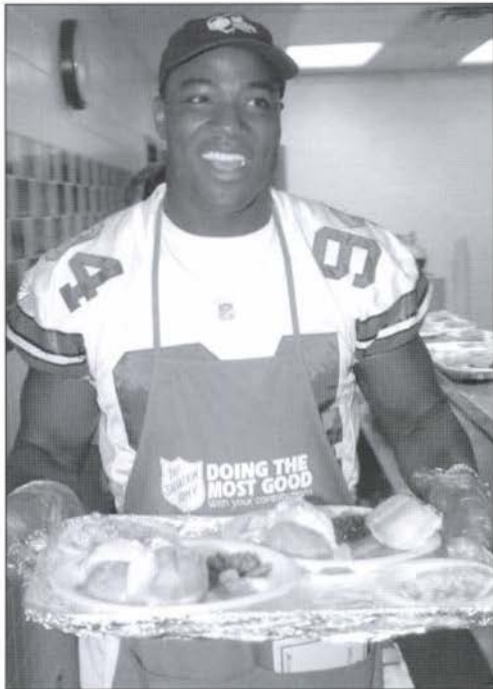

Gene and Jerry Jones, Charlotte Anderson and Major George Hood of The Salvation Army greet nine-time Grammy winner Sheryl Crow before announcing at a press conference in New York City that Crow will be the celebrity entertainer for the Dallas Cowboys nationally televised halftime show on Thanksgiving Day. Over the last nine years, the halftime show, which launches The Salvation Army National Red Kettle campaign nation-wide, has been viewed by over 350 million people nationwide and has helped raise over $900 million dollars.

As part of the Cowboys annual holiday tradition, Sheryl Crow performs in the Cowboys nationally televised Thanksgiving Day halftime extravaganza to kickoff The Salvation Army annual Red Kettle Drive.

For the past nine seasons, the Jones family has dedicated the Cowboys annual Thanksgiving Day halftime show as a national showcase to kickoff The Salvation Army's annual Kettle Drive. The team's association with network television has spawned a donation of $20 million worth of airtime to present nationally televised entertainment extravaganzas that have created a new holiday tradition.

Under the direction of Charlotte Jones Anderson, the Cowboys have produced the annual halftime event and welcomed nationally renowned entertainers Reba McEntire, Randy Travis, Clint Black, Billy Gilman, Jessica Simpson, Creed, LeAnn Rimes, Toby Keith, Destiny's Child and Sheryl Crow to highlight each of the Kettle Kickoff celebrations since 1997. The efforts have helped raise $900 million for the Army, while reaching over 350 million people nationwide.

On the local Salvation Army front, The Gene and Jerry Jones Family Center for Children opened in November of 1998 in conjunction with the Army. The center offers low-income families accessibility to affordable childcare programs that meet the needs of quality care and intellectual development. For 10 years, Gene and Jerry Jones served as host and underwrote the costs for the Super Lunch, a fundraising event for The Salvation Army Irving Corps Community Center and its special projects including the Family Center for Children. That event helped raised over $1.2 million.

Gene and Jerry are members of The Salvation Army's Dallas County Board and the National Advisory Board, respectively. The family was presented the Army's Partner of the Year Award in 1997 and in 1999 received the Evangeline Booth Award, one of the Army's highest national community service awards. Annually, the entire Cowboys organization supports the Army's Corporate Angel Tree Program, helping those in need during the holiday season. Individuals in the organization, including front office staff and players adopt "angels" to provide clothing and toys to underprivileged families.

MAGIC BY ASSOCIATION

Maximizing the "magic" of the Dallas Cowboys celebrity, and using that influence to assist others through community service, is the backbone of the organization's mission away from the field of competition. Each year, the team fulfills thousands of requests for ticket packages and autographed memorabilia items that can produce proceeds that range from $100 to tens of thousands of dollars per donation. Non-profit player appearances for charity and "Make-A-Wish" visits are a staple item for every Cowboys player. In addition, Gene and Jerry Jones Family Charities is the active philanthropic arm of the organization that annually makes significant contributions to organizations on both the local and national levels. In April of 1999, Gene and Jerry Jones made a $1 million gift to the Library of Congress for the purpose of promoting education on the national and international levels. In their continuing desire to enhance education and support young people in the community, the Jones family served as the underwriting sponsor for The Dallas Cowboys/Gene and Jerry Jones Family – Dallas Morning News All-State Scholar-Athlete Team in 2001. The program honored and provided scholarships for 12 college-bound student-athletes from across the State of Texas who distinguished themselves through academic and athletic excellence.

A wide variety of charitable efforts highlight the Jones family's continued activity in the local community. Some of those programs and events include support of The Rise School of Dallas, a unique school for children with down syndrome; a record setting celebrity roast of Jerry Jones for St. Philips School in Dallas, a facility where the team had previously funded a new playground; the Ticket Art Program, which featured the artwork of regional children's hospital patients on the 1997 Dallas Cowboys season tickets and raised money for the children's respective hospitals; the annual Cystic Fibrosis Sports Challenge hosted at Texas Stadium; support of the 2001-2006 Dallas Mayor's Summer Reading Programs; the MDA Fill the Boot fundraising campaign hosted at Texas stadium with the Irving and Dallas Firefighters collecting donations; in 1998-99, the "Be Cool, Go To School" program, which rewarded Dallas city elementary schools who boasted the best attendance with a visit from a Cowboys player and team mascot Rowdy and in 2002, participation and support of The NFL Hometown Anti-Drug Challenge in cooperation with The White House Office of National Drug Control Policy.

Jerry Jones's passion for helping those who have been hit with adversity has inspired him to enlist the assistance of his players on several goodwill missions that have touched the hearts of those in need. The organization's presence in these areas often extends far beyond the boundaries of the Dallas-Fort Worth area. In the spring of 1997, Jones joined Cowboys Troy Aikman, Herschel Walker and Charles Haley on a relief trip to the tornado-ravaged state of Arkansas. Three years earlier, the entire World Champion Cowboys team went to the Oklahoma City bombing site within two weeks of the tragedy. Immediately following Hurricane Katrina that devastated the Louisiana and Mississippi coast, the team joined forces with Papa John's Pizza and served pizza and other food items to thousands of evacuee's who were brought to Reunion Arena in Dallas. The team also joined forces with The Salvation Army and the Dallas and Irving Fire Departments to collect cash donations on game day at Texas Stadium. For years, Gene and Jerry Jones have been avid supporters of the Susan G. Komen Foundation and Race for the Cure for Breast Cancer. Annually, the Cowboys participate in the Komen Dallas Race for the Cure events. Additionally, the Dallas Cowboys honored the Komen Foundation and 450 breast cancer survivors in a special halftime tribute at Texas Stadium on Oct. 24, 1999.

Gene Jones is joined by quarterback Drew Bledsoe and Dallas Cowboys Cheerleader Andrea Richards for the team's annual holiday hospital visit to Children's Medical Center Dallas to deliver Cowboys Christmas gifts to pediatric patients.

The Cowboys are also very active in raising a large portion of the annual funds for the Happy Hill Farm and Academy. The Dallas Cowboys Family Cookbook and the team's annual Kickoff Luncheon serve as major revenue producers for the local academy that houses and educates abused and neglected children. The academy is also home to the Dallas Cowboys Ed Block Courage House.

Under the enthusiastic guidance of Gene Jones, who serves as a member of the board of trustees for Children's Medical Center of Dallas, the entire Cowboys team has conducted annual Christmas visits to local children's hospitals in each of the past 17 years. The holiday visitation program, which involves not only every player, but also the Dallas Cowboys Cheerleaders, now extends to five different hospitals throughout Dallas and Ft. Worth.

For eight years, the Cowboys underwrote and produced the "Dallas Cowboys Let Us Play! Sports Camp for Girls," a three-day camp for inner-city girls between the ages of 12 to 15 which encourages involvement in athletics with a focus on building character and self-esteem in at-risk youths. From 1998-2002 and 2004-2006 the team sponsored a free coaching clinic for more than 650 regional youth league and middle school coaches, from 14 states, who spent a day at Texas Stadium with the entire Cowboys coaching staff.

The Dallas Cowboys Rookie Club Program, launched in 2001, was designed to introduce rookie team members to the importance of community service. Over the last five years, rookie players have participated in monthly charity visits during the season to various non-profit organizations serving children and adults. Visits have included time with The Salvation Army, Children's Medical Center Dallas, Boys & Girls Clubs of Greater Dallas, The United Way of Metropolitan Dallas, ChildCareGroup, The Brady Center/Catholic Charities, Meals on Wheels and Kid's Café at The Voice of Hope Ministries.

POWERFUL PARTNERSHIP WITH THE NFL

Through national public service announcements, local promotional events and their association with the NFL, the Cowboys are responsible for $1 million in annual support of the United Way each year. In 2003 and again in 2006, Pro Bowl Safety Roy Williams was selected to serve as the Cowboys NFL United Way spokesman in the league's nationally televised PSA campaign.

The inaugural NFL United Way Hometown Huddle took place in 1999 when the Dallas Cowboys and NFL players nationwide showed support in their communities. The second Annual Hometown Huddle in 2000 involved the Dallas Cowboys secondary serving lunch to the homeless and visiting with children at The Salvation Army, Carr P. Collins Social Service Center. In 2001 and 2002, the team hosted the Hometown Huddle event at their training facility, inviting 100 boys and girls to participate in a junior training camp. Playing Bingo with over 100 senior citizens was the game of choice for the 2003 Hometown Huddle event hosted by the Cowboys and the United Way of Metropolitan Dallas at the Brady Center. In 2004, the Cowboys along with the United Way served up an early Thanksgiving Day feast for 300 deserving men and women at The Salvation Army a week before the holiday. And, in 2005 a dozen players and cheerleaders spent time preparing and distributing meals to clients served by Meals on Wheels.

Safety Roy Williams delivers a meal and visits with Thelma, a 90-year old client of Meals on Wheels, during the team's annual participation in the NFL/United Way Hometown Huddle league-wide community outreach effort.

In addition, the Cowboys and the entire NFL have formed a partnership that designates over

$1.5 million of annual support to the development of youth football programs throughout the country. Additionally, as part of the Cowboys commitment to Arlington, Texas, future home of the club's new stadium, Gene and Jerry Jones Family Charities will donate $16.5 million to youth sports over 33 years beginning this fall. Local Cowboys youth football initiatives include NFL-

In conjunction with the league initiatives and the community football field program, the Cowboys have made possible three new or refurbished football fields in the Dallas-Ft. Worth area including; a $100,000 grant in 2002 to Pierce Football Field, located in Joppa, one of Dallas's most impoverished neighborhoods, a $100,000 grant in 1999 to the St. Philip's School and Community Center in South Dallas to help fund a new $750,000 recreation center that will include a football field and in 1998, the Cowboys presented Dallas Moorland YMCA with the funding to build new football fields to support their growing youth football program.

In 2005, Gene and Jerry Jones Family Charities and the National Football League launched the Dallas Cowboys JUNIOR Community Quarterback Award — a league-wide volunteer recognition and award program for students ages 13-21. The program recognizes student-initiated service projects focusing on community betterment and awards those students who exemplify leadership, dedication, creativity and a commitment to improving the communities they live in through grants to fund their continuing volunteer efforts. For the previous five seasons, the club hosted the Dallas Cowboys Community Quarterback Award, a league-wide volunteer recognition program that donates nearly $1 million each year to community organizations served by outstanding volunteers. Award recipients received a $10,000 grant from the Gene and Jerry Jones Family Charities donated to their charity which included St. Philip's School & Community Center, Texas Scottish Rite Hospital for Children, Dallas CAN! Academy, Children's Medical Center Dallas and MDA Dallas.

In the Cowboys on-going support of youth football, linebacker Al Singleton presented the Pop Warner Arlington, Texas, Thunder football team a $5,000 grant from Gene and Jerry Jones Family Charities to help offset travel expenses for a trip to the National Championships in Florida.

AMBASSADORS OF GOOD CHEER

The world famous Dallas Cowboys Cheerleaders organization is completely subsidized by the club for the primary purpose of providing goodwill and a sense of caring on a local, national and international platform. Aside from their obvious presence on game days and their diligent work in local hospitals and homes for the elderly, the Dallas Cowboys Cheerleaders have now made more U.S.O. visits to U.S. military troops stationed overseas than the legendary Bob Hope.

A FAMILY PASSION

The operation of the Dallas Cowboys is a very visible family passion for Gene and Jerry Jones and their three children. Jerry Jones serves as the club's owner and general manager, while Stephen Jones – Chief Operating Officer/Executive Vice President/Director of Player Personnel, Charlotte Jones Anderson – Vice President/Director of Charities and Special Events and Jerry Jones, Jr. – Chief Sales and Marketing Officer/Vice President/General Counsel are all actively involved with the daily management of the club. Their shared dedication to community involvement has been a family source of pride for several years, and it extends far beyond the realm of the athletic world.

In the spring of 1998, the Jones's hosted a celebrity fundraiser at their home with Lauren Bacall as the featured guest. On that one evening, for the benefit of SMU's Meadows Foundation, the family helped produce the single largest fund raising event in University history. As a result of her efforts, the University established the Gene Jones Scholarship in her honor. More recently, the Jones Family has hosted fundraising affairs for the John Goodwin Tower Center Medal of Freedom with President George H. W. Bush and the Dallas Center for Performing Arts with Beverly Sills.

The Lone Star Chapter of the National Multiple Sclerosis Society recognized Gene and Jerry Jones as community champions in the area of philanthropy at its annual Dinner of Champions during the 2005 offseason. The honorees impact the lives of men, women and children through their service to the community and were awarded the Hope Award, the highest honor bestowed on an individual by the National MS Society in recognition of civic and community service. The dinner chairman for the 2005 dinner was Bruce Hardy, General Manager of Texas Stadium.

Family Gateway, a Dallas community outreach organization, recognized the work of Gene and Jerry Jones in the spring of 2003 with the Annette G. Strauss Humanitarian Award. The award is given annually to recognize those who are dedicated to enhancing the well being of others, who champion causes for the betterment of individuals and by example, encourage people to do the same. In June of 2002, the Joneses were recognized as the recipients of the Children's Champion Award for Philanthropy that was presented by the Dallas for Children organization.

Jerry Jones has a lifetime association with the Boys and Girls Clubs of America. In 2001, the Joneses were awarded the Chairman's Award by The Boys and Girls Clubs of America. This award is given to recognize individuals who made a positive difference in people's lives – particularly in the lives of children. The Chairman's Dinner, chaired by daughter, Charlotte Anderson, raised $1.9 million for The Boys and Girls Clubs. Jerry currently serves as a national trustee for the Southwest region of the organization and was previously named the Man of the Year by the Boys and Girls Clubs of Little Rock, Arkansas.
